The June bride promises to have a detided effect upon the social calendar next month, notwithstanding the denials of several of the engaged ones that there would be weddings before fall. The very first week of June will bring four weddings, every one of them of consequence, because of the social prominence of the families concerned. At least three of these will be quiet affairs, but no matter how quiet a wedding may be, it does not prevent the given-in-honor affairs and with four weddings scheduled within a fortnight this week will certainly provide something more than the few things so far announced. Of course there will be other brides, too, but the cards are not yet out and there are four weeks in June.

The opening of the Country club Wednesday is the conspicuous feature of this week socially. There will be the tournament in the afternoon, the table d'hote dinner and the dance in the even-That the attendance will be large is assured by the fact that 208 have already engaged places for dinner. Several of these will, of course, be in parties, The tardy completion of the decoration caused many to fear that the opening would have to be postponed again, but the date is fixed this time.
