The purpose of the postal congress is to organize, control, govern and regulate the delivery of international mails. The proposition to regulate this matter was first suggested oy Postmaster General Montgomery Blair in 1862, and was taken up at a meeting held at Paris in 1862 or 1863 when the postal international union was formed. This union became a trust and monopoly of necessity. It has its headquarters in Berne, Switzerland, and is governed by treaty regulations in which all civilized are located Minneapolis and St. Paul, regovernments participate. These meetings are held every four years, the first congreas being held at Berne in 1874, the next at Parls in 1878, the next at Lisbon in 1885, the next at Vienna in 1891, the next at Washington in 1897, and the last one is now being held at Rome. At this meeting fifty-two, countries are represented which have a population of 1,500,000,000." "I would like to correct a popular error

BRICKLAYERS ARE SCARCE Twenty-Five More Could Re Em#### ployed in Omaha on the Several Big Constructions.

Omaha is suffering from a dearth of bricklayers. Twenty-five more could be used in the city at present, and when brick work is begun on the M. E. Smith warehouse fifty more than are here now can find steady work. Scarcely a contractor in the city but is looking for brickmasons and is advertising for them in the papers of other cities. With this condition of affairs the contractors say the outlook is not bright for rapid progress on the new buildings on which construction is just being started. Bricklayers are needed on every building in the city, with the possible exception of the Parlin, Orendorff & Martin warehouse, and two big jobs are yet to come-the Smith warehouse and the United States Supply company's warehouse at Ninth and Farnam. The workmen are drawing 62% cents an hour. In no case will they allow themselves to be laid off on account of delays in securing material, but go at once to another job.
