AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Police and Constable Still at Outs Over Pessession of Liquor.

GOODS ARE BEING HELD BY THE POLICE

Chief Insists Constable Has Constructive Possession, but Constable Insists He Must Have the Liquor.

The clash between the state courts and he police department in the matter of the writ of replevin by which Joseph Uvick seeks to recover the liquor stored in he office of the police court is not yet at an end, as the events yesterday proved. Uvick and his attorney went to Omaha yesterday and secured the services of heriff John McDonald, who, at their instiration, came to South Omaha yesterday o serve the writ. He had been told that Constable Michael Lenahan had been unable to enforce the writ. On arriving in south Omaha he encountered the chief in his office and asked his explanation of the case. On learning that the liquor was being held in evidence in a criminal proceeding he declared that if he should serve the writ he would not take the liquor away from the building, but leave it as it was. The chief told the sherin that Lenahan had possession of the liquor and would make the return on the replevin. This afterward was dealed by Lenahan. In the meantime the sherin returned to Omaha without attempting to serve the writ. Shortly after the return of the sherin the attorney and Uvick brought Lenahan to the police station. Lenahan then declared that he was not sure that he had legal possession of the liquor. The chief then said: "If you say you have not legal possession of the liquor, then you make your return to the court that you are unable to serve the writ and serve the writ he would not take the that you are unable to serve the writ and may send for the sheriff again in the morn Uvick will consider no proposition which does not return the liquor to his Court Ballin Short on Fish.

Every day has its slogan about the city Yesterday the universal query was, stole Charlie Fernland's carp?" Fernland, the police court bailiff, maintains that the fish were bass, but the city officers declare they were nothing but neasly carp. He went into the clerk's the official with visions of dainty repasts. And that was the beginning of his downfall. Later he exhibited the fish to all the people in the city hall, and gloated over the fine meal he would enjoy. He noticed, it is said, the hungry eye of the clerk, and grew suspicious, so he took the fish to the hid them under Judge King's desk, giving he judge the heavy commission of guarding them. The rumor spread to a certain undertaker's parlors. Like the girl said of the "curfew," Morgan Heafy, so the bailiff verily believes, declared to W. H. Rowley, "Charlie shan't have fish tonight."

At all events, both men shortly appeared in the police court, and surprised the judge, whose eyes are known to be better than his ears. They approached from the rear door at his back. Before he suspected, some one made a quick pass for the bass and dashed for the door. The judge made grab for the flying form and caught Rowley's hand, so he declared. Before he could turn in his office chair the man had jerked away and gone. He saw some one bolt through the back doo and he said it looked like Morgan Heafy's back. So there is a tangle in the testi-He declared if he knew which one same a warrant for his arrest. Pernland had fish for his dinner, but he bought it at a butcher shop in the outskirts of the city and slipped home through the woods of Syndicate park. Mrs. Heafy admitted over the telephone that Morgan Heafy also

Increase in Inspection Force. By the first of the month the force at work in the Bureau of Animal Industry will number ninety-three men, with a prospective increase to over 100. Twentyix men have been added to the ment inspection service during the past month. F. R. Marshall, Ole L. Mallen of South Omaha and D. J. Walsh of Omaha were assigned yesterday to the meat inspec-tion. Michael Brennen, Michael Fitzgerald and J. J. Sexton of South Omaha will go to work this morning. Samuel E. Springer of Ohio has been assigned to the veterinary inspectors. Dr. H. H. Newton of this department has been instructed to report for duty at Washington, October 2. Dr. Charles M. Day was also transferred from this point to Alton.

The chief of the bureau reports that he has been busier than at any time since being assigned to South Omaha. The reason lies in the interpretation of the rules and regulations of the new mest and food product inspection. The packers have on the average of fifteen or twenty points of inquiry at each house every morning, all of which they refer to him for lution or settlement.

Stocker and Feeder Show. South Omaha is to have a big stocker and feeder show next year under the auspices of the combined livestock interests of the At a largely attended meeting of the representatives of all the livestock interests held yesterday at the exchange hall it was unanimously determined to hold the show. It will be similar to the shows which have been held at St. Joseph, Kansas City and Chicago on many occasions, with the exception that little atention will be given to fat stock. It was thought the most practicable, since the South Omaha market is pre-eminently a feeder market, to confine the first exhibit to that class of livestock A committee was appointed to organize the interests represented here along those lines, this market has taken hold of the project in earnest and will find much to interest them and the public in the details of the undertaking.
