

A HAPPY UNION.

A SACRED HERITAGE.

JUST the right proportions of the medicinal principles of Golden Seal root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot and Mandrake root with chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine, as combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, has proven a most efficient remedy for the cure of quite a variety of most obstinate chronic ailments.

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College; Dr. Coe, of New York; Prof. Johnson, of Medical Department University of New York; Prof. Jno. King, M. D., and Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Hale, of Chicago; Prof. Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, and a host of other leading and standard authorities of all the several schools of practice, extol, in strongest terms, Golden Seal root as a remedy in all catarrhal affections whether of the nasal passages, throat, bronchia, stomach, intestines, or of other regions where the mucous surfaces are affected, as in pelvic catarrh of females, catarrh of the bladder, and in fact in all catarrhal affections of whatever organ or part.

In catarrh of the nasal passages it is well to cleanse the affected surfaces three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy solution, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for its constitutional effects.

Stone root is another wonderful efficient remedial agent as combined in "Golden Medical Discovery" in curing all catarrhal affections wherever located. It is also a specific for valvular and other affections of the heart as shown by Prof. Wm. Paine, M. D., Author of "New School Practice," who cites most distressing cases of heart disease cured by it. Prof. Ellingwood, M. D., extols it as a tonic in enfeebled muscular structure of the heart, and also combined with Golden Seal (as in "Golden Medical Discovery") for catarrhal dyspepsia, chronic or obstinate diarrhea and kindred ailments.

The Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, and Bloodroot also add greatly to the efficacy of the "Discovery" in the cure of all catarrhal affections as also in the cure of obstinate cases of throat, laryngeal and bronchial catarrhal affections, attended with hang-over-coughs.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this old reliable, professionally endorsed "Discovery" OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. It is non-alcoholic as well as non-secret.

Study the medicinal properties and uses of the root of Golden Seal, one of the most valuable of our American forest plants, as set forth in a little book of extracts made up by Dr. Pierce from the standard works of the leading medical writers and teachers of the several schools of practice, and it will be conclusively apparent to you that a medicine like Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which is rich in all the curative principles abounding in Golden Seal root, so highly extolled by the most eminent medical men, must be surpassingly efficacious in the cure of many obstinate and distressing ailments and especially so in all catarrhal affections of the mucous surfaces, whether of the nasal passages, throat, or bronchia or of the stomach, bowels, bladder or other pelvic organs. Scarcely less valuable than the properties of Golden Seal, in a curative way, are the several medicinal principles extracted from Stone root, Queen's root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot and Mandrake root, all of which are harmoniously blended with triple-refined glycerine in "Golden Medical Discovery."

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-cent postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

Do not expect too much from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It will not work miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. Nor is the "Discovery" so good for a sudden attack of acute cough, but for the lingering, obstinate, hang-over-coughs, accompanying catarrhal, throat, laryngeal and bronchial affections, it is a most efficacious remedy. In cases accompanied with wasting of flesh, night-sweats, weak stomach and poor digestion with faulty assimilation, and which, if neglected are apt to lead to consumption, the "Discovery" has proven wonderfully successful in effecting cures.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation of the bowels, loss of appetite, coated tongue, sour stomach, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in glass vials, tightly corked, therefore always fresh and reliable. They regulate, invigorate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels.

A good medical book, written in plain English, and free from technical terms, is a valuable work for frequent consultation. Such a work is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in plain English, or Medicine Simplified. It's a book of 1008 pages, profusely illustrated with wood cuts and colored plates. It is given away now, although formerly sold in cloth binding for $1.50. Send 21 cents, in one-cent stamps, to pay for cost of mailing only for paper-covered copy, addressing Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.; or 31 cents for an elegantly cloth-bound copy. It gives over 200 prescriptions for the treatment of acute and chronic ailments.

HEALTH is a heritage so sacred and precious that no one can afford to experiment with it by making use of cheap, give away, "trial bottles" of medicine of unknown composition. When an invalid, weak, nervous woman takes Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription she knows exactly what she is using. By reading the list of its ingredients, as printed on its bottle-wrapper, and attested under sacred oath as being full and correct, she will see that it contains no alcohol, no narcotics or other harmful or habit-forming drugs, and that only pure glyceric extracts of native, American, medicinal roots, which have received the highest praise from the most eminent medical men of this country as remedies for woman's ailments, enter into its composition.

Dr. John Fyfe in ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica), which is one of the chief ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription:

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system. In Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purpose than any other drug with which I am acquainted." He continues, "In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe goes on to point out some of the symptoms and morbid conditions in the cure of which Unicorn root is especially efficacious; among these he mentions pain or aching in the back, with pelvic catarrh, weak conditions of the womanly organs, despondency and irritability of temper arising from chronic disease of the organs distinctly feminine, amenorrhoea, suppressed or absent monthly periods, derangements of digestive organs, dragging sensations in extreme lower part of abdomen and kindred symptoms.

This Helonias, or Unicorn root is most faithfully represented by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription which is rich in its medicinal principles. Not less important, in Dr. Pierce's estimation for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and diseases, are Golden Seal root, Blue Cohosh root, Black Cohosh root and Lady's Slipper root, all of which enter into the "Favorite Prescription."

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of Golden Seal root: "It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions and general enfeeblement, it is useful." Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., says of Golden Seal: "It is universally regarded as the tonic in all debilitated states." Professor Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College, says of Golden Seal: "Valuable in uterine hemorrhage (bleeding), menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhoea (painful monthly periods)." Of Black Cohosh Prof. John King, M. D., Author of "Woman and Her Diseases," says: "In dysmenorrhoea (painful periods), it is surpassed by no other drug."

After reading the above who can doubt that Dr. Pierce has compounded his "Prescription" from the most valuable agents known to medical science for the cure of those chronic diseases peculiar to women for which he recommends it?

You can't afford to accept any secret nostrum of unknown composition and of questionable merit as a substitute for this professionally endorsed and time-tested remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, simply that some unprincipled dealer may make a little larger profit. Don't expect it to perform miracles but give it a fair, persevering trial and it is not likely to disappoint you. It won't "dissolve tumors"—no medicine will. It will cure a larger percentage of all curable ailments which especially afflict womankind than any other medicine sold by druggists for that purpose.

Woman's Watchword

Is modesty. Whatever threatens her delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits disease of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questionings, offensive examinations, and obnoxious local treatments, which most physicians think necessary. Doubtless thousands of women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter, have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty.

Any sick woman may write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence; all letters being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as a "God-send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. It enables women suffering from "female weakness," prolapsus uteri, retroversion, anteversion, and other displacements of the organs distinctly feminine, to cure themselves right in the privacy of their homes. Pelvic catarrhal drains, painful or irregular periods, backache, frequent headaches, weak nerves, dragging-down pain or distress in the lower abdominal, or pelvic region, gnawing sensation in stomach, dizziness, or faint spells, and kindred conditions and symptoms are cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's not a secret or patent medicine, against the use of which most people of intelligence naturally object, but is, in fact, the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated and experienced physician in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments and who is not afraid to publish all its ingredients, as he does, on its bottle-wrapper, attesting the correctness of the same under oath. It contains neither alcohol nor harmful habit-forming drugs, being a pure glyceric extract of curative principles found in our most valuable native, medicinal roots, as attested by many of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice.

A little booklet of numerous endorsements will be sent to any address, post-paid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Gossip and Stories About Noted People

Pen Picture of Senator Tillman. AMES CREELMAN draws this pen picture of the South Carolina senator: He is tall, deep in chest, stoney, loose-limbed and awkward. There is not a more formidable figure to be found in America.

The countenance is singularly coarse. The brow is wide but not high. It overhangs a dead eyesocket and a single living brown eye. The nose is large, long and fleshy. It is the nose of a born commander of men. The cheeks, which once were flat, are now puffy. The jaw is heavy and has a terrific grip. The mouth is thick-lipped and has a brutal suggestiveness. The chin is wide and square, the chin of a desperado. The neck is thick and muscular.

But the head is almost Napoleonic in its strength and symmetry and it is ordinarily carried high, with an air of defiance. The face makes one think of piracy, cannibalism. It is the splendid outline of the head that redeems and explains it. Not that there is any trace of cunning or treachery in the countenance; yet it is beyond comparison as an example of savage masculinity.

Still, that three brown eyes can soften compassionately and can twinkle with sunniest humor; and those terrible lips can quote Greek and Latin and talk of flowers and poets and little children. For the face is but a mask to hide a very honest, very human man, who entered the Senate and headed a fiery farmers' revolution, a mob leader, cursing all things conservative to grow into a national legislator whose intelligence, industry and rough integrity have won the respect, if not the love, of his most fastidious antagonist in the Senate.

Millionaire in Sad Flight.

Congress is asked to pity the deplorable condition of Millionaire Desman of chewing gum fame for his total inability to perform manual labor and to show this pity by increasing the disabled one's pension as a veteran of the civil war from $5 to $12 a month. "Figs the sorrows of a poor old man," whose trembling limbs can scarcely bear his body to the private car that waits to take him to Florida in winter and return with him to the White mountains in summer. He should by all means have the extra $7 to help him along on his pined and painful way. Think what a sum it is under such pressing circumstances! Forty-eight dollars a year added to the $86 that he already draws in pension checks will be quite a help to the aged man.

Campaign Economy.

Congressman J. Van Vechten Olcott tells a story of a member of the house from Missouri whose economical habits attracted some attention among his colleagues. The Missouriian is serving his first term and as he was elected as a republican from a strongly democratic district some of his fellow members were curious to know how much his campaign expenses were. He was swept into congress on the Roosevelt tidal wave. When the question was put to him he satisfied the curious ones with this reply: "Well, you can figure it out for yourselves. The convention nominated another man first and he sent a letter of declination. That cost him a 2-cent postage stamp. They then nominated me, and I did not mail my acceptance."

Sheridan and His Old Poes.

In connection with Father Sherman's attempt to duplicate his father's march "from Atlanta to the sea," an old cavalry officer recalls how a report got abroad some twenty years ago that Phil Sheridan was about to revisit the scenes of his triumphs in the Sheridan valley. It was said he intended to take a troop of cavalry with him and when the ex-confederate heard of it they sent him word: "Come along and we'll shoot you full of holes." The general replied: "I had no intention of making such a trip, but I am glad to see that the gallant foes of a former day have some of the old spirit in them."

Pointers on Parliamentary Rules.

Mrs. Fairbanks is a frequent occupant of the vice presidential seat in the reserved senate gallery, being accompanied usually by several friends. A few days ago the vice president contributed his share to a parliamentary tangle by making a somewhat unexpected ruling, which he later corrected on reflection. After adjournment the vice president joined Mrs. Fairbanks and her friends and was subjected by his spouse to considerable rallery because of the had mixup in the proceedings. "Really, Charles," she remarked, "I think you should next year attend the meetings of the Daughters of the American Revolution and brush up on parliamentary law."

Curious and Romantic Capers of Cupid

Became Lawyer to Win Bride.

ROMANCE and prosaic law are strangely interwoven in the engagement of Miss Marie Seligman to Joseph Brandenburg of New York City. The betrothal was conditional upon Mr. Brandenburg passing an examination for admission to the New York bar. After three years' hard study he undertook the examination April 10, and relates the New York Telegram, and was notified a few days ago that he had passed. Miss Seligman then consented to carry out her part of the contract. The engagement was announced immediately. Mr. Brandenburg is 31 years old and holds a responsible position with an advertising firm in this city. Miss Seligman is the daughter of Sigmund Seligman, assistant superintendent of the Harlem branch of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. She was 23 years old last Friday, the day on which her fiancé received notice from the board of law examiners that he had passed the examination and had been admitted to the bar.

The engagement brings to light the second romance which has taken place in Miss Seligman's family. Her father fell in love with Mrs. Seligman by means of a picture in the possession of his mother. Mrs. Seligman was at that time living in Hingenon-the-Rhine, Germany, and Mr. Seligman crossed the ocean to carry on his courtship.

Lovers Stamped Revival.

It is an unusual thing for the entire audience in a church to leave their seats and madly dash down the highway in pursuit of a quartet of elopers. This was what happened at Johnson's schoolhouse near Brewster, Va. The cause of the frantic chase was a double love affair between Newton J. Salyers and Orbey J. Baldwin, two young farmers of Castlewood, Va., and Miss Lottie Johnson and Miss Nannie Spears, two winsome girls of Zircovate.

Shoes Chained to Bride.

With a strong double steel chain, to which were riveted a number of antiquated shoes, securely locked around her waist, Mrs. John Wallace Schaeffer, who was Miss Susan Hall of Milwaukee street, made her escape in an automobile from a throng of wedding guests at her parents' home overenthusiastic in their protests.

Wore Overalls at His Wedding.

Harry Ives, editor of the St. Hilaire Journal, St. Hilaire, Minn., arrived in Minneapolis the other day, a married man, but after one of the most harrowing experiences to which a groom has ever been subjected on the occasion of his wedding.

Hot News for the Editor.

Charlie B. Schultz, a reporter, on the Worcester Telegram, fell in love with Natalie Salandrie, daughter of the telegraph editor of the same paper. The reporter was afraid to entirely renounce their relationship, so an elopement was planned and successfully carried out. When the young people were married they hit upon a strange plan of notifying the bride's parents. Young Schultz simply filed a telegram to his paper announcing the marriage.

Most complete that ever graced the person of a groom.

Everything went well until the wedding day, when Mr. Ives—that all might go well and nothing be forgotten—tried on the clothes in which he was to appear at the wedding ceremony. With a faithful friend he was surveying himself in all of his glory, when suddenly the door of his apartment was burst open and a crowd of friends appeared upon the scene.

Without a word they proceeded to take from Mr. Ives every article of clothing to be found in the room and then also stripped the groom of the crowd stood guard and every man with nothing to comfort him but the walls of the room and an old rug that was forgotten by the raiders.

They left him and locked the door, following this with a careful barricade on the outside of the entrance to prevent any attempt at escape. Throughout the day members of the crowd stood guard and every solicitation of Mr. Ives was in vain, until finally a half hour before the ceremony a pair of overalls and a blue flannel shirt were thrown to the unhappy man.

A Desperate Struggle with an Indian Leopard

ABRA JOTINDRA, NATH-MUKERJEE, a shorthand writer in the financial department of the Bengal government, recently visited his home in Kaya, near Kuste.

Shortly afterward there was a great panic among the quiet villagers, as the story got abroad that a huge leopard killed some head of cattle and injured a child overnight and was hiding in a shrub within a mile of the village.

The young man promptly got up a party to rid the neighborhood of the pest. The entire party could muster only one gun—a more or less useless breech-loader—between them all. This precious weapon Jotindra gave to a cousin who, though reputed to be a good shot, was of less robust build, and was, therefore, less likely to be able to give a good account of himself without the aid of firearms.

The only gun was 100 yards away and from this distance Jotindra's cousin took a difficult shot, which hit the animal on the neck, but the bullet glanced off without doing more serious damage than a skin that was wounded. The thoroughly roused animal now charged Jotindra, who, however, stood firm to receive the rapidly advancing mass of black and yellow. As the animal sprang on to him he nimbly jumped to one side and delivered an ugly gash on one side of the animal's head, followed by a rapid succession of cuts, on the stomach and chest. The animal roared and bit and clawed the left arm of the sportsman, who throttled him with the right and shook him off with such force that the animal lost its balance and rolled on the ground.

Jotindra promptly took advantage of the situation and planted his right foot on the animal's belly, thus plunging him down on the ground while he rained vicious thrusts with the dagger all over the brute's body. Although badly wounded, the animal had still plenty of fight left in him, and crouching and wriggling his neck he was able to plant his fangs into the shikari's thigh just above the kneecap, while the deadly claws were incessantly at work on other parts of the youth's body.

Jotindra's dagger came into play again, and one terrific blow drove the skullcap through the brain. The beast then let go its bite and lay writhing in death agony on the ground, but yet impatiently snapping its jaws together every now and again at its assailant, who finally thrust his dagger into the throat. With one mighty snap the beast held the blade in its jaws and expired. It was a job to release the dagger from the grip of the fangs of the dead leopard. The spectators were horrified and held spellbound by the sight, so much so that not a finger was raised to assist Jotindra in his unequal fight. The leopard measured seven feet from tip to tip and was a magnificent specimen of his kind.—Labore (India) Tribune.

Jetter Brewing Company's Aging Tanks

Latest Invention for Improving the Output of Modern Breweries Adopted by Enterprising Local Firm

GLASS LINED TANKS READY TO BE INSTALLED AT JETTER BREWERY.

THE increased demand for Jetter's Gold Top and also for Jetter's Malt Tonic has so taxed their capacity that they have been forced to entirely remodel their plant. They now have one of the most thoroughly equipped modern breweries in the country. The illustration above shows six of their new steel tanks lying in the new storage cellar. The tanks each hold 200 barrels and are glass-lined throughout, so that they can be effectually sterilized, and the beer is prevented from coming in contact with the metal surface. The high quality of Jetter's Gold Top is made possible, not only by using the choicest grade of barley and hops, but also by the utmost care in the brewing process all the way from the culture of the yeast to the bottled product. Absolute cleanliness prevails. Everything is sterilized, purified and filtered to the highest point known to science or the brewer's art.

The uniform exquisite flavor of this beer is maintained by their exceptional facilities of aging under an absolutely correct temperature. This is accomplished by the mammoth tee plant they have installed. Twelve hundred barrels of Jetter's Gold Top beer are perfectly ripened at one time in these sealed glass-lined tanks, and the ice machines are working day and night to produce the delicious highest point known to science or the brewer's art.
