Move for Longer School Year.

State Superintendent Riggs, with other prominent educators of the state, is leading a movement for a ten months' school year A circular has been issued setting forth the reasons for the longer year and has been sent to educators everywhere in the state The chief reasons for the longer school year are the desire to make use of the school property for a longer time and not allow the investment to be idle for so long a time each summer, and further they claim that a large per cent of the pupils guit school before they reach their teens, or at least soon after, and that if they are to be given the benefit of all the education possible while they are in school the school year should be longer. It is further claimed that the lengthening of the school year

FAIRBARKS TALKS ON TRUSTS Vice President Says Republican Party Can Be Depended Upon to Solve

RICHMOND, Ind., Oct. 31 .-- Vice Presdent Charles W. Fairbanks spoke here tonight, winding up the first day's tour of the state in the present campaign.

At Winchester, the last stop of the day before arriving at Richmond, Mr. Fairbanks made his first reference to the trusts. He said:

trusts. He said: We have lward much in past years of combinations of capital and of trusts born to restrict wholesome commerce. We have beard much of those organized to restrict fair competition and to unduly enhance the value of commodities which the peo-ple use. The republican party has appre-clated the importance of this question as a preciates the importance of all great questions affecting the welfare of the American people. What the republican party has flong in the past is a guarantee to the American people of what it will do in the future. No individual has the ca-pacity to construct and operate our indus-tries of industrial mechanism. Combina-tions of capital have been necessary to construct great industrial enterprises.
