

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE

Outlook for Commercial Progress Becomes Brighter Each Week

JOBBING TRADE BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

Manufacturing Reports Are Gratifying Beyond Precedent, the Textile Industries Alone Showing Irregularities.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say:

No check to commercial progress can be discerned, while the outlook becomes brighter each week through most encouraging crop reports. Jobbing trade is on a large scale, wholesale business is much better than last year, and the general retail distribution of all merchandise promises to be heavy. Manufacturing reports are gratifying beyond precedent, the textile industries alone showing any irregularity. As in the case of the general trade, a natural disposition to delay placing orders when better terms seem warranted by the cheapened raw material, and producers make no concessions because of contracts on hand. Woolen goods also hesitate, pending a more definite trend in the distributing markets. These uncertainties apply to future business, current trade being of good volume. Slight reports for pig iron output, slight in being embarrassed by lack of material. Similar conditions prevail in the footwear industry, the average of high prices being maintained by lack of good lower prices for farm staples testify to the certainty of ample crop yields. Exports, with the exception of more general exports, are on a large scale, and the general trade is on a large scale, and the general retail distribution of all merchandise promises to be heavy.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW OF TRADE

Weather and Crop Reports Stimulate Fall and Winter Buying

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Better weather and definite assurance of large crop yields stimulate fall and winter buying, which is appearing more and more to its zenith. Most leading markets report buyers present in unprecedented numbers, and volumes of August sales exceed all records for that month, except at a few points where weather conditions have been unpropitious. Sales of dry goods, clothing, shoes, leather, hardware and other iron and steel products and lumber are very large. The fall shipping season is also opening at its height, shipping forces are working overtime and the railroads are working to their full capacity, with a car famine predicted for the far distant future. A smaller movement of winter wheat, however, partly relieved the strain on the railroads and made for a little more steadiness in price of the cereal, which, however, has sagged slightly, as the feeling grows that spring, like winter wheat, will prove a large crop. Reports from abroad are of better than earlier anticipated wheat crops, which seem likely to affect prices still further, but a more definite trend in the distributing markets. These uncertainties apply to future business, current trade being of good volume. Slight reports for pig iron output, slight in being embarrassed by lack of material. Similar conditions prevail in the footwear industry, the average of high prices being maintained by lack of good lower prices for farm staples testify to the certainty of ample crop yields. Exports, with the exception of more general exports, are on a large scale, and the general trade is on a large scale, and the general retail distribution of all merchandise promises to be heavy.

THUMB PRINTS UNPOPULAR

Proposition for Identifying Army Recruits Objected to by the Latter.

Sixteen recruits were enlisted at the United States army recruiting depot, Thirteenth and Douglas streets, during the month of August. The recruits were gathered from all parts of the state, very few of them being Omaha boys. There is a perceptible falling off in army recruiting in this locality, owing to the abundant opportunities offered for employment. The proposition of taking thumb prints of all enlisted men for the purpose of identification is not taken to kindly by the enlisted men of the army. They hold that it at once places them in the category of suspected criminals and hold that if it is applicable to the army at all it should apply to all ranks and not to the enlisted men alone. Eighteen recruits were secured for the United States navy at the permanent recruiting station, this city, during the month of August. Of this number eleven enlisted as apprentice seamen, two as electricians (second class), two as seamen, two as firemen (second class) and one as machinist (second class). Four recruits are well-known Omaha boys. They are Arthur S. Sorenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claus Sorenson, 2014 Manderson street; Sheldon Barlight, son of Irving G. Barlight, 249 Spaulding street; Carl Pearl Sroufe, of S. L. H. Sroufe, 523 Sixth street, and Raymond E. Meager, son of Mrs. A. W. Meager, 244 Camp of Detroit and Harry Walter on board, will leave Jersey City at 5 o'clock Sunday, September 2, and will arrive in Detroit Monday noon. It will leave there at 11:30 Monday night, arriving in Chicago Tuesday morning, where the day will be spent. After the reception of Mr. Bryan Tuesday evening the train will leave Chicago at 11:30 p. m., via the Great Western, arriving in Omaha at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday.

Quite recently there has been more or less discussion as to the origin of the postage stamp. Perhaps the most authentic story is that which comes from the Postoffice department at Washington. It appears that about sixty-five years ago Rowland Hill was traveling through one of the northern districts of England and for a time was sojourning at an inn, where the postman came with a letter for a young daughter of the innkeeper. The young man turned the letter over and over in his hand and after examining the envelope minutely inquired the price of the postage, which was a shilling. She sighed sadly and returned the letter to the postman, saying that it was from her brother, but that she had no money. Mr. Hill was an onlooker and was touched with pity. He paid the postage and his action seemed to embarrass the girl. When the postman had gone she stated to Mr. Hill that some signs marked on the envelope conveyed to her all she wanted to know and that as a fact there was no critic involved. In explanation she said that she and her brother had contrived a code system of communicating, as neither of them were able to pay post charges. Mr. Hill thought of the results of a system which made such frauds possible. Before another day he had planned a postal system upon the present basis—Harper's Weekly.

FAIRBANKS TO VETERANS

Vice President Addresses Members of Kansas Grand Army of Republic.

After Speech Vice President Departs for Idaho, Where He Will Attend Opening of Irrigation Congress. DODGE CITY, Kan., Aug. 31.—Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks delivered a patriotic address here today to several thousand old soldiers and others, drawn from all parts of the state, at the camp occupied by the veterans attending the annual reunion of the Kansas Grand Army of the Republic. The vice president arrived this morning from Washington accompanied by several prominent Kansans, including Senators Long and Benson and Henry J. Allen, editor of the Ottawa Herald. He was met at the station by a delegation of old soldiers and escorted first to his hotel, where he shook hands with hundreds of veterans, and then to the camp where the speaking took place. The vice president was cheered lustily all along the line and at the camp much enthusiasm was displayed. Later in the day Mr. Fairbanks departed for Boise City, Idaho, where he will be present at the opening of the irrigation congress. Address of Vice President. Mr. Fairbanks won repeated cheers from his hearers by his references to the leading epochs in the civil war, and the part that Kansas bore in that and in the Spanish-American conflict. Vice President Fairbanks said in part: We have daily an increasing proof of the value of the service of the union soldier in the cause of the republic's expanding power, its growing grandeur, were it not possible through the victory won by the heroic efforts of the mighty army of the union. The Grand Army of the Republic has demonstrated full well that the great body of the people may be relied upon to fight its battles; that the American private citizen is readily transformed into invincible fighting material. The members of that army made forever glorious American names, not only because they achieved a great victory, but because they won it in an everlastingly righteous cause. They have the consciousness of a mighty work well performed. Announcements of the Theaters. The Orpheum will be thrown open for inspection tonight. Much has been done to add to the beauty of the popular theater. Manager Reiter, assisted by his staff, will be on hand to extend greetings to old friends and cultivate new ones. SKIN ERUPTIONS FOR 35 YEARS

Suffered Severely With Eczema All Over Body—Examined 15 Times by Government Board Who Said There Was No Cure—An Old Soldier Completely Cured.

A THOUSAND THANKS TO CUTICURA REMEDIES

"For over thirty-five years I was a severe sufferer from eczema. The eruption was not confined to any one place. It was all over my face, neck, arms, and even on my head. I am sixty years old and an old soldier, and have been examined by the Government Board over fifteen times, and they said there was no cure for me. I have taken all kinds of medicine and have spent large sums of money for doctors, without avail. A short time ago I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies, and after using two boxes of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, two treatments in all, I am now well and completely cured. A thousand thanks to Cuticura. I cannot speak too highly of the Cuticura Remedies. John T. Roach, Richmond, Ross Co., Ohio, July 17, 1905."

OLD RESIDENT DIES SUDDENLY

Mrs. Elizabeth Stocker Stricken with Heart Failure While on Street Car.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stocker, an old resident of Omaha, died suddenly at L. E. Peyton's drugstore, Twenty-fourth and Leavenworth streets, at 8 o'clock Friday afternoon, following a severe attack of heart failure. Mrs. Stocker boarded a Hancock park car in charge of Conductor Jean Tully and Motorman Parsons, at Sixteenth and Farnam streets, and soon showed signs of being ill. The car proceeded to the depot, where some of the passengers and crew assisted her into the drugstore. Dr. M. Ford was called and did everything possible to restore the aged woman without avail. Dr. Hoelster also arrived, but death had preceded him. Coroner Bralley was notified and the body taken to the morgue. Mrs. Stocker was born at Plymouth, Ind., about sixty-five years ago, and married there. Her husband died a short time after the wedding, and the widow then came to Omaha. That was about thirty years ago. For many years she made her home with her brother-in-law, John Pray, now living at 1434 Martha street. About two years ago she moved to the Working Girls' home, Nineteenth and Leavenworth streets. She had been a sufferer from heart trouble for several years, and when she worked as a clerk at Hayden Brothers' store. George G. Pray, of George G. Pray & Company, 410 South Sixteenth street, is a nephew of the dead woman, and the body will be cared for by his family. A remarkable epitaph is on a tombstone in Brighton churchyard in England. It reads: "In memory of Phoebe Hessel, who was born at Steeple in the year 1713. She served for many years as a private soldier in the Fifth regiment of Foot in different parts of Europe, and in the year 1745 fought under the command of the duke of Cumberland at the battle of Fontenoy, where she received a bayonet wound in her arm. Her long life, which commenced in the time of Queen Anne, extended to the reign of George IV. by whose munificence she received comfort and support in her latter years. She died at Brighton, where she had long resided, December 11, 1821, aged 108 years."

Policeman Catches O'Brien.

After luncheon 'Mayor Jim' and his friends 'bunched up' with a number of other neighbors in front of the Victoria for a talk over the contents of the letter. A little newsboy came along, and, spying the larist hanging on Dahman's arm, he said he bet Jim could not leave him. The boy had the words hardly out of his mouth when 'Mayor Jim' made a throw, catching the youngster around the leg. This was sure enough sport for the denizens of the district. Edging away from the crowd, which had collected by this time, the boy again challenged 'Mayor Jim' to rope him and he, nothing loath, sent the larist hurrying through the air, the loop falling over the boy's shoulders. On seeing the crowd and realizing that he was expected to do something, the policeman on duty at the Victoria, in an exceedingly rough manner, told the Nebraskaans that they would have to 'move on,' taking Dave O'Brien by the arm to move him along. But Dave was not one of the moving kind. He explained that the police report of New York, that he was not being fractured, but the 'copper' was not of the reasoning kind and began to tell the 'boys' that they were not gentlemen and were a lot of 'four flushers.' Mr. Dahman here took a hand. He told the 'cops' that if Dave O'Brien was touched there would be 'hell on Broadway' or words to that effect. Twenty Nebraskaans who saw the incident backed up Dahman and they made it clear to the officer that there would be a 'rough house' if any effort was made to 'pull' anyone. At this juncture a plain-clothes man came along and spoke a few words to the rate 'Bobby.' It had the desired effect. The 'cops' had important business up the street and the 'home folks' went to bed.
