> Would Be Acceptable in The crop, soil and weather report of the Burlington for the week ending July 21 shows that rain practically covered the entire state of Nebraska. The reports still indicate, however, there are several places on lines northwest of Aurora where more rain would be acceptable. There is also a decidedly dry streak between Mc-Cook and Benkleman, on the main line, although there has been plenty of rain on the Imperial branch. With the two exceptions mentioned the soil is generally in good condition. The government report shows that, based on an average of 137 stations, the rainfall in Nebraska for June was 2.79 inches. This is considered by the Agricultural department of the government to be 1.19 inches below normal; that is to say, the normal rainfail for June the state over is considered to be

3.89 inches. Reports concerning the wheat crop have not been quite as favorable as present conditions seem to justify. Not a great deal of threshing was done during the week, but wherever threshing has been done the yield proved better than expected. On the Kansas branch of the Mc-Cook division the crop will average bet-ter than half a crop. Between McCook and Benkleman the crop on the main line is light. Elsewhere on the McCook division the yield will run from fifteen to forty bushels, the quality being good. On the Lincoln division threshing for the week shows a yield ranging from twenty to forty bushels per acre. An average yield, based on reports from nine stations, shows a yield of thirty-two bushels per acre. On the Wymore division present reports indicate a yield of fifteen to thir-

anticipated and probably will average better than half a crop in the Nebraska district. The quality is first-class. Little spring grain is raised in this district, ex-Corn did fairly well, but the nights were
