Little Contest for Offices:

The republican convention of Pottawattamie county held yesterday in Council Bluffs, was the largest ever held in the county. Of the 218 delegates elected at the primaries to the convention, few if any, were absent and the south court Halle, J. E. Butler and G. P. Kemp for room of the county court house, in which, trustees. the gathering was held, was packed to its limit. There was a large crowd of interested spectators, and the convention was a most harmonious and enthusiastic meeting from start to finish. The "standpatters" or anti-Cummins wing were in complete control and the Cumins delegates proceedings. The vote on the minority resolutions offered by John Fletcher of Avoca disclosed the fact that only twentynine supporters of Governor Cummins were in the convention. The contest for the nomination for treas urer, which promises to be a feature of the convention, disappeared when at the noon recess announcement was made by J. P. Christensen that he had withdrawn from the race. There was somewhat of a contest over the nominations for the vacancies in the Board of Supervisors, but all the other old officers were accorded renominations without contest and by acclama-

He referred to the pending railroad legislation, the Interstate commerce bill and the anti-pass bill enacted by the recent state legislature. The nomination for two justices developed quite a contest. These were placed in nomination: H. H. Field and E. B. As the vote was bewere so few that they cut no figure in the ling announced Gardiner's friends attempted to rally to his assistance and several precincis wanted to change their vote. The changes became so numerous that it was suggested that the ballot taken be counted an informal one. This proposition fatled to carry and the secretary, in desperation, asked the several precincts to repeat their vote in "verification." The ballot as "verified" gave Vien 65, Deuel 63, Gardiner 7. The candidates were W. S. Baird, S. B. Snyder, former city attorney; H. J. Chambers, W. A. Mynster and the present incumbent, George H. Scott.
