ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS

ment made some time since by Senator Allison, whose assertion alone on such matters carries great weight, that congress could adjourn by June 20, was based upon the consensus of opinion of the republican leaders in both houses. While no agreement has been formally reached for that date, still it is apparent that for two weeks matters have been shaped as far as possible for adjournment approximately at the time announced

It is, however, apparent that if adjournment shall occur thereabouts not a little important legislation will have to be left unfinished at this session.

Several big appropriation bills yet remain to be completed, while all the only to appropriations and other privileged subjects. And along with it are a number of other measures still in more or less incomplete form, whose importance was overshadowed during consideration of the rate bill, but is now coming more into the limelight.

It would be impossible to dispose suitably of all this business within three weeks, even under the most favorable circumstances. But ten days ago the opposition began a deliberate and systematic filibuster, which, if continued, will consume a great amount of time that otherwise would be devoted to forward legislation.

The dilatory opposition tactics are for the ostensible purpose of coercing the majority with reference to the statehood bill, but the real purpose, according to the accepted view, is to block legislation in general and to make partisan capital, the democratic leaders believing that the republicans
