RANKS WITH WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN

Traits of Soldier-Statesman's Character That Made Him Great and Endeared Him to the Masses of His Countrymen.

(Fram a Staff Correspondent.) presence of a crowd which completely filled State university tonight delivered the an-'Ulysses 8 Grant." He declared after most distinguished of America's citizens. He gave Grant a higher place in the affecions of the people than do most of the historians, and in speaking of the death of Garfield and of Lincoln he said: "I doubt if on either occasion the genuine, deep lying sympathies of the American heart were aroused or chlisted as at the death of Grant" He said:

death of Grant." He said:

I am sure that our enthusiasm for him comes only to a little extent from the mere fact of his having been a successful chieftain. It has far deeper sources, and I think that the deepest of these are three. The first is his simple, genuine, unaffected manhood and manly excellence of character, free from pride and make-believe and assumption. Another deep source of his popularity was the conviction of General Grant's hearty, uncompromising patriotism. But what these this civil war here to our hearts most closely of all is the fact that he was the one who led our armies to final victory in the war.

As soldier clittens we need General Grant's prudence; we need his courage and endurance; especially do we need his seal. Let us adopt the great chieftain's form of war cry: "Ross, boodler, grafter, my enemy and the country's, I propose to move immediately upon thy works—in my ward, town, county, state, the nation, everywhere, to fight it out, against thee and all thy hosts, if it takes till death." And let us be true to the resolution.

Failure as Business Man.

In private business this remarkable personage, whom events showed to be a genius, one of the comparatively few quite phenomenal characters of history, was a total failure. His ill success in financial affairs toward the end of his life was not his first. In 1854 he tried farming, and, though his farm cost him nothing, though he was industrious, tolled with his own hands, sweating in the field from morning till night, and was economical and thrifty as well as a worker, he found it a continual struggle barely to support his family. The farm was named "Hardscrabble." He rented "Hardscrabble" and took hold of a real estate agency. Poorer still. He sought appointment as county engineer, but no one would indorse him. At last he secured a post in the custom house, but for some reason got through in a month. His brothers, well-to-do leather merchants in Galena, taking pity on him as a poor relative, it seems, gave him a place, which he was glad to accept, in their store, as salesman, porter and man of all work, at a salary of $600 a year. He carned his money but showed no ambition and bade fair to live and die poor, uninfluential and unknown. Failure as Business Man-Review Norfolk Hearing.

Lancaster County Assessment. County Assessor Miller reports the assessment this year in Lancaster county will materially advanced over the ment of last year, though he has not tabulated sufficient returns of his deputies to make any accurate estimate of what the total increase will amount to. The business houses in Lincoln show a very marked increase, some of the larger firms returning an assessment from $30,000 to 140,000 in excess of last year. The assessment of real estate will probably be increased only according to the improvements made, while personal property returns, the assessor says, are very satisfactory, showing a healthy increase.

The County Board of Equalization will meet June 22 in the afternoon to listen to protests from property owners against the overassessment of property. County Clerk Dawson, clerk of the board, has published his notices to taxpayers to appear or forever after hold their peace. Menderfer-Mickel.

Rourkes Bat Out Victory from Lincoln With

NILSSEN AND SANDERS SENT TO STABLE

Former is Wild and Latter is Touched Up Much Too Freely to, Insure the Right Kind of Results.

A typical crowd, 5,500, saw the Rourkes rounce the Saltpeters Sunday afternoon at Vinton street park by the score of 8 to.5 in a game which had every kind of ball known to fans. Several thousand had come to this beautiful city on the excursions to see the sights, and some of these took in the ball game and rooted for Lincoln, but it availed them naught, for the Ducklings were doomed to defeat, even if they did call on the renowned Pop Eyler to help them out. Sanders started to do the tossing for Omaha and he did well enough for two innings, when his balloon was seen to soar to the north. A single, two triples and a homer were too much for him, so Herman Long excused him for the rest of the afternoon and called in McNeeley, who held the Statesmen entirely safe for the balance of the game. But three scattered hits were made off Mac, and no two of these came in the same inning. Nilssen, the elongated youth who beat the Omaha team a year ago while pitching for the University of Nebraska and who admin-istered a like defeat this spring while pitching for the Union Pacific Shops team, was started out by Ducky. He lasted until ne was out in the third inning, but by that time the Rourkes had secured two in the second and two in the third, and Ducky sent him away and called upon Pop Eyler. One more was made before Pop retired the side and then he did pretty well until the fifth inning, when five hits were made in succession, netting but two runs because of poor base running.

Perring Lines Her Out.

After Lincoln had been blanked twice and Omaha came to bat in the second, Weich was hit in the slats and Dolan singled. Runkle sacrificed them on for a base apiece and Perring hit a stinger to Ducky, which he juggled around until Weich and Dolan had crossed the plate Lincoln made five in its half of the third. Sanders foolishly passed Nilssen while trying to strike him out and Fillman hit for three bases. Holmes was an easy out and Quillin hit one by Runkle. Ketchem flew to Runkle and then St. Louis Jack hit the ball over the left field fence for one of the longest hits ever recorded on the grounds. Collins followed with a triple and Howard muffed Barton's easy pop-up, letting Collins score.

Omaha made three runs with but one hit and tied the score in its half. After Carter had retired Howard walked, as did likewise Bassey. Welch's single brought in Howard and Dolan was hit with the ball, filling the bases. Bassey was forced in accident was caused by the bursting of a when Runkle walked and that was the last the assemblage saw of Mr. Nilssen. Perring hit a hard one to Pop, on which Welch scored and Gonding flew out to Ketchem. Two more were copped by Omaha in the fifth on five hits, one of them a double. the young women, the other occupants of In the seventh Bassey led off with a sinthe car, were badly bruised. Horse Race at Humboldt.

HUMBOLDT, Neb., June 10.—The city was filled up with strangers, Saturday rather unexpectedly to our citizens, many of whom were unaware that anything unusual was going on. The attraction proved to be a horse race between animals owned near Burchard and Du Bois over in Fawnee county. Each was backed by its home crowd, the face being pulled off here in order to be in neutral territory. The distance was three-eighths of a mile, and after a long pariey arrangements were completed and in the presence of a large crowd at the driving park. The Du Bois horse managed to win the money. The original purse was for 1390 a side, but was lessened somewhat before the race came off. However, interest was so intense and the two factions so bitter that it is estimated no less than $500 changed hands as the result of side bets. A seventy-five yard foot race between George Hammett of Pawnee City, and Sirene Sharp of Axtell, Kas., was also scheduled. It resulted in a tie. In a sixty-yard race at Summerfield, Kas., last week the Pawnee man won easily. Horse Race at Rumboldt,
