The styles will catch you first-each is a distinct type, a miniature WOOL/TEX, as carefully designed as any women's garments in this world-famous line.

But go deeper-note the materials. Nothing but pure wool, pure by acid test, enters a WOOLTEX garment. That means warmth and wear all winter long-just as shapely and fit at the season's end as now.

And deeper still-look at the workmanship. Silk stitching everywhere, satin yokes, flannel reinforced, proof against the wintry winds.

Then the cut-so full and generous no tailor would offer to equal it.

OIL INSPECTOR ON STAND

Conspiracy Case at Finding is Proeceding Along Quiet Lines. in Last Scanton of the Week.

FINDLAY, O., Oct. 12.-With the undertanding that court would adjourn at noon today until Monday, the trial of the Standard Oil company of Ohlo for conspiracy against trade was begun by the state putting County Recorder Bloom of Hancock county on the stand.

Mr. Bloom identified the deed record o the county from which Prosecutor David read to the jury records of certain deeds transferring land to the Standard Oil company of Ohio. B. C. On cross-examination by the defense Mr. Shaffer said his territory as inspector covered several surrounding counties and that

After nearly two hours' session the trial was adjourned until Monday. The adjournment was agreed on between counsel out of respect to the memory of former Judge Burkett, whose funeral took place here this afternoon.

The proceedings today consisted of the taking of testimony of three witnesses summoned by the prosecution. By evidence of the county recorder, title was established in the Standard to a certain lot in the city of Findlay, on which is located their local oil distributing station for the local retail trade. Oil Inspector Shaffer testified that the oil sold at retail in this locality was obtained from the Solar Refining company at Lima. At Upper Sandusky, also in his inspection territory they eceived the oil from the Standard refinery at Cleveland.

J. H. Scott, local agent for Joseph Scep. purchasing agency, occupied the greater part of the session showing the method of purchasing crude oil from producers. He said that the oil he purchased and paid for by Seep's checks was transferred to the order of P. S. Trainer of Oil City, Pa-

The chief said he has not lost hope of eventually capturing the murderer of Miss Rummelhart, but at present they have no clues of any importance, but they will keep on working night and day in the hope of unraveling the mystery and bringing the miscreant to justice.
