James P. Connolly, who is to manage the men's furnishing department of the new O'Donahoe-Redmond-Normile store, is back from New York, where he went, with T. P. Redmond, John Normile and John E. Hitwo excursion steamers off Robbin's Reef. The steamboat Thomas Patten, loaded down with 700 people from Pleasure Bay to New York, ran down the Coney Islandbound steamer, Perseus, with 1,200 passengers, in a dense fog. The Patten crashed into the Perseus under full headway, cutting a V-shaped hole in the side of the Perseus just forward of the paddlewheel on the port side. Both vessels were badly damaged and began to sink rapidly. A scene of wild excitement and panic followed. Distress whistles were blown and in about fifteen minutes the municipal ferryboat Bronx, preceded by smaller boats, appeared and by a clever maneuver was made to act as a supporting bridge between the two excursion boats. The passengers crowded on the large ferryboat and in dud time were taken off by other craft and back to old Manhattan. Captain Cobbs of the Patten kept the nose of his boat crowded into the hole in the Perseus as long as he could and this prevented an farush of water and rapid sinking. The Eronx supported both vessels and neither

Women shricked and prayed and the men acted about the same way. Mr. Redmond was the coolest man in our party. He urged us to stay together and, acting upon his advice, we took off our shoes and coats and got into life preservers. Right near us was a woman with four small children. Mr. Redmond remarked that if we were to die it behooved us to die like men. He and I were the best swimmers and we each took one of the children. It looked like the briny for me and I'm not ashamed to say I prayed good and hard and never with more enthusiasm in my life. When the Bronx loomed up through the fog I can tell you 2,000 of the happiest people on earth were right out there in the way. The captain of the Bronx was nothing short of a genius. He did the one thing that was right and so far as known not a soul was lost and both ships were saved.

2 How to draw a treaty which can hope to be approved by the president and senate of the United States without forfeiting the favor of the great powers of Europe that have adopted as their standard the anglo-French treaty of arbitration.

American Suggestion

This latter problem arose from the fallare of the Hay treaties to meet with the approval of the United States in the form in which they were negotiated.

Upon the initiative of American congress nen the Interparliamentary commission decided upon a plan to surmount the difficulty. This plan is to specify distinctly the classes of questions to be arbitrated so that the senate can exercise its judgment when t ratifies the treaty. To prevent this speciication from holding all nations back to the position occupied by the least progressive ountry it was proposed that each nation could designate individually the classes or controversies in which it may be interested, transferred by the treaty from the battlefield to the precincts of the international court, and to permit the addition of other classes of controversies by each nation after the original ratification of the treaty. It seems likely, therefore, that the London conference will be able to agree upon nations ought hereafter observe in their conduct toward each other and for deciding when a violation of accepted principles has

In addition to these, the most important points on the program of the union, several other very important questions are to be considered and the indications are that there will be perfect agreement upon the most important points, but perhaps a difference of spinion on the question of limitation of armaments.

PAST DIFFERENCES TO BE FORGOTTEN

All Armies Are to Be Withdrawn and Dishanded Within Eight Days and Prisoners Are to Be Released.

SAN SALVADOR, Sunday, July 21 .- (Delayed in Transmission.) The conference on board the United States craitser Marlehead was conducted under the honprary presidency of William L. Merry, the American minister to Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Salvador; the American minister to Guatemala and Honduras, Leslie Combs. and Mexican minister to Guatemala, Senor Gambo. After the exchange of credentials there was a long deliberation on the object of the conference and the terms of the treaty and then the treaty was signed. The principal chauses are as follows: First-Salvador and Honduras return

First—Salvador and Honduras return to a state of peace with Guatemals, forgetting past differences. Therefore, they will concentrate their armies and disarm them within eight days from the date of the signing of the treaty, leaving only the troops previously stationed in the various garrison towns and the flying columns required for police service.

Second—The contracting governments will reciprocally deliver up the prisoners of war and take care gratuitously of the wounded, in their respective territories, who are unable to return to their homes. All political prisoners will also be immediately liberated and each delegation will recommend to its government the Issuance of a decree of general amnesty so soon as possible.

Third—The high contracting parties agree to concentrate all the political refugees now in their respective territories, or who may

To the People from Their Popular Representatives—Citizens of All Russia: Parliament has been dissolved by ukase of July 21. You elected us as your representatives and instrusted us to fight for our country and freedom. In execution of your instructions and our duty we drew up laws in order to ensure freedom to the people. We demanded the removal of irresponsible ministers who were infringing the laws with impunity and oppressing freedom. First of all, however, we wanted to bring out a law respecting the distribution of land to working peasants and involving the assignment to this end of crown apparages. out a law respecting the distribution of land to working peasants and involving the assignment to this end of crown appanages, monastries and lands belonging to the clergy, and compulsory exprepriation of private estates. The government held such a law to be inadmissible and upon Parliament once more urgently putting forward its resolution regarding compulsory expropriation Parliament was dissolved. ment once more urgently putting forward its resolution regarding compulsory expropriation Parliament was dissolved.

The government promises to convoke a new Parliament seven months hence. Russia must remain without popular representation for seven whole months, at a time when the people are standing on the brink of ruin and industry and commerce are undermined, when the whole country is seething with unrest and when the ministry has definitely shown its incapacity to do justice to popular needs. For seven months the government will act arbitrarily and will fight against the popular movement in order to obtain a pliable, subservient Parliament. Should it succeed in completely suppressing the popular movement the government will convoke no Parliament at all.

Citizens, stand up for your trampled-on rights, for popular representation and for an imperial Parliament. Russia must not remain a day without popular representation. You possess the means of acquiring it. The government has, without the assent of the popular representatives, no right to collect taxes from the people nor to summon the people to military service. Therefore, you are now the government. The dissolved Parliament was justified in giving neither money nor soldiers. Should the government, however, contract loans in order to procure funds, such loans will be invalid without the consent of the popular representatives. The people will never recognize them and will not be called upon to pay them. Accordingly, until a popular representative Parliament is summoned do not give a kopec to the throne. Be steadfast in your refusal. No power can realst the united, inflexible will of the people.

Citizens, in this obligatory and unavoidable struggle your representatives will be with you.
