

THE OMAHA SUNDAY BEE

E. ROSEWATER, EDITOR.

Entered at Omaha Postoffice as second class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

Daily Bee (without Sunday), one year, $4.00. Daily Bee and Sunday, one year, $5.00. Sunday Bee, one year, $2.00.

DELIVERED BY CARRIER.

Daily Bee (including Sunday), per week, 17c. Daily Bee (without Sunday), per week, 12c. Evening Bee (without Sunday), per week, 10c. Evening Bee (with Sunday), per week, 12c.

ADVERTISING RATES.

One insertion, per line, 10c. One month, $2.50. Three months, $7.00. Six months, $12.50. One year, $22.00.

REMITTANCES.

Remit by draft, express or postal order payable to The Bee Publishing Company.

STATEMENT OF CIRCULATION.

Table with columns for dates and circulation numbers. Total circulation for July 7, 1906, is 25,150.

C. C. ROSEWATER, General Manager. M. B. HUNTING, Business Manager.

WHEN OUT OF TOWN.

Subscribers leaving the city temporarily should have The Bee mailed to them. Address will be changed as often as required.

Asiatic cholera has been added to the white man's burdens in the Philippines.

"Hoch der Kaiser" is the title by which the governor of Kansas is now known.

When will Pat Crowe cease to figure in the Omaha papers? When Gabriel blows his horn before daylight.

The Balkan states are progressing. With a "tariff war" in full swing the guerrilla partisans will find little use for their rifles.

To the Nebraska farmer it does not matter which of the Iowa railroads cuts the grain rate so long as he gets the benefit of the cut.

Judging by the water graves of three Illinois recruits, swimming should be one of the essential courses in naval reserve training.

Unfortunately for the exhibit of the work of Irishmen in America to be shown at Dublin it is impossible to take our railroads across the Atlantic.

In the case of Mayor Rose of Kansas City the Kansas supreme court has an opportunity to make several Colorado decisions respectable by comparison.

Secretary Wilson will spend his "vacation" visiting the packing houses. Incidentally he will inspect the "slaughter house" at Des Moines August 1.

New Zealand is the latest to ask a reciprocity law with the United States. It should show its wares, as Uncle Sam is inherently opposed to trading "sight unseen."

After having prepared literature for immigrants library experts should not be surprised if the newly arrived citizens exercise their American privilege of reading what they please.

In placing the new premier in charge of the War department the Spanish king evidently wanted to give him a position where he could devote the greater part of his time to his higher functions.

The United States may claim that the appointment of an ambassador to Constantinople is a mark of friendship to Turkey, but the sultan will be pardoned if he sees in the act a new way to collect old debts.

Judge Hunt of St. Paul is evidently displeased with the United States atorney of that district, since he has started trouble for him by sentencing officers of government land to twenty-four hours in jail.

If all shippers knew that Chicago packing houses were securing railway concessions as alleged by railroad lawyers, the question arises: Do the packers know whether other shippers receive similar favors?

According to the Baltimore American, a "Bryan sitting silent in his Nebraska hermitage is not conceivable." Coming from the Maryland clam bunks this conception of Bryan is quite natural. But Bryan is not a clam.

If advocates of the existing order in Germany are sincere in their belief that socialism is the result of ignorance they should hail with delight the establishment of schools by that party, but it will be long before such schools can expect aid from the state.

INSURING POPULAR CHOICE.

Talk still continues in some quarters of an attempt to get the republican state convention to pass the nomination of a candidate for United States senator, notwithstanding its inclusion in the call.

The democrats might ask the people to follow them blindly, because consistency is never expected from Nebraska democrats.

The preliminary step toward the consolidation of the machinery of county and city government has been taken by the abolition of the offices of city treasurer and tax commissioner.

NEW NATURALIZATION LAW.

There is a very broad line of demarcation between the right of every man to better his own condition and that of his family by emigration and the right of the immigrant to citizenship in the country of his adoption.

The new naturalization law recently enacted by congress was primarily designed to check and prevent fraudulent naturalization and incidentally to raise the standard of American citizenship.

The annual report of the Henry Phipps Institute for the Study, Treatment and Prevention of Tuberculosis, an elaborate document of 480 pages, beyond its value to physicians and specialists, is important to the general public for the practical and easily comprehensible lessons which it enforces.

The International Federation of Commercial Travelers, which has just held its seventh annual convention at Put-In-Bay Island, has adopted a resolution declaring for a flat 2-cent passenger rate to the traveling public.

The decision of a New York court that there are two varieties of conspiracy against the United States, only one of which is punishable by imprisonment, is another of those judicial pronouncements which cause people to wonder if all men are equal before the law—in some courts.

Designers of ships would be more likely to respond to the invitation of Secretary Bonaparte if the new 20,000-ton battleship did not depend for its construction upon the future approval of those plans by congress.

The old adage, that corporations have no souls to damn and no bodies to kick may have to be revised if the federal courts persist in the rigid enforcement of the anti-rebate law upon the railroads.

Revelations of inside operations by the Russian cabinet show that the bureaucracy was no more anxious to preserve the financial reputation of population. This result has been mainly achieved by the agitation for clean living, good food, fresh air, thorough sanitation and to some extent segregation of consumptives.

The movement for sanitary and hygienic precautions in food supply could hardly be better marked than by the passage in the Chicago city council of a comprehensive ordinance for regulation of the 6,000 restaurants in that city.

The prompt protest of the newspaper press of New York, as well as of the country generally, against the adroit suggestions of acquittal of a rich murderer under the "unwritten law" put forth by his friends and sympathizers, is a welcome sign of prevailing common sense.

The wholesome demand is becoming stronger every day that Thaw be tried strictly under the only law there is, namely, the law of the land written plainly on the statute book and binding on all alike.

Twenty-five years ago the fabrication of double-headed had become a fine art in Nebraska and a republican state convention that did not boast from five to twenty-five double-headed was considered very tame.

The ice trust of Philadelphia pleads that it didn't "make any money" last year selling ice at 42 a ton.

Chicago educational circles are in a state of hysteria over the latest poetic gem printed in a school text book.

When a Miss Welloch is broken, is it the relations between you still friendly? "I should say not! The relations between us are very relations, and they're my bitter enemies."—Chicago Tribune.

"Why do you insist on knowing how your husband passes every minute of his time?" "I don't insist on knowing," answered Mrs. Wise. "I merely insist on his telling me some sort of a story about it. It makes conversation."—Washington Star.

"Estelle—Oh, dear! Jack wants me to marry him at once and you know I can't do that. What shall I tell him?" "Mabelle—Tell him it is impossible on account of your numerous engagements."—Philadelphia Press.

"Hurry 'em there," screamed the lady. "I've no time to waste. I have an engagement to keep." "Yes, ma'am," responded the frustrated druggist. "What is it?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Will you be my wife, Jane?" "Will you ask me again, John?" "Why?" "Because I'd like to look round a little before I give you the direct answer."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"I don't believe you love me." "I haven't I had my life insured in your favor?" "Yes, but I don't believe you mean to die."—Cleveland Leader.

"Why do you object to my marrying your daughter, sir?" "Because you can't support her in the style to which she has been accustomed all her life." "How do you know I can't? I can start her on bread and milk, same as you did."—Pittsburg Post.

Charles Buxton going in McClure's. "But, Lord," she said, "my shoulders still are aching. I had my load so long; I have been used to bear the load so long; and now, the hill is passed, and smooth the road." "Let," said the stranger, "yield me now thy load."—Pittsburg Post.

Gently he took it from her, and she stood straggled and little, in new-found maidenhood.

Amid long, sunlit fields, around them sprang a tender breeze, and birds and rivers sang.

"My, Lord," she said, "the land is very fair!" Smiling, he answered: "Was it not so there?"

"There?" In her voice a wondering question. "Was I not always here, then, as today?" He turned to her with strange, deep eyes aflame. "Knowest thou not this kingdom, nor my name?"

"Nay," she replied, "but that I understand." "That thou art Lord of Life in this dear land!"

"Yes, child," he murmured, scarce above his breath; "Lord of the Land, but men have named me Death."

Open a Charge Account with Mandelberg

DIAMONDS ON CREDIT WEAR THEM NOW—PAY ME LATER Straight From the Shoulder Talk

The only kind that interests either of us. That's my way of doing business—straight from the shoulder. I sell DIAMONDS, WATCHES, SILVERWARE, CUT GLASS and RICH JEWELRY ON EASY PAYMENTS.

A. Mandelberg Omaha's Leading Jeweler 1522 Farnam St.

SERMONS BOILED DOWN.

Fear and fret make life's friction. Heaven helps those who help others. Heaven despairs of the man who despises men. True religion nourishes the roots of right doing.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

He—I believe you are ready to marry the first man who comes along. She—You have no right to say so. And she threw a strong accent on the "you."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"You astonish me. Your engagement with Miss Welloch is broken, is it?" "The relations between you still friendly?" "I should say not! The relations between us are very relations, and they're my bitter enemies."—Chicago Tribune.

"Why do you insist on knowing how your husband passes every minute of his time?" "I don't insist on knowing," answered Mrs. Wise. "I merely insist on his telling me some sort of a story about it. It makes conversation."—Washington Star.

"Estelle—Oh, dear! Jack wants me to marry him at once and you know I can't do that. What shall I tell him?" "Mabelle—Tell him it is impossible on account of your numerous engagements."—Philadelphia Press.

"Hurry 'em there," screamed the lady. "I've no time to waste. I have an engagement to keep." "Yes, ma'am," responded the frustrated druggist. "What is it?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Will you be my wife, Jane?" "Will you ask me again, John?" "Why?" "Because I'd like to look round a little before I give you the direct answer."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"I don't believe you love me." "I haven't I had my life insured in your favor?" "Yes, but I don't believe you mean to die."—Cleveland Leader.

"Why do you object to my marrying your daughter, sir?" "Because you can't support her in the style to which she has been accustomed all her life." "How do you know I can't? I can start her on bread and milk, same as you did."—Pittsburg Post.

Charles Buxton going in McClure's. "But, Lord," she said, "my shoulders still are aching. I had my load so long; I have been used to bear the load so long; and now, the hill is passed, and smooth the road." "Let," said the stranger, "yield me now thy load."—Pittsburg Post.

Gently he took it from her, and she stood straggled and little, in new-found maidenhood.

Amid long, sunlit fields, around them sprang a tender breeze, and birds and rivers sang.

"My, Lord," she said, "the land is very fair!" Smiling, he answered: "Was it not so there?"

"There?" In her voice a wondering question. "Was I not always here, then, as today?" He turned to her with strange, deep eyes aflame. "Knowest thou not this kingdom, nor my name?"

"Nay," she replied, "but that I understand." "That thou art Lord of Life in this dear land!"

"Yes, child," he murmured, scarce above his breath; "Lord of the Land, but men have named me Death."

PIANO BUYERS Cannot Get too Much Information

Get all the information you can before buying a piano. At no other place can you get so much as at our piano store. If you buy of a manufacturer you have generally to choose the one piano that he makes.

A. HOSPE CO. 1513 Douglas Street OMAHA, NEB. You Buy Right When You Buy Here.