Some that matter with the governor on another occasion.

Mahoney Gets Facetious. At 4 o'clock T. J. Mahoney took the floor and began with a facetious reference to the range of Judge McHugh's remarks. "When Judge McHugh and others impugn the motives of the protesters we are not aware of it," began Attorney Mahoney. "You are in the same position," sharply retorted Commissioner Thomas. "Well come to that also," rejoined Mr. Mahoney.

Attorney Mahoney then alluded to reported opinions said to be entertained by the commissioners regarding public sentiment on the Sunday closing matter and an alleged prediction on the part of the commissioners to maintain a "liberal interpretation of the law," to which Commissioner Spratlan said the commissioner might entertain those opinions privately and yet not consider them as a policy-board.

"I have made no charges that the commissioners have been servile tools of their interests," quoth Mahoney, "but I contend they have acted with a perverted notion of their duty and I will not charge the commissioners with anything more serious than I think them guilty of. The worst of the motives of the board has been that the members have deemed it unwise strictly to enforce the Stocumb law, because they thought the people wanted a lax enforcement of that law and they have followed that policy."

Mr. Miller rose to remark he admitted the members entertained such ideas personally, but not officially, realizing they had no power to act in the premises if they wanted to. Admitting the police board has discretionary powers Mr. Mahoney contended it had power to issue orders to the police department and showed by the board's own records, which were on exhibit, that on July 18, 1905, the commissioners ordered the chief of police to suppress prostitutes in certain quarters and on the streets, remove various features from saloons and effect other reforms, which were accomplished. Mr. Mahoney said the board's own books had many such orders, showing the board had and knew it had complete control over the police department in the matter of law enforcement.

Merely a Request. Mr. Broatch—My recollection is we merely requested the chief of police to do those things. Mr. Thomas—While we did those things we realized we had no real authority to back us up should the matter ever be called in question, but we issued those orders as expeditious.

Governor Mickey—When Judge McHugh was appointed a commissioner here and I had a conference and he told me the action of the board in those matters was to accomplish certain ends and not as a stand as to what powers the board had.

Mr. Mahoney—There is a simple and common-sense view of this matter. Suppose the board knew that a gang of thieves was operating in a certain part of Omaha and that the police were not making arrests, would not then the commissioners take prompt action and discharge those officers? Of course they would. Then, on that reasoning, there is no difference for a policeman to refuse to arrest a man for picking a man's pocket than for him to refuse to arrest a man violating the Stocumb law. The duty of the policeman and the commissioner in both instances is identical. The very authority which gives the board power to discharge the policeman for refusing to arrest the pickpocket, commands the board to discharge the policeman who refuses to arrest the violator of the Stocumb law. The board knows that nearly every saloon man in Omaha is violating the Stocumb law.

Sunday Saloons the Issue. Governor Mickey—The question is whether Omaha shall have open saloons on Sunday and we may as well meet the issue. Mr. Mahoney—The Stocumb law is a matter of state regulation and no one has power to nullify it in Omaha. We conclusively proved to the board a year ago that the saloonkeepers had violated that law and yet I would not say the board was bribed in turning down our protest at that time.

CURRENCY FIGHT POSTPONED

Afternoon matinee performance. There was considerable confusion momentarily, those clamoring for the question to be brought up immediately being met by counter-claims from those delegates who desired the matter to go over and not be taken up in the limited time permitted. Mr. Greer Hersh of Maryland, a member of the executive council, made a motion that the whole subject of currency be made a special order of business for 9 o'clock tomorrow which was carried. Mr. Charles J. Haden of Atlanta, Ga., an attorney was then introduced and made an address on the topic, "A Plan for the Currency Fight."

Pythian Sisters Are United
Supreme Lodge Arranges Merger of Women's Organizations and Elects Officers.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 18.—The feature of today's Pythian convention was the decision to consolidate the Pythian Sisterhood, having a membership of 7,000, and the Bathbone Sisters, which has 12,000 members. It was announced that a new name, that of Pythian Sisters, will probably be adopted by the consolidation. The organizations will merge their rituals. The supreme lodge, Knights of Pythias, spent the entire day in election of officers. They adjourned until tomorrow without having elected a president of the board of control or major general of the Endowment Rank. These officers will not be elected until settlement is made of proposed changes in the constitution, making them appointive instead of elective.
