CINCINNATI. Sept. 6.—Some amendments to the rules governing the commission, and one amendment or interpretation of the national agreement, were announced today by the National Base Ball commission. To retain title to contract jumping players it will hereafter only be necessary for clubs having such title to carry the players on their reserve lists, the old method of tendering a new contract each March being declared to be unnecessary. The American association is requested to abolish its nonreserve contracts, which have given the commission much trouble, and are open to the suspicion in many cases of not being entered into in good faith.

GRINNELLIS SHORT SCHEDULE For First Time in Several Years Will links of the Glen Echo Country club.

Kimball's score does not set a new mark for the course, H. Chandler Egan's mark of 74 having been made in medsi play last Monday during the Olympic cup team competition. He was compelled to extend himself for the first time, as McKittrick put up a sensational game and deserved to win. His 75 was one of the best scores thus far in the tournament.

Richard Kimball is but 19 years of age and is but a recent comer to St. Louis. He is a Bostonian, having learned the game at the Chestnut Hill Golf club, one of the the end of the season after Ames had protested the playing of McKeah, Grinnell's big-weight man and tackle.

Grinnell will not enter the season seriously crippled by the loss of men and loyal supporters of the school are confident they will retrieve a great deal of their former prestige after the present year. While the state championship is a very hazy affair this early in the season, with Drake, Ames and the State university well bunched on general results, it is believed that Grinnell will lay the foundations this year for a good team next, when it will again become a prominent factor in the foot ball life of the state. The schedule announced by Fisher is as follows:

October 20—Coe at Cedar Rapkis.

October 27—Drake at Des Moines.

November 3—Des Moines college at Grinnell.

November 10-Cornell at Grinnell. November 17-Ames at Ames.
