(From a Staff Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, June 28 .- (Special Telegram.)-The senate today passed the omnibus public building appropriation bill, decreasing appropriations in some instances, but through the efforts of Senator Millard A complete stock of Tollet Goods from of Nebraska came out of the melee considerably to the good. The senate raised the appropriation for the government building at Kearney from $65,000 to $55,000, and for York, from $65,000 to $70,000. The senator injected an entirely new item into the bill appropriating $8,00 with which to buy the lots adjoining the government building at Nebraska City. In this campaign it is not necessary for the friends of Mr. Rosewater to belittle any opposing candidates or to say anything that would arouse a prefudice that might endanger the person who by chance may become the nominee for the republican party. Senator Millard has been my banker and friend. I respect his ability and have considence in him and would like to favor him. Nortis Brown was my old schoolmate twenty-five years ago. I feel for him that affection that we always feel for the friends of our childhood. I feel as though I am a part owner of the honors that an appreciative public has bestowed upon him. But, I am impelled to support Mr. Rosewater because I feel that it is the duty of the republican politicians to give the people of the state an opportunity to use the best taient. (Applause.)

Sentiments of the West,

give the people of the state an opportunity to use the best talent. (Applause.)

Sentimenta of the West.

Of late we have been hearing a great deal in the cast about western sentiment, the demands of the west. The cowboy president is sometimes criticised in the east as having imbled too much of this western sentiment in his early years, and when we begin to analyze the terms to find what is meant by Western sentiment, the demand of the west, and such like phrases, I find that it means those ideas which for thirty or forty years, and I do not know how many more. Mr. Rosewater has advocated. It was before my day, but for many years if has found utterance in the columns of The Bee. (Applause.)

The eastern statesman wanting to post himself in regard to western sentiment and western ideas and western aspirations, gets in ideas from what Mr. Rosewater has written and spoken. His paper has been the representative of our typical western ideas. I do not with to speak disparagingly of other papers in the west, but nearly all of them have found, their instruction and financial assistance from institutions that had their headquarters in the ceast and have never correctly spoken the ideas of the west. That has found utterance in The Ornaha Bee alone. Not only so, but there is not a statesman in the United States of national influence that has not sought the acquaintance of Mr. Rosewater, in order to put himself in touch with western ideas and western sentiment. I have been with him in Washington, and found him better acquaited than the meiobers of he senate there with the department officials. I found there, that every man of note, who I had heard of as having great influence throughout the land knew Mr. Rosewater, and was delighted to hear such doctrines from this representative western man. In everything which the west particularly needs, he is our natural and logical representative. There has not been alwocating for years have today become the accepted ideas of the maion. The president is justly beloved for the work tha

Tariff and Other Issues.

In the matter of the tariff, the interests of the people of the west and the people of the west and the people of the east are not in all respects identical. The making of a tariff is a complicated problem. The people of Nebraska should be represented when a tariff bill is being offered by a person who knows the needs of our people and the condition of our state, and a man who is willing and able to fight when the fight comes; who will assert himself whenever it is right to assert himself, who has ability enough to make himself heard and who knows the facts so that what he says always receives consideration. We have no men in the east as such a time that we could rely upon with such implicit confidence as our friend. Mr. Rosewater. (Loud applause.)

Another matter that has come up. I notice that Mr. Gomper's letters advaing significant looks as though they were toying with the leaders of the democratic party. Any person who has studied the conditions of the United States must know that the laboring men cannot frust the democrate as long as the southern democrate dominate that party. The laboring man in the south is distranchised, intimidated and coerced in all his civic rights. As long as the southern congressmen and senators can be elected to these high offices without receiving a single vote from the laboring man, as long as these mon dominate the policy of the democratement of the subsection of the longer party. The laboring man is the southern congressmen and senators can be elected to these high offices without receiving a single vote from the laboring man, as long as these mon dominate the policy of the democratement of the pol how they tolk, they are unsafe for the laboring man to ally himself with Mr. Rosswater is on personal, intimate and friendly relations with all the leaders of organised labor in the United States. He has been a constant friend of labor and they all know it. There is not in the United States senate today a single man who would be as influential in holding the organized labor organizations of this country either neutral or in harmony with the republican party as Mr. Rosswater. (Applause.)

They may that Mr. Rosswater is domineering, opinionated, and will not brook opposition. That things must go his way of they do not go. I have never found that assertion to be justified. No person, however, can say that he ever has an opinion that is not based upon particular information and long study. But, however the may be, humorous flights are very frequently closely connected with his greatest efforts. Lincoln's stories that are some times criticised were closely associated with his bright humor, and carried him safely through many trying times. Bob lugersoll referred to Conkling as being to imperious to stoop and too proud to do a wrong. In these days who wants a man to represent the state of Nobraska that receives his opinions ready made and does the bidding of any other man except as he hears the voice of the people of his state? (Applause.)

One of the most unpromising things of the time is the ability manifested by members of congress and even of United States senate to receive counsel of any man who desired to counsel with him. I would also expect him to give his counsel to any man who desired to counsel with him. I would also expect him to give his counsel to any man who desired to receive counsel of any man who desired to receive counsel of any man of that character we do not need to any man who desired to receive counsel of any man who desired to receive counsel with him. I would also expect him he has given to the people of this state for the last forty years. When you have a man of that churacter we do not need

Other Speakers Well Received. Mr. Cornish was followed by Robert Cowell, who gave a clear-cut statement of the origin and progress of the movement favor of Mr. Rosewater for senator W. J. Connell urged that the judges of the primary be impressed with their duty to see that every qualified voter has a fair opportunity for expressing his choice for of the eighty-three delegates to be elected. David Anderson of South Omaha also made a feww well-received remarks and the meeting then resolved itself into a series of reports from the different wards and outlining of campaign work.

There will be a meeting of the Second ward republicans in favor of Mr. Rosewater's candidacy tonight at Nineteenth and Vinton streets. Tenth ward riends of Mr. Rosewater will meet tonight at Metz hall on South Thirteenth street and Twelfth ward friends of Mr. Rosewater will meet at Idlewild hall, Twenty-fourth and Grant streets, Saturday evening.

YELLOW JOURNALISM GETS ITS REWARD

Slabaugh Passes Sentence on Weight of Junior Yellow's Verneity When He Dismisses

The court officers of Douglas county passed sentence on yellow journalism Thursday morning when James Diggs, the colored man charged with the murder. February 22, of Frank E. Wheeler, was dismissed for lack of evidence against him. Soon after the arrest of Diggs the junior yellow, in a characteristic fake interview. quoted Mrs. Wheeler, held with Diggs, as confessing Diggs committed the deed. The woman soon proved to the satisfaction of the authorities that the interview was the purest tissue of falsehoods and the matter was then and there dismissed as too trivial to bother with in the real investigation of County Attorney Slabaugh dismissed the information against Diggs. Failure to connect Diggs with the crime leaves the state up in the air for a theory, except for one clue which is now being investigated.

County Attorney Slabaugh said he had received a tip through a colored man that the person who killed Wheeler was one of the men who shot Banker Frank T. Clarke while trying to hold him up on Chicago street about two weeks after the Wheeler murder. Judge Slabaugh said he was investigating the story of the colored man, but he did not know whether there was anything to it or not. He would not dissuss the details of the story nor indicate who, if any one, was under suspicion. It was reported that Harrison Clark, who is under sentence of death for the murder of Street Car Conductor Flury, had told persons in the county jail that Clarence Gathright, who is serving a twenty-year sentence for the Flury murder, was gullty of the Wheeler murder. County Attorney Slabaugh, however, denied that Clark was his informant. Clark also denied to a reporter that he had any information about the Diggs case, except that Diggs, who was Clark's cellmate at the jail, had denied his guilt to Clark.

Details of Wheeler Case. charged, no evidence having been found to

Shortly after the arrest of Diggs and Mrs Wheeler the junior yellow published one of its fake interviews with Mrs. Wheeler in which it was claimed she confessed the guilt of Diggs. The story was denied by Mrs. Wheeler and was discredited by all the officials who had anything to do with the case. From the time of their arrest both Mrs. Wheeler and Diggs have "stood pat" and refused to admit they knew anything about the crime.
