SOLDIERS NOT FOR PORTER

Grand Army Veterans Report Remark Made by Attorney Baird

These Who Have Usually Voted Republican Ticket Will Do So This Year—General Dodge on the Situation.

Veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic take exception to the statement of Attorney W. S. Baird of this city, a member of the board of trustees of the free library, published in the local paper, in which he makes the assertion that "old soldiers will vote for Porter, or not at all."

A well known member of the Abe Lincoln post, Grand Army of the Republic, in speaking yesterday of Mr. Baird's published statement, said: "The assertion of Mr. Baird that the old soldiers would vote for Porter, or not at all is absurdly unwarranted. Of course, in the ranks of the veterans of the civil war and of those who belong to the democratic party and they will, it is expected, vote for their party candidate, but Mr. Baird's assertion is wholly unwarranted and unfounded, is casting an unwarranted reflection on the old soldiers."

I do not see how there is any ground for republicans to oppose him."

DEEP WELLS ARE FAILURE

Much Trouble in Securing Water Supply for the State Institutions.

IMPLEMENT DEALERS MEET THIS WEEK

Difficulty in Securing Material Hampers Work on New School for Deaf-Blind for Political Meetings.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 28.—(Special.)—In all probability the next legislature will pronounce the deep well proposition at state institutions a failure. The board of control has been ready to pronounce for some time. At Cherokee the state put in a well, 500 feet deep. It worked for a little time and then silt came in. The state then had a well sunk 2,000 feet deep. That was to be the supreme test. It was to be an artesian well and everybody hoped and prayed that it would be a good one. There is lots of water in it, but the water is as "hard as a brick bat." To drink it is like making a regular diet of lime water. Finally a man came along who was sure he could fix the 200-foot well and he was called in. He wanted so much that the state had another well sunk 500 feet beside it. Now the silt is coming into both wells.

This silt is very fine sand. It is so fine that you can't see it and it doesn't injure one to drink it, but it cuts out the plumbing system and can't be used for that reason. When the Cherokee institution was located it was the intention to get water from the city's system. But the institution was built on such high ground that the top of the water tank for the city is on a level with the first floor of the institution. Down at Glenwood they are having the same trouble over the water question. They have two or three shallow wells and the chief water supply is drawn from the creek. It is as black as ink the greater part of the time. The water supply for drinking purposes is taken from shallow wells by hand, boiled in large tanks arranged for that purpose and then carried by the rail full to the various institution buildings for drinking purposes. A contractor is now at work sinking a deep well. He is down 80 feet and no telling how much deeper he will go, but for the past month things have been at a standstill because the drill is lost. The drill weighs about two tons. The rope by which it is lifted and allowed to drop broke. Ever since then they have been trying to get some kind of a machine that will take hold of the two-ton drill and pull it out. The machine that is usually made use of was lowered into the well and the rope broke again and now both are broken and the rope is not hot. About two months' work has thus far failed to lift out the drill and the work is still progressing at the same rate.

The deep well proposition has thus far everywhere proven a failure for the state at the state institutions.

Trouble in Council Bluffs. Considerable trouble has been experienced at the Council Bluffs school for the deaf this year in getting material to the institution. The contractor who is doing the work there has been forced at times to have brick hauled by team from Omaha in order to keep a supply on hand. It has kept the masons busy. It is expected that the contractor will get the "liding material" to the school from Omaha. When the material is hauled by team it takes a day to haul one load. The expenses are such that the contractor will make no profit out of his work there.

The building at Council Bluffs is now ready for a roof, which will be put on in a few days.

At Glenwood the work of laying the foundation for the custodial building for boys has just started. It is expected that the foundation probably will be laid before cold weather puts a stop to building work.

The members of the board returned from their semi-annual visit to the institutions today and next week will complete the tour of the institutions.

Site for Tuberculosis Hospital. The Fort Dodge site offered for the State Tuberculosis hospital gives promise of being the solution to the site question. While it is probable that the water has so far progressed that little toward the building can be done before early next year, the fact that a solution to the site question is in sight is something. The board of control has visited every section of the state. The Fort Dodge site offered has not been formally selected and there is no surety that it will be as yet, but it is understood that it more nearly conforms to the requirements of the board and the needs of the institution than is yet been offered in any other section.

Implement Men Coming. Officers of the Iowa Retail Implement Dealers' association, which annually holds its convention in this city, will meet Thursday, November 1, with the officers of the Des Moines Manufacturers' Implement and Vehicle club for the purpose of discussing the details of the state convention. The retail implement dealers form one of the largest trade organizations there is in the state and several hundred delegates are annually in attendance. It has been decided this year that there will be no reception the first night. The banquet will be given the second night and will be the only entertainment provided by the local organization. The program will be decided upon at the meeting next Thursday.

His Name Too Long. There was trouble up in Buena Vista county the past week. When Representative Buchanan was renominated by the republicans there for representative he certified his name to the secretary of state as Frank Naples Buckingham. The county auditor in Buena Vista county discovered when he came to have the ballots printed that the name was too long to go in the republican column and he dropped over into the democratic column. He hurriedly called up the secretary of state by long distance telephone to ascertain what to do. Then there was a hurried consultation in the office of the secretary of state. The attorney general's office was called and he was provided that a mistake on the ballot in the spelling of a man's name does not make illegal his election as the papers on file with the secretary of state must govern. It was therefore decided that it would not endanger his election to cut off part of the name and the county auditor had the ballots printed "Frank N. Buckingham."

Million Rounds of Ammunition. One million rounds of ammunition has been sent to the Iowa National Guard for indoor rifle practice for the winter. Adjutant General Turin has discovered that the men who were engaged on indoor rifle practice all winter long, even though they received but little outdoor practice the past summer were able to make creditable scores on the rifle range in the competitive shooting. For this reason special attention is to be given indoor practice.

D. O'Connell of Post Lodge, solicitor of the treasury, has been billed for speeches at Clear Lake and Charles City, Tuesday and Wednesday, and he may be induced to speak elsewhere.

Food Men in Hot Water. The butcher and the grocer are those days being kept in hot water because of the Iowa pure food law. Furthermore, where the Iowa pure food law does not catch them the national pure food law does. One of the men who are having a hard time. If a customer wants to see the grocer "throw a fit" all he has to do is to inquire for lard, "pork lard," and while doing it make a noise like one who has read the pure food law. When the lard is set out to be sold the grocer usually replies: "We have ten-cent lard, twelve, twelve and a half and fifteen-cent lard." Now when the customer asks that question with a jail sentence and a $100 fine staring him in the face the grocer must reply: "We have pork lard and lard compound. One of the lard compounds is made of pork lard and beef suet, another is made of nothing but beef suet and lard oil." Then the customer begins to look suspicious and wants to know what beef suet and lard oil have to do with lard. They would like some lard-pork lard. The result is that the best suets and lard oils lards are being left under the counter. The same situation prevails as to syrups, any amount of canned goods, catsups, pickles, preserves, jellies and the like. The pure food law even applies to eggs, and to all meats. There is almost nothing now but green groceries such as apples and potatoes and cabbage, that the grocer can sell with an air of security from a jail sentence or fine. As a result, however, the people are getting purer things to eat.
