STATE UNIVERSITY SHORT ON CASH

Mayor Brown Denica Having Made Statement Regarding Action of Lumber Desters in Politics.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, June 12 .- (Soccial Telegram.) A mass meeting of the populists of the state, including members of the state ommittee and populist sympathizers to the total number of about twenty-five, met this afternoon in response to the call of hairman Meier and voted to become the tail to the democratic kite by fixing the cate of the populist state convention August 15 at Lincoln, the same day upon which the democrate will hold a convention. Those who were present expressed the belief the populists would be able to aweep the state at the fall election and both Bryan and Berge were eulogized, not another candidate for governor being mentioned. During the meeting Mr. Bergo remained out in front of the hotel and did hot once go to the meeting room. That he will get the populist nomination for governor not the least doubt was expressed by those who were at the meeting The basis of representation at the convention will be one delegate for every 160 votes cast for J. J. Points as a presidential elector in 1904 and one delegate at large from each county. This will make a convention of about $00 delegates if they all get here.

Denial from Mayor Brown.

The statement originating in the State that Mayor Brown of Lincoln said the lumber dealers would raise $40,000 to defeat Attorney General Norris Brown in his andidacy for the senate, is denied smphatically by Mayor Brown.

Suit Against Tabitha Home. Though asserting no fault was to be found with the present management of Tabitha home and that the present trustees had done more than could be expected of them in caring for the unfortunate inmates of that institution, Attorney General Brown today filed with the supreme court a petition asking for a judicial investigation of the affairs of the home and requesting if the investigation showed a reason for it, the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of the home. The attorney general filed the motion on his own motion, Governor Mickey refusing to permit the use of his name in the action. It is charged the home has been mismanaged and the reports demanded by the legal department the management are not satisfactory. As a reason for filing the petition Attorney General Brown mave out the following statement:

This suit is instituted for the purpose of securing a judicial investigation into the affairs and management of the Tabitha home. No fault is found with the present management. The present trustees have done all and more than could be expected.

POPULISTS FALL IN LINE under favorable circumstances, to care for the helpiess people and children in the home, and this suit in no way reflects on them. But a judgment by the court on the affairs of the institution is necessary in justice to the public which supports it and in justice to the state which is required by statute to make the inquiry.

Funeral Directors' Convention

Lincoln is being entertained today by the soberest crowd of visitors that has come this way in many moons. The aggregation is known as the Nebraska State Funeral Directors' association and even Walt Roberts is trying to keep down his smile and look sober-or rather in keeping with the occasion. There were quite a number of objections to assessments for their consideration, the one involving the greatest amount being that of the Standard Beet Sugar company. The deputy assessor raised the valuation of the plant at Leavitt $150,600 on account of the extensive improvements made last year, doubling the capacity of the factory. The company asks to have this entire increase cut off, leaving the valuation the same as last year. This increase is so much less than the amount given out as the cost of the improvements put in last season that it is possible the amount may be increased instead of low-ered or taken off entirely.

CONDITIONS PLACED ABOVE CRITICISM

Animal and Meat Inspection Pronounced Thorough and So Rigid as to Prevent Utilizing Diseased Product.

South Omaha packing houses are sweet and clean, and the sensational newspaper reports of conditions existing in packing plants in general are not true as far as the Magic city are concerned. In addition, BEATRICE—Charles Leopole of the Dempster factory had his wrist severely ut and the arteries severed while handling packers could not utilize diseased meat as a food product if they wished.

Such is the gist of a report made to the Omaha Commercial club at its meeting Tuesday by a committee appointed last week to investigate the packing houses. The report was accepted by the club and placed on file. It reads thus:

Each Animal Inspected.

Each Animal Inspected. During the process of slaughtering trained government veterinarians inspect carefully each animal. The moment the slightest appearance of disease appears the condemned animals are tagged with a special numbered government tag, the carcasses are then removed to a sidetrack for later and more thorough inspection. As the government inspectors have a careful record of all these numbered tags or rejected animals it is absolutely impossible for the packers to remove any of this diseased meat mais it is absolutely impossible for the packers to remove any of this diseased meat or use the same without the knowledge and collusion of the government officials. After the day's active work is over in the slaughtering department the government officials then make a minute investigation of the rejected animals, and if found diseased they are finally rejected. These rejected animals are either taken to the condemned tank, or if not of sufficient quantity to make a tank, are put in a special cold storage room reserved for this purpose, and are there placed under lock and key, and no one except the government officials have access to the same. As soon as a sufficient quantity of this rejected meathas been accumulated, the same is loaded into trucks and taken to the condemned tank. The outlet of this tank has previously been sealed with a numbered seal by the government inspector, and after all of the rejected meathas the heart of the rejected meathas the properties of the rejected meathas the rejected me viously been sealed with a numbered seal by the government inspector, and after all of the rejected meat has been loaded into the tank, together with other refuse, the inlet to the tank is also sealed in the same manner by the government inspector. After this tank has cooked for many hours the tank is unsealed by the same government official who sealed it and the contents examined. If found satisfactory the contents are drawn off and made into fertilizer.

Same Conditions for Years

Dr. Ayer, chief government inspector, stated that the department under his supervision continually makes suggestions for the sanitary betterment of the different packing plants under its supervision and that the the managers of these packing plants were always willing and prompt in making all improvements susgested or required by his department. Dr. Ayer also stated that the conditions which we found existing were exactly the same as those which had prevailed for years and that no special efforts were being made to clean up on account of the recent sensational newspaper reports regarding the sanitary con paper reports regarding the sanitary conditions existing at the packing houses.

Your committee also noted that all of the knives and other utersils used in cutting of meats were placed in receptacles for sterilizing in each instance after their use on rejected animals.

In a report of this character it is, of course, impossible to go into fine details, but in closing, your committee wishes to state emphatically that while the conditions may not be absolutely perfect, it would in our opinion be very difficult to improve them to any considerable extent in methods, in cleanliness and sanitation or in the character of the government inspection. As far as South Omaha is concerned, the sensational newspaper reports are certainly untrue and unfair, and we believe a deep and wrongful injury has been inflicted on a great and good industry and we think it is only right that the Commercial club should do everything in its power to give the actual and true facts to the public and the world at large with the same force and prominence that these untrue and lurid stories have been published broadcast. Mrs. McGraw's husband is said to left her after a short married life. The woman was quite prepossessing in appearance.
