COURT NO BAR TO SHERIFF
Restraining Order Does Not Prevent Sale of Property Under Foreclosure.

WOMAN'S ESTATE AND SON'S INJUNCTION
Latter Was to Furnish Bond and Failing to Do So McDonald Lets the Hammer Fall.

In spite of a restraining order issued by Judge Day, Sheriff McDonald Tuesday morning sold under decree of foreclosure all of the Omaha property belonging to Mrs. Phoebe R. E. E. Linton, which has been in litigation for a number of years. The restraining order was secured by Charles S. Linton, her son, and was conditioned on the giving of a bond for $300. The bond was not furnished, consequently the sheriff did not comply with the order. The decree of foreclosure was secured by the John Morris estate from Judge Sutton under a mortgage given by Adolphus Linton, husband of Phoebe Linton, to secure a loan of $4,700.30. The sale was set for 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and before that time Linton, through his attorney, John O. Yelver, secured the restraining order to prevent the sale. In the same petition a new trial of the foreclosure case was demanded. Errors in the proceedings and irregularities in the giving of the mortgage were among the reasons given why a new hearing should be allowed. Linton also set up an ante-nuptial agreement between his mother and father that her property should go to him in trust for the children. In pursuance of this agreement a deed to the property was given to Kate Remnant, who, on the same day, it is alleged, transferred the property to Adolphus Linton, he at the same time executing a declaration of trust. This deed was filed in the register of deeds office Monday, after, according to a notation on the back of it, it had been lost for several years. The contention in the petition is that the property could not be held for Adolphus Linton's debts. It is also alleged new evidence has been found.

Charles S. Linton also filed in the register of deeds office a notice of the suit in order to protect his interests in the title to the property.

The sheriff's sale was held shortly after 11 o'clock and the Omaha property brought $17,150. The new move, it is said, will add new complications to the settlement of the case.

NO EXCESSIVELY DRY GROUND
While Some Sections Need More Moisture, All Portions Are in Good Condition.

The Burlington's soil and crop report for the Nebraska district for the week ending August 4 shows there was more or less rain in all parts of the district during the week, but reports indicate there was not enough to keep soil in condition to produce best results, in places between Oxford and Wray on the main line and between Orleans and Herndon on McCook division, also between DeWitt and Holdrege and on the Concordia branch of Wymore division. Ground is not exceedingly dry in any part of this territory, but more moisture would be helpful.

Threshing of winter wheat continued with considerable interruption because of rain and with results as far as yield is concerned about as indicated by previous reports.

Most of the oats were put into the stack during the week and indications are for better than half a crop. Wherever barley is raised the crop is good. There is very little spring wheat raised in this district. Corn has generally made good growth during the week. The report from the superintendent of the Wymore division states that corn has been damaged by dry weather in places on the Concordia branch. It is
