way company is issuing, shows that that company intends to follow out the instructions of the Interstate Commerce commission and cut out all passes after the first of the year. One of the clauses to which the street railway company has been referred by the interstate Commerce commission is in refrence to the authority to prescribe the form of bookkeeping to be used in the accounts of the company. Another is the request that all tariffs be posted and the third is the pass clause. John L. Webster, attorney for the street rallway company, has just returned from a trip and says he has not yet looked over the new law to see just what its significance is and just how it will apply to interstate street railways. OBSCENE CARDS IN THE MAILS
