MRS. THAW TAKES CHARGE

Prisoner's Mother Again Employs Attorney. Discharged by Her Son. LONG TALK WITH BOY IN TOMBS. Probability that Defense Will Be Based on Plea of Insanity—Young Man Has Nothing to Say.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Immediately following her interview with her son, Harry K. Thaw, in the Tombs today, Mrs. William Thaw assumed full charge of the defense and arranged to retain the services of counsel at the firm of Black, Cloutier, Gruber and Young, which was dismissed by appointing Thaw a few days ago. This action is taken to mean that Harry Thaw's desire and opinions regarding the defense will be ignored and that reliance will be placed on the plea of insanity, insistence on which by Mr. Cloutier resulted in the rupture between himself and his client. Whether an application will be made for the appointment of a commission on lunacy to determine young Thaw's mental condition will probably be determined at a conference to be held by Mrs. Thaw and the counsel tomorrow.

The meeting between Mrs. Thaw and her son at the Tombs was an affecting one. After the first greeting they were left alone together to converse through the bars of the cell for half an hour. During the interview the prisoner's wife stood in silence in the corridor a few feet away from the cell, door waiting her turn to speak with her husband. No words were exchanged between Mrs. Thaw and her daughter-in-law.

From the Tombs Mrs. Thaw was driven directly to the office of Lawyer Carl George L. Carnegie, who is the latter's country lawyer at Roslyn, Long Island. Mrs. Thaw sees her son. Mrs. William Thaw of Pittsburgh paid a visit to her son, Harry K. Thaw, in the Tombs prison today, which he is a prisoner, accused of the murder of Stanford White. Mrs. Thaw, who arrived from Europe Saturday, was unable to visit her son on Saturday. Went to the prison, accompanied by Josiah C. Thaw and A. R. Peabody, mother of Thaw's counsel.

Mrs. Thaw's arrival at the Tombs was preceded by that of Harry Thaw's wife, Evelyn. But the latter upon ascertaining that Mrs. William Thaw had not yet visited the Tombs declared that she desired her husband's mother to have the first opportunity of seeing the prisoner. The younger Mrs. Thaw then retired to the consulting room to await Mrs. Thaw's arrival.

Before Mrs. William Thaw reached the prison her son's new counsel, Clifford W. Harbridge, called on Francis J. Lantry, the commissioner of corrections, and endeavored to make arrangements so that Mrs. Thaw might visit her son in the consulting room at the Tombs instead of talking with him through the bars of the cell, but Mr. Lantry instructed the warden that he could make no exception to the prison rules in Mrs. Thaw's case.

Police Clear Road. The mother reached the prison shortly before noon. In the meantime a large crowd had gathered about the entrance to the prison. Mrs. Thaw stopped at the door, but the bystanders pressed forward so closely that the police had difficulty in making a line through them to permit Mrs. Thaw to pass into the prison.

Mrs. Thaw was met at the door by the prison warden, who told her that it would be necessary for her to comply with the prison rule that all visitors must be searched. Mrs. Thaw then retired to the room of the Tombs matron, Josiah W. Thaw and Mr. Peabody escorted her to the corridor in which Harry Thaw's cell is located and then withdrew after she had thanked them. Mrs. Thaw then made her way alone to cell No. 29 and greeted her son for the first time since he shot Stanford White.

As Mrs. Thaw reached the cell of her son it was seen that her daughter-in-law had left the consulting room and gone to the cell of her husband. When the young wife saw the mother approaching she slowly backed away from the cell to a spot some fifteen feet down the corridor. There was no sign of recognition between the two. On the mother's arrival at the cell keeper John Smith said that she was somewhat feeble and opened the door of Thaw's cell to get the stool on which she might sit during the interview with her son. The mother, not knowing the rules of the prison, upon seeing the door opened rushed forward to her son. In an instant both her arms were clasped around the neck of her son while he with bent head clasped his mother in his breast. Tears streamed from the eyes of both mother and son. There ensued a few minutes' alliance, broken only by the mother's cry, "My boy, my boy."

Visit Lovers Thirty Minutes. Keeper Smith stood with his back turned for a short time, and then informed Mrs. Thaw that the prison rules allowed visitors to talk to prisoners only with bars separating them. The mother stepped out of the cell, while Smith shut the door and turned the key once more on Thaw. A small stool was then placed in front of the cell and Mrs. Thaw took her seat on it and continued talking to her son for about half an hour. She then kissed her son through the iron bars and was taken downstairs, where she was joined by Josiah C. Thaw, who had been waiting for her in the consulting room.

The largest crowd since Thaw was first taken to the Tombs had assembled in the street outside and the police made a narrow passage way through it for Mrs. Thaw to reach her carriage. Her driver was compelled to force a way through the crowd, which fairly blocked the street. While the elder Mrs. Thaw was in conversation with her son, his wife, Evelyn, remained seated in the corridor, about fifteen feet away from the cell, where she could see mother and son without being seen.

EXPERT TO CHECK ACCOUNTS

At Dahman's Solicitation Council Agrees to Employ Skilled Book Man. ZIMMAN OPPOSES THE PROPOSITION. Insists that Comptroller Lohbeck's Qualifications Call for Such Work and He Should Do It.

Urged by Mayor Dahman, the general council committee yesterday afternoon agreed to employ an expert accountant to check over the fiscal affairs of the city during the terms of the last incumbents. Councilman Zimman opposed the move on the ground that the comptroller is deemed an expert accountant by the charter and should be competent both to devise proper systems of auditing and to execute them. He said he was willing to endorse any improvements that could be made, but did not believe it proper to hire outside assistance until the comptroller had admitted that he was unable to do the work. Even if the comptroller, personally, did not have the ability to do the work properly, Zimman said he had authority to employ men who were capable.

Besides checking up the books of all departments handling money, the expert is to help devise better checking schemes, except that for the treasurer's office, which is supposed to be as nearly perfect as is possible to devise. Mayor Dahman wishes to hire his old friend, J. M. Gilchrist, as the expert. Others of various parties and callings also would like the job. No definite arrangements were made toward selecting the man.

Rather Delicate Matter. It was a delicate matter for Mayor Dahman and the democratic councilmen to explain why an expert was needed and at the same time not display lack of confidence in the ability of their political associate, Comptroller Lohbeck. Councilman McGovern, at one time, in response to Zimman's arguments, called attention to the fact that the comptroller's office had approved the police court records June 19, when a shortage of $284 occurred back over that period to the first of the year. Zimman retorted that the comptroller at all times had authority to prove the auditing system and make sure it was handled properly. The mayor said it was clear the police court books had not been properly checked.

At the end of the conference Mayor Dahman asked what had been done towards securing $1 gas. He was told that the gas company in substance had declined to make the concession. The mayor urged action, declaring that if the company would not agree to the price another plant must be built which would.

Street Car Transfers. Considerable argument was spent over the ordinance defining the points at which street car transfers are to be made and conditions. A bare majority favored the ordinance in opposition to that of Bridges, which simply commands "universal" transfers and makes no specifications. Bridges, Zimman, Jackson, Johnson and Hansen contended that if the plan the traction company was willing to agree to really granted transfers at all intersections there was no need for the Brucker ordinance. The latter finally was approved by the majority. Objections to it were found in the fact that it makes hard and fast rules as to routes that must be used and is likely to cause confusion and the dissipation of extra nickels thereby. It limits one transfer to a fare, except for stub lines, and the transfer must be called for when the fare is paid.

As an offset to this, Zimman tried to have action taken on his ordinance calling for twenty-five tickets for $1. He made a talk repeating arguments he has made in the past, but nothing was done. Zimman's ordinance to bar fakirs and vendors of medicines, novelties, patent articles and various other species of mountebanks and gruffers from the streets, and prescribing a $10 a day penalty for licenses for such affairs on private property was agreed to. Councilmen Brucker and Blodgett give notice that they proposed to introduce a bill to put downtown auction rooms out of business. These establishments they characterized as simply blindam games for the luckless greenhorn.

TAGGART WINS FIRST ROUND

Judge Buskirk holds that State is Not Entitled to Injunction. HOTEL COMPANY'S DEMURRER SUSTAINED. Attorney General Miller at Once Serves Notice of an Appeal to the Supreme Court.

PAOLI, Ind., July 16.—Judge Thomas Buskirk, in the Orange county court today sustained the third section of the demurrer of the French Lick Springs and West Baden Hotel companies against the petition in quo warranto of the state for a temporary restraining order and temporary injunction against gambling at the resorts. In this third section the hotel companies set up that the allegations of the state in its complaint do not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against them. He overruled the two sections of the demurrer in which they assert the prosecution, in which they assert the prosecution, in which they assert the prosecution.

Judge Buskirk's Decision. In this decision Judge Buskirk says: Injunction is asked for in this case, but only as an incident to the main action, which is for a forfeiture of the corporate franchise. An injunction may be granted to restrain acts or proceedings which are the further order of the court, but to entitle the party, state or individual, for the state has no greater right to have such an injunction granted than the individual who complains of an act or omission for such injunction must be shown to be necessary to prevent such an act or omission from being done, and that the act or omission is in violation of the plaintiff's rights. There are no such averments in the information filed in this case.

Sanitation Kills Negroes. West Indian Laborers Unable to Stand American Standard of Living. SPANIARDS MAKE THE BEST WORKMEN. European Laborers Being Their Families to Canal Zone and Live Well While Digging the Big Ditch.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Perfect sanitation and cleanliness are proving fatal to the West Indian negroes employed on the Panama canal. Although Colonel Gorras and his assistants have banished yellow fever and other tropical fevers which made the canal zone one large burying ground for the French canal builders, they have found that sanitary precautions taken in the quarters occupied by workmen make the Jamaican negroes especially susceptible to pneumonia and other throat and lung troubles. West Indians are not accustomed to an abundance of fresh air and well ventilated, clean quarters. Living for generations in small huts, where large families crowded into rooms tightly closed against the night air, the negroes from Jamaica and other tropical islands have developed lungs with cramped capacity and especially susceptible to changes of temperature. The officers in charge have found that the West Indian laborers cannot be induced to eat sufficient wholesome food to keep them in good health, even when supplies are furnished to them at cost price and meals are made attractive at great expense to the canal commission.

A revolver was found beside the body of Kloss and the police believe he committed the crime.
