(From a Staff Correspondent) DES MOINES, la., Sept. 5 .- (Special.)-At the hearing of the state railroad commission today on arguments for the change of rates on a number of articles the Fort Dodge concern, which manufactures stoneware, asked for a reduction of the fridgit so as to change the classification to class 'D" on carload lots. Representative R. M. Wright declared that a reduction of the rate was necessary in order that Fort Dodge could compete with concerns outside the state. Representatives of the railroad declared that the Fort Dedge concern was a member of the trust and didn't need to have any advantages as all competition was throttled. Mr. Wright did not deny that the concern was a member of the trust but argued that the rates in the state were too high compared with the interstate rates.

Marshalltown manufacturers interested in making iron culverts, smoke stacks and bridge cylinders asked that such articles be placed in class "4" for tess than carload lots and in class "5" for carload lots. The railroads argued that the rate is already less than the western classification and that these pipes are so large and weigh so little that there is already no profit in their transportation. Commissioner Ketchum advanced the belief that from pipes for culverts are coming into quite general use and that the shipments will be quite large from this on and that there should be some re-
