BUSTER BROWN

My darling Buster I am very sorry I had to chastise you for your actions towards the Professor. We learn by experience that the older we grow the more we know—and you proved this to our friend. Now dear, you must do unto others, as you would have them do unto you; and learn the lesson I gave you. Kindness and good will towards ones fellow man, are two charitable qualities Life at its best is short, and it's nice to be nice to everybody while here. Your loving Mama

IF BUSTER WAS ALWAYS A GOOD BOY, OH WHAT JOY! OH WHAT JOY.

A SAILOR'S WIFE IS A SAILOR'S JOY—SHIP AHoy! SHIP AHoy!

My darling lovely Mama— In my memory I have made a note of your advice. I must admit, you made me feel as flat as the Professor did. The memories of your slippers are sharp ones, and I certainly need a rest. You can beat good time, and need never take music lessons to learn— as I know your scale of do, re, mi, fa, so, la, c, and you played beautifully on the piano, and it is now a lingering memory, and soothes—but yours does not. Your loving Buster Brown
