considerably short of last week and of a year ago, and still there are too many cattle coming to keep the market in good condition.

The trade on beef steers opened very slow and dulihand it was 10 o'clock before any business of consequence was transacted. Seliers who happened to have something that just suited buyers, or something that was wanted to kill out, immediately reported that they were able to sell to very good advantage, being compelled to take off very little from yesterday's figures. Buch cases, however, were rare, the general market being right at 10c lower, than yesterday. The fact was that in some instances before the close salesmen who happened to have cattle that did not seem to find special favor in buyers' eyes had to take off even more than 10c. It was, as a matter of fact, a slow and lower market, and as such unsatisfactory to the selling interests.

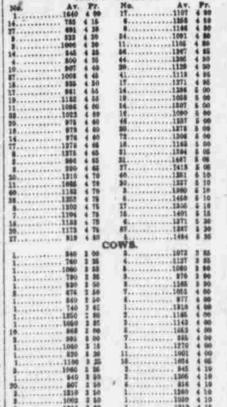

Cows and heifers were in fair supply, but they, too, sold in most cases as much as 10c lower, although some salesmen who happened to have very nice helfers or well finiehed cows thought that they did not take off that much. For anything that was not right good, however, the market was safely 10c lower.

Stockers and feeders were, as usual, in moderate supply, there not being enough on sale to cut much figure or create any quatable change in values.

HOUS—Large receipts both here and at other selling points gave buyers an opportunity to pound values, which they were not slow to take advantage of. Every one started out right from the first bidding lower, and it was some little time before buyers and selects could get together on a treding hasis. When the bogs did begin to move they went largely on the basis of $5.5% for good loads, which was practically light lower than yesteroay, when $5.00 was the popular price for the better grade of hogs Later on buyers seemed to think that they were paying more than was necessary and sume of the packers were disposed to bear values still further, so they lowered their bids in many cases to $8.30 for pretty decent hogs. Perhaps to call the general market $4.000 lower would cover the whole situation. While the market was a little late in open-ing, it was quite active in spots, so that
