SERMON TO THE GRADUATES

Twentieth Century Knighthood the Topic of Dr. L. D. Osborn.

FIELD YET FOR KNIGHTLY QUALITIES

Points Out to Them the Necessity in Some Field or Other of Making the World Better for Their Having Lived.

"Twentieth Century Knighthood" was the subject and "Gentle you like men, be strong," was the text taken by Dr. L. D. Osborn, president of Des Moines college, for the baccalaureate sermon which he delivered yesterday afternoon at the high school auditorium to the graduating class and an audience which filled the hall.

Opening, Dr. Osborn gave a description of chivalry as the flower of the feudal system and described the process by which the man became a knight and the knight the knight took. Continuing, he said in part:

Sometimes we are inclined to look back to those olden days with longing and wish that we had lived when deeds of valor made warm the blood and the women's colors rewarded prowess. But if we could shield our eyes from the blinding light of this commonplace day, we would realize that there never was an age that called more loudly for the true qualities of knighthood, and never was a wider opportunity for the exercise of those qualities than today. If in my talk this afternoon I can fill you with a little more inspiration to become true knights in this day I will have accomplished my purpose.

Necessities of Knighthood. Three things are absolutely essential in knighthood: The leader to follow, a cause to espouse and a field of action. First, a leader to follow. Few things are more important in life than the question of leadership. When we attach ourselves to a leader, we have learned many of the things you have learned in school you will feel the impress of the leaders whom you have met here among your teachers. I want frankly to commend you to the leadership of Jesus of Nazareth. Whatever special views you may have of his person, he was the most knightly man who ever lived.

We find that he realized that the work of the warrior was only preparatory to the positive task of helping the needy and oppressed, and the man who has taken this attitude toward the world is that in which he gave himself to the permanent service of humanity, culminating in the giving of himself as a sacrifice for men. Here, then, is a knight of the highest order, incarnating in himself the true qualities of knighthood. It is to his leadership that I wish you to commit yourselves.

Second, a cause to espouse. This cause we find connected immediately with Christ, and is the same which he made his. It involves that you shall not live your lives selfishly, but that you shall live for the benefit of others, and further the right in every possible way. No man can be a true knight who does not give himself to some phase of social service that appeals to him as supremely worthy. I might call this the cause of the world, for the fact that we do not live in life is that so many people live without this motive and do not awake until too late to a realization of the fact that they have really counted for nothing.

Third, the field for the fray. We live today in the fact that we do not live in an age when the followers of Christ feel called upon to go to the front lines of the world and let the rich life of the world sweep by without their participation in it. The world is the field for the knightly qualities is this wonderful complex life all about us. Let me call your attention to some departments of it.

Field is Large Enough. In the first place there is the political arena. I wonder if I see before me in this graduating class the future mayor of the city, the state senator and representatives and congressmen? If they are not here they ought to be. Our nation was founded in patriotism, a patriotic idealism, and our forefathers were willing to sacrifice personal inclination for public good. They have left to us a noble inheritance. If we have in the past we are coming back to them today. No one can measure the good that is being done in the modern political world by the leadership of such true knights as President Cleveland, Governor Davenport, Mayor Weaver and many others of their party or not. If even if we think they make mistakes, their knightly character is exercising a tremendous influence upon the young men of this country.

The world of business there is every opportunity for leaders of the knightly sort. We are passing through one of the greatest industrial histories of the world. No one can foresee just now what is to be the outcome, but it is evident that the outcome of our industrial destiny we need men of unselfish purpose and determination to lead the right prevail and to attract attention at great length to the magnificent field offered by the professions, the great possibilities in a physician's life for work of ministry and helpfulness. The lawyer's calling to furnish guidance and aid in the ministry, both for participation in public affairs and for the private life, is a noble and helpfulness, and I must not forget, either, that great field of life which is open to the great field of the knightly knightly qualities as true and strong as any that are called for on the field of battle. You will find the knightly knightly all around you in whatever department of life you may choose as your mission.

The members of the senior class were seated in the front rows, as were the members of the faculty of the high school and the members of the board of education.

The service opened with the singing of "America" by the audience, followed by prayer by Rev. F. J. Case, pastor of the First Baptist church, who also pronounced the benediction at the close. During the services two hymns, "Nearer, Nearer" and "We March to Victory," were sung by the audience.

Board of Education Meeting. The board of education will meet in regular session this evening in Superintendent Clifford's office at the high school. Although no definite announcement has been made, it is expected that the board will consider the report of the committee on the new school building.

INDICATIONS OF A SUICIDE

Clothing and Letters Found on River

Marked as Bridge.

Letters in the pockets of a coat found Sunday afternoon at the east end of the Douglas street bridge indicate that Guy R. Doty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Doty of Juniata, Neb., has committed suicide by drowning in the Missouri river because of ill health. The coat was discovered at 2:30 p. m. by D. H. Anderson, who lives near the end of the bridge, and with it was a straw hat, pair of shoes, collar and necktie. Mr. Anderson immediately took the articles of clothing to the police station at Council Bluffs.

One of the letters was addressed to the Omaha police, one to Charles E. Doty, Juniata, Neb., and one to Miss Pearl Humphrey, or a name similar to that, Lincoln, Neb. The letter to the police read:

"Find what is left of me if you can and send me home for burial. My parents are Charles and A. M. Doty, Juniata, Neb. Just when the parents bids the family farewell and mentions a reason for the desire to die. It reads:

OMAHA, Neb., June 2, 1906.—Dear father, mother, brothers and sisters: I take this way of taking leave of you. I think it is best as I can never be well. Your loving son, Guy.

The letter to the Lincoln address was not opened. Stamps had been affixed to the out-of-town letters, but not to the one for the police. The man had evidently believed his clothing would be taken to Omaha and searched by the police on that side of the river. Just when the suicide took place could not be determined, but from the fact that the clothes were damp and had the appearance of having laid over night where found it is believed the plunge, if taken at all, was taken soon after the letters were written. No one has been found who remembers having seen anyone who might be the suicide.

Beside the letters mentioned there were also a number of letters from the parents in the pockets, which indicate he was at the private sanitarium of Dr. B. F. Bailey at Lincoln as late as April. Two photographs of a young woman, were also in the pockets.

Detective Weir, who made a search of the river bank in the vicinity of where the clothes were found, was unable to discover any footprints leading to the water edge. Marks in the sand showed where the man had divested himself of his shoes and from there prints of bare feet led to a spot about thirty feet distant, where the clothes had been placed in a clump of bushes and where they were subsequently found by Anderson.

The lack of footprints leading to the water edge leads to the belief that Doty after divesting himself of shoes and coat walked back onto the bridge, and then, if he went into the water at all, jumped from the bridge into deep water. Word was received by the police last night from Lincoln that someone from Dr. Bailey's sanitarium should be here today to assist in the search for the body. Doty was learned, was suffering from melancholia and had been placed in the sanitarium at the expense of his cousin, Miss Pearl Humphrey, to whom one of the letters found on him was addressed. At least this is what the police gathered from a talk over the telephone last evening with a person connected with the management of the Lincoln sanitarium.

WATER WORKS QUESTION NEXT

City Council Expected to Take

Definite Action Tonight.

The city council will hold its regular monthly session this evening. As far as is known the principal matter to come before the meeting is the recommendation of the special committee on water works that it be empowered to secure the services of a competent hydraulic engineer to compute the value of the present plant and form an estimate of the cost of constructing a new one.

That the recommendation will meet with some opposition is certain, as certain members of the city council are opposed to incurring any additional expense at this time in connection with the municipal ownership proposition. Those opposed to the employment of a high-priced engineer at this time favor proceeding further with the negotiations with the water works company. Definite action, however, one way or the other is looked for tonight.
