The controversy over the pipe line amendnent can be disposed of by the change n the commodity amendment. The change suggested would provide that railroads, in stead of "common carriers," shall not en-

June 30:

A coplous rain that was general over the state fell last night and today and did fnestimable benefit to the crops of the state, today states that the weather has been ideal for corn, affording excellent opportunity for killing out the weeds and illing the soil, but has not been beneficial to the small grain and hay crop. The straw of all grain will be short this year and the hay crop will be a trifle light because of the lack of rain. According to the bulletin the southern and western sections of the state have had less rain than the other portions and have suffered most and today will do an immense amount of good to the crops and there is every possibility that the grain will fill well and make a good yield.

the federal petit jury for the trial of Joseph Crow, ex-legislator, ex-postmaster and foreman of the federal grand jury of November, 1906, in the United States district court Tuesday morning. The jury as finally drawn consists of these persons;

Joseph Graham, farmer, Avoca; R. E. Cunningham, farmer, Weeping Water; Jacob Ehlers, farmer, Gretna; Albert Watkins, naurance agent, Lincoln; O. L. Potter, railway employe, Auburn; Arthur Temple, clerk, North Loup; Joseph Taylor, farmer, Benedict, John Bealer, retired farmer, Beatrice; Amandus Krause, sr., stone mason, West Point; Frank Neel, lumber merchant, Indianola; I. S. Leavitt, retired merchant, Omaha; L. F. Grimes, retired farmer, Sterling. The remainder of the panel of the petit Jury was excused for the Charge Against Crow. The charge against Mr. Crow is that he endeavored with the offer and giving of free railroad transportation to influence certain members of the federal grand jury of the November, 1906, term, of which body be was foreman, against bringing a true bill against Rev. George G. Ware, president of the U. B. I. Land and Cattle company, whose case was under investigation by the grand jury in the matter of alleged conspiracy with Frank W. Lambert and Harry Welsh in securing trandulent land filings within the U. B. I. ranch enclosures; that after such indictment, had been found against. Ware Crow moved for a reconsideration of the indictment and after the infictment had been returned Crow had talked with Lambert and Weish after these two had entered a plea of guilty and advised Lambert to connect with Ware at Deadwood. Lambert was to go to the Burlington office in Omahacand get transportaion to Deadwood and it is charged Lambert did secure such transportation on the advice of Crow. Attorneys for the government charged that it was at Crow's suggestion and advice that Harry Welsh withdrew his original plea of guilty and entered a plea of not guilty. However, Welsh subsequently withdrew this ples of not guilty and re-entered the plea of guilty.

Line of the Defense. The presentation of the attorneys for the determe was in effect that the mere fact that Crow had been thatrumental in securing passes and transportation for the members of the grand jury was in no wise an offense, and that his conversations with Lambert and Welsh were after the grand jury had adjourned and that Crow was stifled in acting as advising attorney for Lambert, if he felt so disposed. The defense would also show that it was another member of the grand jury that took Lanibert to Crow's office and that Lambert had been so hounded by detectives and secret service agents that he went to Crow as an attorney for advice of his own volition. The first witness summoned for the coscoution was United States District Clerk Hoyt, who merely testified as to the members of the grand jury of 1906 and the records pertaining to the indictment of Ware, Lambert and Welsh. William Barge, a stant cashler of the bank at Bloomfield, was the next witness. He testified that he was a member of the grand jury of November, 1906. He stated There will be no contest. At this point Frank Ransom, one of the attorneys for Crow, objected on the presence of the witness, in referring to ground that even the government had no Mr. Ware, "that it is too bad to have an right to go into the secrets of the grand in order to make a case against an official of that grand jury. The point lows. The Weekly Crop Bulletin, issued by was one upon which the attorneys for the defense wished to be heard and an P. C. adjournment was taken until 1:15 p. m. for argument.

The contention of the government on this point is that the prosecution has the perfect right to go high the secrets of the grand jury room to show that a crime has been committed. Judge Munger overruled the objection nade by Ransom. The concluding part of the testimony of

It is believed that the rain of last night Mr. Barge was to the effect that the Ware case was not finally disposed of until after the several jurymen had returned from their recess vacation to their homes, and for which free transportation had been furnished through Crow's influence: 'The wit-Miss Stella DeZellum, the li-year-old girl ness was not furnished free transportation who yesterday tried to commit suicide with at the final adjournment of the grand jury, but paid his own railroad fare to his

He added, however, that after the adjournment of the grand jury Crow asked him if he would like to take a trip to Colorado and Crow did secure him the transportation for such a trip, free of cost o the witness. Crow said in the grand fury room just prior to the final vote on the Ware indictment, in regard to the old soldiers that were testifying in the case, "that he did not want to see them get into trouble." It was the opinion of the itness that it was Robert Duncan, another nember of the grand jury, who made the motion for a reconsideration of the vôte on the Ware indictment.

W. A. Lehr, a farmer of Mead, also member of the grand jury, testified that Crow furnished him free transportation over the Union Pacific to go to his home upon Lehr's solicitation. He told further now he had made a mistake and gone to the wrong depot for his pass and that the agent endorsed on the note Crow had sent with the request for transportation that he had better study up on geography The Ware case was talked of in the jury

Crow had said in Wilness had talked to Crow about the the jury room that "the case against indictment against Ware, both in the grand Ware was all bosh and there was nothing to it," and Crow added: "With the old soldiers at one end of it and a minister sufficient to find a true bill against Mr. of the gospel at the other end it was conclusive evidence that there was nothing to the case." Crow further stated in the innocent man punished and deprived of Hunter of St. Paul were other members of the grand jury who testified. Mr. Sansel said on one occasion he asked the attorney general that the jury be furnished a copy of the statutes when Crow Interposed and said: "What'n the devil do you want with the statutes?" I said: "That's my business. Frank W. Lambert was then called to the stand, but before he began to testify Mr. Gurley, attorney for the defense, objected to the competency of the witness because of the fact that the witness is a self-confessed criminal, having pleaded guilty to conspiracy. The court decided that a judgment must be shown on a plea of guilty before a witness can be disqualified. Pending the examination of Lambert an adjournment was taken until Wednesday faced with it is about as good an outcome as could be expected. De Armond Satirical.

Mr. DeArmond (Mo.) paid a tribute to the minority members of the agriculture committee, Mr. Lamb (Va.), Mr. Chandler (Miss.), and Mr. Bowie (Als.), whom be thought ought to have a "whiff of the odor from the boquets tossed about." He said this gentleman had demonstrated in connection with the matter of devotion of public duty, as well as a comprehension of it, which will entitle them to the gratitude of their constituents as well as the good wishes of the United States.

With fine sarcasm Mr. De Armond said it would be an awful injustice to compel a millionaire packer, through whose estab lishments the agents of the government went, compelled to swath their noses and clothes with disinfectants, to save a cents for the inspection of a beef and 8 cents for a hop or sheep in order that his prodicis might go through interstate and foreign commerce and be sold. Satirically he said that would be an outrage. Mr. Adams (Wis.), whose efforts to bring about harmony between conflicting interests has been crowned with success, closed the debate. The amendment was then adopted. Mr. Wadsworth's motion to send the bil a conference was then agreed to, with the single dissenting vote of Mr. De Armond. The speaker appointed as conferees Mr. Wadsworth, Mr. Scott and Mr. Lever
