For and About Women Folks

R roses, rare days and bird songs, sweet girl graduate and the livegrim

When all the world is deluged with summer and when nature is displaying most invishly her rare charms, it would seem that the June bride should choose without hesitation a sylvan wedding. We can fancy her and him standing beneath a blossom-laden tree with its promise of future Truitfulness, their white-shod feet pressing a carpet of green grass and buttercups, cowslips and daisies, their cathedral the Gothic architecture of arching boughs, their dome the heavens themselves, and in place of the organ's boom the volces of full-throated birds bursting with bridal song. And the dear little bride herself in simple white, with flower filled arms and blossom decked hat, her only vell the tree's green shadow with its filtering sunshine falling about her lovely head.

A real June wedding this, a fitting temple for the pledging of the marriage vows, and oh, so romantic and artistic! But, said to say, the average bride of the city aspires to the thronged church, the wedding guests, the wedding breakfast, and a gown, a creation fit to sweep the velvet carpeted atales of the city's most holy temple

Indeed, she may be so desirous of a duchesse satin gown of court style that she will forget the month and the probable state of the weather. But if she is wise she will have a gown of sheer lawn, exquisitely embroidered in a French pattern and hung in soft folds over a lightweight silk. This season she will probably want the gown princess in cut, the panel embroldered front running uncrossed from collar to hem and flanked by web-like laces, embrolderies and tucks. About her feet the white, foaming into graceful billows, will form a train of medium length.

Her sleeves of elbow length should be met by long gloves, embroldered in the same dainty pattern that decks her gown, her white stockings of slik or lisle must bé embroidered, her lingerie must be embroldered, her going-away blouse of white linen, embroidered, too, and even the backs of her street gloves should bear a handworked design

Beyond a doubt the maid of honor and all the bridesmaids, flower girls and even the pages, not to mention the guests of honor, will want to be embroidered also, for the bee of art needlework buzzeth in every feminine head. This, however, would be entirely too much of a good thing, and delicacy in taste will surely prevent such wholesale fadiam.

The duties of the maid of honor are not numerous. During the ceremony she takes the bride's bouquet at the time for the giving of the ring, hands the flowers to the first bridesmaid, removes the bride's glove and parts her vell. This done she again takes the bouquet and keeps it until the bride's hand is released.

But all this is for the girl with money, while the sweetest of brides may be she whose own hands have earned all that she has to make a festal wedding day. She Rooms That Express Individuality. Time, thought and money may all have been spent on the room and yet it may possess no individual touch. It is an immense undertaking to decorate and furnish a room successfully and in such a livable.

The treatment of the walls, the finish of the woodwork, the selection of rugs. drapery and furniture, all combine to make or mar the successful room.

Harmony, color and balance are the fundamental principles in successful furnishing, and yet if they are not properly understood there is something wanting. It is comparatively seldom that one enters a room that is entirely satisfying. This is not as it should be, as there are plenty of beautiful things to select from if only we possess the judgment to combine and distribute them sultably.

An effective library is one in which the walls are ireated with paint, not brushed small diamond bow with one large loop on by a painter, but, giving the feeling of deep water, the brush having been used horizontally instead of perpendicularly. The colors of the wall are composed of green, purple and silver gray, so deftly blended that it has a peculiar quality of depth about it that is absolutely charm-The woodwork is stained a soft, ing. duil brown, with a wax finish, and a heavy in gold corded effects, with a single diamolding is carried round the room level with the tops of the doors and windows, which are very high for the proportion of the room. The ceiling is cream and the in which a decorative flower motif has been stenciled.

The furniture is of mission style, the chairs and sofa having gray-green leather cushions. The plano is also of the same construction and has the same soft dull finish as the rest of the woodwork in the room. The floor is covered with prairie grass matting, over which a few handwoven rugs are thrown, repeating the tones of the wall. Above the doors and windows are straight slats of wood simulating the backs of the chairs that are used in the room. This entirely does away with the too apparent height of the room. Green denim curtains shot with red are hung at the windows, while a hand-woven portiere of browns, purples and greens again accent the colors of the wall. There is no useless bric-a-brac in this room, a few large pieces of pottery repeat the notes of color, while Japanese pictures on the wall add the' brightening touch The mantelpiece was made and needed. designed by the owner, and its lines are excellent. For the summer girl, gowned in white, says the Jewelers' Weekly, is an exquisite little watch of finest white enamel, with chatelaine pin to match, and both are beautifully ornamented with overlaying Nothing prettier has been shown in the line of women's watches for some time than the new style that has a chain to match the watch attached. A charming little model, with richly chased case of yellow gold, is set with diamonds. The long chain is composed of slender, fancy beads of yellow gold about half an inch in length, alternating with diamonds. New parasol mountings, in a case, consist of a twisted tortoise shell handle with loop end, points and extension top to match. Some new fans in the soft pastel shades manner that it is practical, artistic and of blue, pink and red, now so popular in the smartest costumes, are rendered particularly attractive by well chosen treatment. The mounts are of slik, sometimes inset with gold gauge and decorated with pretty, conventional designs running on a line with the sticks. The sandalwood frames are beautifully treated with a pattern of gold. Both gold and silver spangles are used on the mounts for medium priced fans. A blue fan is rather taking, embroidered in gold thread in a design suggestive of Japanese art. A black fan has a floral design carried out in applique of white lace braid with white pearl sticks.

A new ring recently seen simulates on top in the center of which is a fine diamond.

In a bracelet noticeable for the unique effect of contrast, very loose and beautiful squares of gold filigree alternate with open squares set with gems.

As a novelty in sleeve links some open figures, such as ovals, diamonds, squares and ovals elongated to a point, are shown mond in the center.

A White House Mistress,

A happy Virginia bride at 19, mistress of the White House at 21 and totally blind and an inmate of the Louise home in Wash ington at 86. Buch is the life history, in skeleton, of Mrs. Letitia Tyler Semple, daughter of former President Tyler.

Mrs. Somple celebrated her 86th birthday recently. She is in good health, goos out frequently in good weather and always joins the other residents of the Louise home in the parlors in the evenings, where they assemble most formally for their social intercourse, says the Washington Star. Mrs. Semple was a beautiful girl and a belle in Virginia in her youth. At 86 she still bears the traces of this early beauty very distinctly. She is tall and erect and carries her head with the unmistakable poise of an aristocratic birth and antecedents. Her hair is snowy, soft and sliky, and worn with loose curls over her cars. Her manner is that of the cultured gentlewoman, and there is an atmosphere of great dignity always about her. She has many friends from the years of her past social triumphs, and they are all attentive to her. Her room in the Louise house is usually fragrant with fresh flowers. But with all these attentions it is a lonely

The Louise Home is a large, roomy institution filled with southern ladies of gentle birth and culture. There are beautiful grounds, well cared for, and it is situated in the heart of the fashionable part of the city. It is not a charitable institution, for each woman must pay for her board and room. The charge is modest, as the institution was handsomely endowed by the founder, the late philanthro-W. Corcoran, who gave it in plat, W. memory of his daughter Louise, who died in her youth. The grounds and house are well cared for, and it is a most attractive place. I There is, to be sure, an absence of childish footsteps and prattle. All the boarders in this big house are between the ages of 60 and 90, and they know the ioneliness of advanced age and reduced circumstances.

Mrs. Semple in her youth was her father's constant companion. She was a good musician and was the life and spirit of his household. She was gay and loving and beautiful. She played for him in his leisure moments and sang him to, sleep when he was tired. His favorite song was an old-fashioned one called "Rome," the words of which she now repeats to herself every day, in failcy recalling the many times her father listened to them with delight. At the age of 19 she became the wife of Mr. Semple. When the death of William Henry Harrison made Tyler president he brought a large and interesting family to the White House. Mrs. Tyler was an invalid and could never discharge the duties as mistress of the White House. During the first few months of Tyler's administration Mrs. Robert Tyler, wife of i son of the president, acted as his hostess while the president's beloved daughter, Letitia, remained at their Virginia home with her mother. Some months later Mrs. Tyler made the trip to Washington, acompanied by her daughter, now Mrs. lemple, but succumbed to her malady very shortly afterward and was buried from

The craze at present for evening shoes of Irish lace mounted over pale-colored satin is one of the chief features of the season, the heels being car-ried out in colors to correspond with the linings, while solitaire paste buttons take the place of bows. Brocade slippers for boudoir wear carried out in the richest broende in old French patterns represent another fancy of La Mode's at present, and these, in lieu of the single button, have immense jeweled or mother-of-pearl buck-les surrounded with loops of pale-colored velvet like the petals of a sunflower.

But there is no need to get downhearted if you suffer constant backache, weariness, bearing-down pains, sick headache, etc. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new life and strength to thousands of women af-

It is easy to tell if your kidneys are the cause of your ailments. Backache itself is only the aching of the kidneys when congested and inflamed. You feel it in the back because the kidneys are in the small of the back. The bladder and urinary tubes get swollen, crowding the delicate female organs near by and causing many of the peculiar pains thought to be female troubles.

healing action on the kidneys. They soothe, cleanse and stimulate, rouse the kidneys to action and drive the kidney poisons out of the body. They remove the cause and cure permanently. Many women of this city have been cured and gladly tell of it.

Mrs. M. Tosney of 1623 Dorcas St., Omaha, Neb., says:

"It is seven years ago since I gave a statement telling what great benefit Doan's Kidney Pills had given in my I suffered so severely from 1880. backache that at times I could scarcely move, and to stoop was an utter impossibility. To add to my misery, trouble with the kidney secretions of a most annoying and disturbing nature existed and I was constantly trying something which would bring some relief from these difficulties, if not a cure. I was not successful in finding anything that did me any good until my husband procured Doan's Kidney Pills for me. This grand remedy not only proved effective from the very start, but in a very short time removed the cause of the trouble, thus effecting complete and radical cure, and want the people of Omaha to know that that cure has been permanent.
