AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Republican Club Issues an Address to Voters of the City.

FOLLY TO ELECT DEMOCRATIC LEGISLATORS

Grand Jury Again Reported to Be Busy with the Missouri Avenue Paving Matters—Reception at Y. M. C. A.

The following circular letter was issued from the Republican club headquarters yesterday. It crystalizes the ideas of the local leaders well and the club members and the committee of sixty are beginning to act along the lines outlined.

The all important issues to be considered in this campaign is the personality, individuality and integrity of the candidate for which you are to vote, and the ability he might have to aid in the passage of legislation in the event of his election. Issues that are fruitless of results, even though they emanate from republicans, are idle tales and only for the purpose of deception. It is a well understood fact that the governor and legislature of this state will be republican, consisting of men of actions and not issues. For this county to send democrats to the legislature at Lincoln would mean that their ability to pass legislation of any character would not be considered as an issue.

If you were unwise enough to take seriously the circular which has been issued and circulated from the pretended South Omaha Democratic club, you would believe that the only question of vital importance to this community is what they please to call home rule undefined.

There is a vast difference between a condition and a theory. Those of you who have lived here under several former administrations can easily recall what the actual moral conditions were under misrule and lawless rule, when the affairs of South Omaha were in the hands of unprincipled officers.

The theory of home rule is right; there is no member of the legislature on the republican ticket opposing such a measure, and on the contrary many of them have openly declared for home rule under such restrictions as seem wise and best, particularly for the common people. The legislature of this state makes the laws, and any individual can insist on the enforcement of the Slocumb law, the statements of the democrats that they propose to be a law unto themselves to the contrary notwithstanding.

If you are interested in the commercial welfare of South Omaha and desire legislation of any character that will be effective, compare the present administration, which was brought about by an empty issue, with the one preceding it.

There is one remaining registration day, Saturday, November 3. If you are a republican, the success of the ticket may depend on your vote. If you are a democrat, consider seriously the above facts and vote for the party that has been responsible for all the legislation ever enacted that has benefited the public.

Don't fail to register on Saturday, November 3, or to vote on Tuesday, November 6.

Grand Jury Busy Again.

It is commonly reported that the grand jury has again taken up the Missouri avenue question. Several more witnesses were examined. What the result will be no one knows. The engineer yesterday took an inventory of the material delivered by Hugh Murphy on Missouri avenue and has the same ready for his report. He served a second notice on Mr. Murphy yesterday, ordering him to vacate the street. The engineer said that if he were permitted he would finish up the paving of the street in a hurry.

Reception at Y. M. C. A.

The reception tendered by the Ladies' auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian association to T. C. Marsh and G. A. Young, the former the retiring secretary and the latter the incoming secretary, was a decided success in every way. The association rooms were well filled all the evening. A number of congratulatory and reminiscent speeches were given. E. L. Howe acted as chairman of the evening. Messrs. Van Winkle, Ringer, Bailey, McLean, Marsh and Young responded. Mrs. Dr. White also spoke a few minutes on behalf of the Ladies' auxiliary. A number of athletic stunts of merit were presented. The women served plenty of refreshments. The membership of the association was divided in two classes for a membership canvass. Badges and ribbons were distributed in blue and red. The canvass lasts thirty days. The Blues are at present two ahead in the contest.

Engine Strikes Wagon.

Walter Nostrom, living in the vicinity of Fifty-fourth and Center streets, had his left shoulder dislocated in a railroad accident yesterday. He was driving into South Omaha with a team, and crossing the tracks at L and Thirty-sixth streets his wagon was struck by a Burlington engine on the stock yards track. The locomotive collided with the rear of the wagon and overturned it. Nostrom was thrown out. He was brought into the city and his arm set, returning home in the afternoon.

Masons Have Halloween Party.

The Halloween party given by the Masons Wednesday evening was one of the most pretentious among the numerous festivities of the season. The members were out in crowds and indulged in almost every variety of amusement. There was an apple eating contest for the men, which was won by Andy Majors at an abnormally high score. The women were induced to engage in a ball throwing contest, which was amusing. Everything in the hall, including the ceiling, was hit repeatedly, except the big pumpkin at which they threw. There were a few exceptions to this. Miss Laughlin winning the contest by three hits out of six. Miss Myrtle Keefer sang the opening solo, Miss Maud Henry rendered a piano solo, Miss Slate favored with a reading and Mrs. W. H. Slabaugh sang a solo.

His death came unexpectedly. There are several children, most of them away from home. Arrangements for the funeral have not as yet been made.

Very Low Rates Tuesday.

Every Tuesday, balance of the year, the Chicago Great Western railroad will sell homeseekers' tickets to Minnesota, North Dakota and Canadian northwest at about half rate; to other territory, first and third Tuesdays. Write J. A. Ellis, G. A. 1512 Farnam street. State number in party and when going.

Special Ladies' Notice

The drawing for the Old Aztecs Turquoise Navy Bean which was discontinued at Frandsen's Jewelry Store at 109 south 16th street, on account of the remodeling of the display window, will commence again Monday morning, Nov. 5th, and continue until 2,000 ladies' have drawn. The loose gem itself is worth, and never will be sold less than $3.00. There are 60 tickets among the number which calls for a gem. The chances to draw is free to ladies' or married gentlemen, providing they have same mounted in solid gold by us or a reliable jeweler which we may mention. This is no catch penny affair but our system of introducing the most handsome jewel in the world which is today the fad of London, Paris and New York society.

ALL GROCERS AND DRUGGISTS

CURRENT LITERATURE.

"Knock at a Venture," by Eden Philpotts, is a collection of ten short stories, which opens with "Mound by the Way," by far the longest and best, which ranks worthily with "The Secret Woman" in its understanding and interpretation of the emotions, the exaltations and weaknesses of human character in its least complex, its most primitive modern embodiment. It is a tale of love and jealously, of surrender and tragedy, whose protagonist is a simple young Dartmoor peasant. Love plays its part in two more of these tales, and in both the outcome is not what the routine of fiction would lead one to expect. Through all these tales—there is more optimism here than one usually finds in this writer's work—the Dartmoor peasant talks with all the shrewdness of his class, with all the raciness and richness of his dialect. Published by the Macmillan company.

Magazine readers will recall the "hit" that was made by The Reader a little over a year ago with the serial publication of "The House of a Thousand Candles." Meredith Nicholson has now written a new story, which begins in The Reader's November number under the title of "The Port of Missing Men." The first installment contains the elements that should make up a charming story.

"In Cure of Her Soul," by Frederic J. Stimson, is another story of social life of the class found in Mrs. Wharton's "House of Mirth." A young lawyer of high ideals marries a very pretty girl to save her from an unpleasant engagement. He becomes absorbed in his work and ambitions while his wife, who is not so interested in his work, goes her way and becomes an associate of people whose moral standard does not tend to elevate her own. As they drift farther apart the husband meets a woman who would have made a more suitable and companionable wife. Her early death causes a reconciliation between the husband and wife. It is not probable the book will be numbered among the best sellers. The D. Appleton company is the publisher.

"Literature: Its Principles and Problems," by Theodore W. Hunt, Ph. D., LL. D., professor of English in Princeton university, is evidently intended to discuss some of the fundamental topics that arise in any thorough study of so comprehensive and vital a subject as literature. As the discussion goes on its ultimate aim appears as that of suggestion and stimulus along the lines of inquiry that are opened and examined. The treatise is thus an eminently thoughtful presentation, and designed to awaken thought in every careful reader of its pages. It is especially to be commended to all students of literature with the assurance that they will find its conclusions substantially sound, and its final impression invigorating and inspiring. Published by Funk & Wagnalls.

"Making the Most of Ourselves," by Calvin Dill Wilson, is a book which can be perused with great benefit by all. The author, a practical, experienced writer for young people here offers a volume of fifty short essays on subjects of the most pertinent and timely interest. He addresses his readers in a clear, concise style and he is always sane, discriminating and sagacious. Some of the articles are: "Manner and One's Personality," "Virile Reading for Young Men," "The Duty of Learning to Laugh," "On Trying to Be Up-to-Date," "The Charming Art of Listening Well," "Thinking Straight and Seeing Clear," "The Magic of Geniality," etc.

Nestled in the embrace of Lakes Superior, Michigan and Huron, lies the gem of the north seas, Mackinac island. It is a famous summer resort and abounds in historic and legendary lore. The cover of the September Pilgrim shows a sunset at this enchanted spot. It is truly a striking thing and is the most beautiful cover the Pilgrim has ever shown—which is saying a great deal.

"A Servant of the Public," by Anthony Hope, is an intimate and unbiased story of the private life and personal feelings of a popular public character. While it is a character study of an actress, the story is not about the stage, and holds nothing in common with the conventional novel. Published by the Frederick A. Stokes Co.

"A Common Sense Hell," by Arthur Richard Rose, is the title of a book of alleged letters between a young Princeton graduate, who is desirous of entering the ministry, and his father, who is a Wall street banker. The son, seeking parental permission to enter his chosen field of work, is involved in a discussion with his practical father, who seems opposed to his views on the ground that orthodox teachings of Christianity are not logical, reasonable nor believable by thinking men. The lucid chain of reasoning by which the result is attained does not involve any wrestling of Bible language out of its common sense intent. It simply places new but perfectly permissible and reasonable interpretations upon some of the sayings of Christ, and deduces from these interpretations certain startling facts which had heretofore been overlooked. The G. W. Dillingham Company is the publisher.

The first number of the thirty-fourth volume of St. Nicholas appears in a new and becoming dress of type and its contents give promise of a richer and more attractive year than ever before in the history of this enduring favorite of the children. Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's series of fairy stories alone would make any volume notable. This number brings the tale of "How Winnie Hatched the Little Rooks," with this foreward and afterword from Queen Silver Bell:

"Now please to remember that it is a fairy who wrote this story—a real fairy, just as real as you are yourself—because if you don't remember it will make me scold like anything. The next story I am going to write is about two dolls' houses and the doll families who lived in them—and I know both families well. One doll's house was a grand one and one was a shabby, disreputable one, and one doll family I liked and the other doll family I didn't like. And you will have to read the story and find out for yourself—if you have sense enough—which was the nice one.—Queen Crosspatch."

"Memories of a Great Schoolmaster" (Dr. Henry A. Colt), by James P. Conover, "an old St. Paul's boy," are intended to recall "old boys' " impressions of the personality of one around whom grew a great school and whose name is among the cherished possessions of nearly three generations of St. Paul's men. The book is one that will be very much appreciated by all students and friends of St. Paul's school. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. is the publisher.

"In the Brooding Wild," by Ridgwell Cullum, is an absorbing drama of the frozen north. It is notable for its broad conception of elemental character, its realistic descriptions of nature in its fiercest moods and the intense excitement with which the reader's attention is held to the end. L. C. Page & Co. is the publisher.

Another book in the series entitled "Phyllis' Field Friends" is "Stories of Little Fishes," by Lenore Elizabeth Mulets. The author, while telling a very interesting story of Phyllis' outings and excursions, imparts much valuable information as to the characteristics, habits, etc., of the different varieties of fish, lizards, frogs, toads, snails and turtles that will be easily Page & Co. is the publisher.

STRANGER BLOWS OUT GAS

E. S. Stephens of Fullerton Gets Near to Death's Door by the Mistake.

The favorite pastime of verdant strangers in blowing out the gas was indulged in Thursday night by E. S. Stephens of Fullerton, nearly resulting in his death. Stephens arrived in Omaha late Thursday evening and obtained a room at the Windsor hotel, 522 South Tenth street, retiring soon afterward. Gas jets were evidently a new fangled contraption for Stephens, as he was found on the brink of death about 8 a. m. Friday by John Lorack, clerk at the hotel.

The odor of gas was detected in the hall and traced to the room occupied by Stephens and entrance effected by opening a window from an adjoining room. The fact that the window in Stephens' room was pulled down a short way from the top was the only thing that saved his life, as the room was full of gas.

Dr. Ford was hurriedly summoned and after several hours of strenuous work succeeded in restoring the man to consciousness and it is believed that he will recover.
