INDICTMENTS FOUND AT ONAWA

Northwestern Railroad and Cfty Clash Over Carload of Beer, ONAWA, Ia., Sept. 12-(Special.)-The Monona county grand jury has been disharged for the term; four or five indictents were found. J. B. Phillips was indicted for selling mortgaged property. John L. Kelley was indicted for a stabbing affray several months ago. He has been confined in the Monona county jail. His trial is now in progress before Judge Oliver and will probably be finished today. Frank Wise, Dora Potts and Hojancamp were indicted for selling beer from a car on the track of the Northwestern Raticoad company on July 4. These parties, knowing the saloons would be closed that day, shipped in a car of beer and three men could not hand it out fast enough. When the marshal swooped down on the outfit locked the car and placed the parties under arrest. City authorities ordered the car held, but the railroad company billed the same out that night for Omaha, and the company and city authorities have been | oughly and brought back just the day you trying to settle matters ever since. It is now up to the grand jury. Other indict. Stranger Gets Too Much Dope. Hans Pattee, a stranger in Council Bluffs, was "seeing things" Tuesday night as the result, it is believed, of indulging in an overdose of dope. At 1 o'clock he rushed nto the Kiel hotel much excited and called up police headquarters over the telephone. To Sergeant O'Neill, who answered, Pattee told a weird story of having seen a man ground to pieces beneath the wheels of a Rock Island train. He said he was standing but a few feet from the track when the train struck the man and killed him. Securing a lantern, as he said, Pattee told the sergeant that he had spent an hour searching in the weeds and tall grass along the track for the man's body without success. Pattee was taken to police headquarters, where for an hour he told a number of other equally weird stories. He claimed to have driven to Council Bluffs from Atlantic and had gone to the railroad detention of something over three years. crossing to catch a train for home when she has regained much of her former good For imported wines, figuors and Bud-weiser beer go to L. In police court yesterday morning Pattee decided he was a farmer living near Atlantic and that the things he had seen Tuesday night resulted from sampling too many brands of Council Bluffs firewater. The court decided also that a fine of $5 and costs would about fit his case, which he will board out while sobering up at the city
