A Famous English Physician (who requests that his name be withheld from publication)

Grape-Nuts "In cases of slow digestion, lack of stomach tone, and debility, this food is invaluable."

NOW FOR THE REASON:

The great bulk of human food is starch in some form-bread, pastry, potatoes, rice, cereals

(such as oats), wheat, rye, barley, etc.

This class of food supplies "energy" if it be properly digested, but there's the rub. Starch and sugar in food are digested by the liver and intestines. When these organs are overworked or become weak, then the food is not entirely digested and lies in the warm moisture of the stomach until it decays, producing gas, and therefore disturbance and incipient disease of the liver and intestines and frequently appendicitis.

To meet this trouble Grape-Nuts food was invented. In it, the starch part of the wheat and barley is transformed by long soaking, warmth, and time, into sugar-just the same method as the body employs in digestion. Hence when one eats Grape-Nuts he eats a predigested food, ready for immediate digestion and assimilation, supplying the body with the needed food elements in a soluble and delicious form.

THE LONDON "LANCET" SAYS:

"The features worthy of note in our analysis are the excellent proportion of proteid, mineral matters, and soluble carbohydrates per cent. The mineral matter was rich in phosphoric acid. 'Grape-Nuts' is described as a brain and nerve food, whatever that may mean. Our analysis, at any rate, shows that it is a nutritive of a high order, since it contains the constituents of a complete food in very satisfactory and rich proportion and in an easily assimilable state.'

The food is naturally pre-digested by heat, moisture and time. The diastase is thus produced and the transformation of starch into sugar accomplished.

A perfect food for persons with weak intestinal digestion and who need, but cannot fully digest ordinary bread and starchy food.

For athletes, brain-workers, or the weakest babe.

(For infants, pour hot water over three or four teaspoonsful of the food. Use that wat er with a trifle of the food dissolved in it.)
