MOVE FOR GREATER OMAHA

Measure Will Be Introduced by Mike Lee in the Coming Legislature

STRONG PLEDGES OF SUPPORT FOR IT

Democrats Approached in New Charter Overthrow of Dalmian Regime Similar to Action Ten Years Ago.

"Greater Omaha, home-rule and terminal taxation," these will be three of the paramount issues of the coming legislature promoted by the Douglas delegation, as-serts Representative Michael Lee, who has been re-elected to the lower house of the legislature from Omaha. "I will go down to Lincoln in January—determined more firmly than ever to secure the passage of a bill that will make Omaha and South Omaha one city and pave the way for the great metropolis sure to result."

Mr. Lee introduced a bill of this character in the last session and he was in the midst of an animated speech for his bill on the floor of the house one day when two South Omahans, headed by a brass band, swept into the state capitol building, flocked to the house, like an army of Roman soldiers storming a citadel of old and completely took possession of things. Incidentally and unconsciously Speaker Rouse gave vent to a line of humor when he rapped with his gavel and commanded, "Sergeant-at-arms, command order." Buck Taylor of Omaha was sergeant-at-arms and he yelled back at the presiding officer, amid the din and turbulence of the impending assault on the Greater Omaha bill. "How, Mr. Speaker?"

Lee's bill died there and then. But not so with the resentment of South Omaha politicians for Mike Lee. This lived and election returns showed it. Indeed, for Mike Lee came out of the Meade City under an avalanche of votes. But he points to his course in the last session as proof against the charge that his contemplated course this time will, in the least, be actuated by a feeling of revenge.

Greater Good to Omaha.

"I will introduce a bill for a Greater Omaha," added Mr. Lee, "because I believe it will confer upon this city the greatest benefit which lies within the power of legislative enactment, a twin boon to terminal taxation. I believe, furthermore, that the great overwhelming majority of our people in Omaha and South Omaha want the two cities united, because they want to see their city develop to its utmost, and this is the only way by which it can do this. I am assured, already, of the earnest support of many people who, two years ago, stoutly opposed my measure. For one thing, the saloon keepers of South Omaha, hollered and browbeat under the present system, are almost to the man, anxious for the union of the two cities and the adoption of a new city charter for Greater Omaha that will protect them from the caprices of selfish politicians. Before I proceed with the drafting of a bill I shall complete a movement I have on foot to ascertain the feel-ing on this important subject of every business organization in the two cities and of the people generally; at that be con-sulted. Then, when I have found out what the public sentiment amounts to, I can be safely guided in my course."

"Of course, a Greater Omaha will very naturally involve a new charter, one that will fit the larger needs of a larger city. That will come under the same general head of proceedings and if in drafting this new charter we overturn some of the state government's functions, all the better for Omaha. If we show the power of selecting our fire and police boards in the hands of the city or its direct representatives, so much the better for Greater Omaha. I feel certain of the unanimous support of the rest of the Douglas county delegation."

Democrats Smell a Mouse.

The democrats smell a mouse in the movement for a Greater Omaha, or, for that matter, they affirm their belief that the republicans will attempt to overthrow the present city administration of Omaha by legislative act and institute a new charter, which will necessitate a special election in the spring for city officers.

"If they do this," said a democratic leader to The Bee, "we will reconstitute Jim Dalmian and elect him by over 5,000 majority."

"If the republicans do this they will be doing to the democrats and Jim Dalmian what the democrats did to the republicans and W. J. Brodick just ten years ago when they were in command of the legislature," chimed in a republican. At that time, as now, the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners was the pivot on which the issue turned. The mayor thrown out in 1897 was not re-elected, for the persons that he was not re-nominated. The republican, named Frank E. Moore and elected him over Ed Howell, who, as state senator, helped put through the measure to create the revolution. Jim Dalmian, strange to say, had a very active part in that revolution, too, for as secretary of the old transportation board, he exerted all his political prestige for the overthrow and was rewarded with the offer of appointment as chief of police—an offer which, for a variety of circumstances made him decline."

COMMON BASIS ON RATES

Railroad Men Striving to Reach Under-standings Before First of Year.

Railroad men are daily getting together in the large railroad centers trying to secure a common basis of understanding be-tween each other and the Interstate Com-merces commission on party rates, ex-cursion tariffs, special tariffs for laborers, emigration business, steamship business, editors' and fund men. All are striving to have a common basis before January 1, when the new law on free transportation goes into effect.

The entire passenger fraternity is await-ing with considerable interest the outcome of the discussion now being held in Wash-ington between experts of the Interstate Commerce commission and experts of the railroads on the question of tariffs and to arrive at an understanding as to a sensible system of passenger tariffs. This question lies largely within the discretion of the Interstate Commerce commission, and it is believed by passengers that the commission will not insist on complex and burdensome acts of tariffs which would

COLONEL IS A FINE FELLOW

Such is Mrs. Cody's Expression of Her Divorced Husband.

Buffalo, Ill.

Mrs. W. F. Cody and her little grandson were in Omaha for a short time Friday, enroute to Chattanooga to visit her daughter, Mrs. Irma Stotts, wife of Lieutenant Stotts of the army. Mrs. Cody said she was feeling the best she ever did in her life and she looked well. She said that no matter what others said, she would always have a good word for Colonel Cody, for he was always a "fine fellow," she said her ranch at North Platte was most prosperous, the only difficulty in the way being the trouble in securing enough laborers to handle the stock and crops.

Coughs of Children

Especially night coughs. Nature needs a little help to quiet the irritation, control the inflammation, check the progress of the disease. Our advice is—give the children Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ask your doctor if this is his advice also. He knows best. Do as he says, we have no secrets! We publish, free of charge, the names of all our preparations. Lowell, Mass.
