WEALTH AND SPIRITUAL LIFE

Address by President Roosevelt at Celebration of Church Anniversary.

CREEDS ARE KNOWN BY THEIR PRODUCTS

Religion in the Long Run is Largely Judged by the Lives of Those Who Profess It.

OYSTER BAY, Sept. 8.—President Roosevelt participated today in the 20th anniversary celebration of Christ Episcopal church, which he attends during his summer here.

The keynote of the president's speech, which extended an hour, and concluded a series of four addresses, was that the wealth of the nation must not be disregarded, but looked upon as the basis for spiritual development, clean living and civic virtues.

The celebration was held in the church's edifice, which bears the date of 1786 on its corner stone. Admission was by card and limited to the church members and the clergy. It was followed by a collation in the parish hall, of which then president partook, and where he chatted freely with the visiting clergy and church members. The speakers preceding the president were, Rev. F. H. Washburn, pastor of the church, who gave a historical sketch of the organization; Right Rev. Frederick Burgess, D.D., bishop of Long Island, who presided over the future generations in America and that the episcopal; Rev. W. Montague Geer of New York and Rev. George R. Vandewater of New York.

Address of the President.

The president began his speech with a corroboration of Dr. Geer on the essential need of religion in its broadest and deepest sense for the welfare of the country. He continued:

This country would not be an abode fit for civilized men if it were not true that we are a people who believe in the value of material property, as the only base upon which to build the superstructure of the life of the individual and the nation.

It is true that in many things the tendencies at work among us today are evil, but it is true also that there are plenty of other tendencies for good. I am not prepared to assent to the statement that we are much worse than we were in the past, but it is not of importance whether as a matter of academic belief we hold that things have grown better or worse.

Great Duty of Christians.

What is of vital importance is that we should be resolved to do all in our power as well as in the future—to make them better, and if we are a unit in that belief it is open to us to differ in regard to the other matter. I feel that there has been a real growth in broad Christian charity. I believe that the different creeds are in the essential to really vital things, coming closer all the time, because I think that we are gradually coming to the fact that we are not warring against one another, but by striving to do the best that we can against unrighteousness in the great war for decency, for honesty, for clean living in the home, for peace in the nation.

Gospel of Right Living.

This applies in little things as much as in big things. It applies in the little things which in their sum are so big. The man is a Christian if he does his duty in the conduct of his life, and if he returns to his home, and his wife and children feel unclean at his having done it. The man is not a good Christian who in his business life falls to tempt other men to do as he does, but who holds a higher standard than his fellows, that it is incumbent upon him to do it.

Uses of Material Wealth.

I would on no account be understood as affecting to depreciate material well-being. I would not say that it is wrong to preach to them only a doctrine which is delayed in its effect, but that it is to regard the things of the body, but put them below the things of the soul. Give to the man that great good, based upon and conditioned by a high and brave type of spiritual life. There is nothing we should do more than the telling of a country, whether a conventional truth or not.

Bank Scandal Causes Death

Father of Defaulting President of Anconada Commits Suicide.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 8.—A special to the Pioneer Press from Butte, Mont., says: Leaving a letter in which he stated that he could no longer bear the shame and ignominy brought upon him by the alleged default of his son, J. S. Wier of Anconada, public administrator of Deer Lodge county committed suicide in a Butte lodging house by swallowing strychnine. This is the first death growing out of the scandal of connection with the fund of Real Estate and Insurance bank of Anconada, which is alleged, owing its customers about $100,000. The son of the dead man, G. E. S. Wier, is now in jail charged with various offenses in connection with the failure. The elder Wier had long been prominent in Anconada. In his letter he says that because of his son's connection with the company he had induced many of his Grand Army of the Republic friends to invest their money in it, and that he could not bear being accused of having deceived them.

messages from all parts of the United States, wishing them success. The Harvard men took an early afternoon steamer. They were smiling and looked contented as they donned their racing toggery. Each man stripped and then put on a pair of white canvas knee pants and a flimsy sweater, then the race was started. As the Americans stepped into their frail craft they presented a picture of sturdy development and endurance. Without being big men, they had the fine lines of thoroughbred and the pluckiness of skin denoting good condition. They smiled good naturedly in acknowledgment of the applause with which their appearance was greeted and seemed imbued with plenty of confidence and alacrity. A vast crowd besieged the boat house and there was an encouraging yell from thousands of the shores ashore and aloft as the Harvard men stepped into their boat.

lost ground. Stuart kept up his steady stroke. At Chiswick, Epsom, the English stroke, spoke to his crew and began to pull away from Harvard. At the three-mile point Cambridge was over three lengths in front, and on reaching the Devonshire Meadows the Englishmen were two and a half lengths ahead and the race was practically over. Harvard, however, was given the lead and started again, gaining a length. But it was too late to retrieve the fortunes of the day and the Cambridge men passed the winning post, easy victors of a gallant race by two lengths. Time: 2:14.

Fortune in Buried Rails

Relic of the Civil War Uncovered in Texas and Promptly Cashed.

Mining for steel rails is a new industry, but it is being carried on profitably at Liberty, Tex. Forty-six years ago 16,000 tons of steel rails were purchased in England by a syndicate of wealthy planters of this section and the rails were shipped to a railroad proposition up the valley of the Trinity river. The rails were paid for and brought to Galveston by water and shipped up the Trinity river by barges. They were unloaded just below the river at Liberty on the low bank of the river. The civil war came on and the project was abandoned. The members of the company were either killed in the war or lost their property, or were scattered until not one of them has been heard of for more than a quarter of a century.

FRISCO FLOODED WITH MONEY

City Stricken with Earthquake Has Many Millions on Call in Gotham.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—The Examiner today says: The San Francisco banks have cut in the way of call loans in New York between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 at very favorable rates of interest, so great is the eastern demand for ready money with which to move the unusually big crops. There is a surplus of money in San Francisco at present and the banks are adding it profitable to use it in the way of call loans in the east.

HILL ORE LEASES ARE VALID

Decision of Minnesota Court Clears Up Title to Valuable Iron Mines. Transfer to Steel Trust Probable.

Deal Which Has Been Pending for Three Years Expected to Be Consummated Within Few Weeks.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—The receipt of the decision handed down yesterday by the supreme court of Minnesota in the Virginia silver mine case, which is regarded as definitely establishing the rights of the Great Northern railway in the lease of certain ore lands from the state, caused a report in Wall street today that the long delayed agreement between the Great Northern and the United States Steel corporation for the lease and operation of the so-called Hill mines in the Lake Superior district, was soon to be announced. Inquiry showed, however, that most of the important officials of both corporations were absent from the city today and will not return until next week. Even then it was estimated, there are many details yet to be arranged—some of vital importance. The court decision, however, removes one of the obstacles in the proposed agreement for the constitutionality of the law under which the Great Northern had secured leaseshold of many of its ore lands had been called in question.

Negotiations Long Pending.

The negotiations of the Hill ore holdings have been pending for nearly three years and several times have been reported near a conclusion. The steel corporation, already the largest holder of ore properties in the Lake Superior district, through its Oliver Iron Mining company, has been endeavoring to secure the Hill properties as a sort of reserve, thus assuring itself of a longer life and aiding in cutting out possible serious competition. To guard against the properties being held title by the steel corporation, the Great Northern railway has contended for a lease, based upon the payment of royalty on each ton of ore mined with a minimum output to be agreed upon. The royalties were to be increased year by year until they amounted to $1 a ton. The minimum output also was to be increased yearly and it was further stipulated in the early negotiations that the Great Northern railway should haul all the ore to Duluth docks at a given rate.

Propositions by the Hill Interests.

The Hill lands are claimed to be second in value only to those of the Oliver Iron Mining company. The few Great Northern properties which are not being worked have been leased to various mining companies on terms similar to those offered the steel corporations. Most of the Hill holdings are, however, as yet unexplored, and it is said that any estimates as to their value are mere guesses. The financial district is therefore somewhat puzzled as to just what the deal be-
