

BOYCOTT IS RENEWED

Chinese Called Upon to Show They Are United Against United States.

EXCLUSION LAW DECLARED TO BE CRUEL

Natives Who Buy American Goods Should Be Avoided by Others.

JAPANESE INFLUENCE IS MANIFEST

Agents of Island Horse Take Advantage of the Trouble.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION IS FAVORED

Appeal to Natives Declares that Salvation of China Depends Upon Development of People Along Practical Lines.

PEKING, Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Posters widely circulated here and in the provinces give promise of inaugurating a new era of revolt. One circular is headed by the warm-hearted people of Ipo. It is a passionate protest against the "cruel laws" made by America against the Chinese, and it calls on the people to maintain the boycott of American goods. It points to the success of the boycott and asserts that "it is carried on in such a civilized manner that no excuse can be found for its suppression."

The foreigners have characterized us Chinese as being without patriotism and without unity. It is our duty to prove that this is not true. Mr. Chang, a wealthy merchant of Shanghai, left his great fortune unearned in order to start the boycott. Mr. Pang, a young man of great talents, sacrificed his life for the purpose of encouraging his countrymen. Mr. Liang, Chinese minister at Washington, fought for the cancellation of the cruel exclusion laws at the risk of losing his appointment.

"Wealth, honor and life are things we all care for. But these three gentlemen were ready to give them all up in order that they should help their own countrymen. Ought we not to respect their motives and avoid the disgrace of being called 'soft-headed creatures'?" Boycott! Boycott!

Outraged Friends of America.

There are cold-blooded creatures of the lowest order who still buy American goods. Do not argue with them. Let all Chinese with warm blood flowing in their veins apply to these low beings the same method that they have done to American goods."

Another circular is much graver, because it plainly shows Japanese influence. When the boycott of American goods started in China last year, many foreigners declared that it was begun and secretly engineered by the Japanese. This charge was made, not because of any direct proof, but because of the almost universal suspicion of Japanese policy and intentions felt by white people in the far east. A careful inquiry has demonstrated that this charge is unfounded. The American boycott was of Chinese origin and under Chinese control. But it is true that certain Japanese agents of the Japanese government monopoly and others utilized the boycott and sought to extend it to other goods.

A poster from Hankow gives good proof of this. The heading is: "Hasten to read this, patriotic gentlemen."

Avoid American Cigarettes.

"This poster is an appeal to boycott American cigarettes and other Japanese goods. Americans are composed of wicked minds, poisonous as acid." It asserts: "They have told the British that they sell cigarettes in order to injure Chinese and ruin their lives. To ask for one of their cigarettes is to ask for the death of a Chinese. If you smoke this, your heart is as hard as a wolf. Are you not afraid that the thunder will strike you?"

The final paragraph of this poster reveals its source of origin. "Should you wish to smoke cigarettes, smoke the Dragon or Phoenix brands, manufactured by the Japanese Government Tobacco Bureau, whose agents are the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha."

The third piece of literature is a small pamphlet that was issued and circulated in the interior of the province of Hubei. This province was up to quite recently the most bitterly anti-foreign part of China, and was noted for its bad treatment of white missionaries and travelers. Hubei has been caught in the wave of reform and is sending new ways.

The pamphlet is written in the most familiar colloquial Chinese in order to appeal to the common man. It is logical and able, and what we should call a masterly political appeal. It points out that China today is surrounded by many nations, Japan to the east, Russia to the north, England, France, Germany, America to the west. All of these are stronger than China, and they have all determined to steal Chinese territory. If a nation's land is gone, that nation is ruined. What can be done to stop them?

Some Good Advice. First, the Chinese must learn. There is not a foreigner who does not give twenty years to study. The women of foreigners carry books about with them, so that eventually they can read. These foreigners study not the classics, but practical things. Technical education is their strength. Let China have technical education.

The Chinese woman must abandon foot binding and the Chinese man must put his opium pipe on one side. China must be united. So long as there is no cohesion, China cannot stand. The writer uses the familiar illustration of the bundle of sticks to enforce this point. The Chinese must show increased mutual love for one another, each helping the other.

Following this, the writer gives an example of last year. Italy has broken off commercial treaty negotiations with China. The new Chinese policy forbids the smallest attempt to meet the foreigner half way, and it is regarded as unlikely that either of the remaining treaty powers will open similar negotiations. Article VIII of the Mackay treaty of 1902 abolishing Opium and other duties, thus becoming a dead letter.

BOER RAIDER IS CAPTURED

Fezzera, with Entire Force, Taken in Cape Colony by Colonial Patrols.

SUFFRAGISTS IN PRISON

Woman Released from Jail Tells Treatment—Bernard Shaw on Subject.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Regarding the women's suffrage, it is called here the "suffragette" movement. This is a terrible moment in our national life. We are not often thoughtful of the women of England, but the world knows that a great part overshadows our island. It is not the first time that we have faced dangers that have made even our gayest and bravest clench their teeth and hold their breath. We watched the suffragettes, creeping slowly up the channel. We wiped our brow when chance revealed the treason of Guy Fawkes. We are listening even now for the bugle of the German invader, and scanning the waves we rule for the periscope of the French submarine. But now we have faced a danger as like mine, our Parliament unshaken in our midst, grandly calm as the Roman senators who sat like statues when Brennus and his barbarians charged blood-stained into their hall.

"But the strongest nerves give way at last. The secret of Philip was, when all is said, only men. German soldiers, French bluecoats, Guy Fawkes, bold and dangerous as they were, were no females. The peril today wears a darker, deadlier aspect. Ten women—ten petticoated, long-suffering, cowled females have hurried themselves on the British houses of Parliament. Desperate measures are necessary. I have a right to speak in this matter, because it was in my play, 'Man and Superman,' that my sex was first worried of woman's terrible strength and man's miserable weakness."

Mrs. Dora Montefiore, one of the suffragettes just released for disorderly conduct in the House of Commons, interviewed.

"While looking at the rest of my countrymen, I was treated in the jail just like a common criminal—as if we had committed murder or theft. We were shown no special consideration. Monstrous treatment was shown us when we arrived. 'What's your religion?' I was asked. 'I'm freethinker,' I replied. 'Freethinker?' said the woman official. 'That's no religion. Why don't you say you haven't got a religion?' Well, I'll put you down as a Protestant, for that's what you're so long as you're here."

"After a long stay in the cell, I was taken to a room where we were to be held for trial. Here, in a room which was changed over from a cell for prisoners, we were held. We were not allowed to talk. 'What's your name?' I was asked. 'I'm Dora Montefiore,' I replied. 'Freethinker?' said the woman official. 'That's no religion. Why don't you say you haven't got a religion?' Well, I'll put you down as a Protestant, for that's what you're so long as you're here."

"The circular concludes with details of the marks on American goods, so that all can know them. 'Another circular is much graver, because it plainly shows Japanese influence. When the boycott of American goods started in China last year, many foreigners declared that it was begun and secretly engineered by the Japanese. This charge was made, not because of any direct proof, but because of the almost universal suspicion of Japanese policy and intentions felt by white people in the far east. A careful inquiry has demonstrated that this charge is unfounded. The American boycott was of Chinese origin and under Chinese control. But it is true that certain Japanese agents of the Japanese government monopoly and others utilized the boycott and sought to extend it to other goods.'

MAXIM GORKY REPRESSED

Italy Objects to Rioting Which Follows Meeting of Author at Naples.

ROME, Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Maxim Gorky's pro-Russian revolutionary meeting at Naples was followed by rioting in the streets and by action of the Italian government, which suggested to Mr. Gorky that he must exercise a little more prudence while acting as the apostle of revolution. Italy has already suffered from the effects of a socialist revolutionary campaign in relation to Russia. A campaign of this nature some years ago prevented the proposed visit of the czar to Italy. Official circles in the czar's dominions at the time regarded the affair as an insult from little Italy to mighty Russia, and it seriously embarrassed negotiations then pending for a commercial treaty between the two countries. Similar negotiations are now proceeding, and the authorities have issued stern orders that the Gorky propaganda shall be kept within severe limits, as the government is determined not to have its action hampered a second time by anti-Russian propaganda in Italy. Gorky has been watched by the police and soldiers, who have received strict instructions to put down any attempts which may be made by the admirers of the Russian author to resist the regulations laid down for their guidance.

This receiving a number of pilgrims the other day the pontiff, notwithstanding the severe attack of gout which he had, looked his old self, and was tranquil and benevolent as ever. At the end of the ceremony, however, he evinced great signs of fatigue, and appeared to be in pain. His pallor was at once conveyed to his private room.

CATHEDRAL ARCHITECT COMES

London Experts Say No Mistake Was Made in Selection of Bodley.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—(Special.)—The decision of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States to entrust to G. J. Bodley, R. A., the preparation of the designs for a great cathedral at Washington, has not been without its detractors here. A New York architect, now in London, in an interview, said that Mr. Bodley's ecclesiastical work was so well known and appreciated in the states that no American could possibly take offense at the selection. "It is to be hoped that a really fine cathedral will be built in Washington," he said. "In the building of offices and town and country mansions and the like American architects, who have as a rule all studied in Europe, have nothing to learn, but in ecclesiastical work they are distinctly unlearned."

"The Gothic art, too, is almost ignored in America, the prevailing craze being for the Italian school. No better selection could have been made than that of Mr. Bodley."

Mr. Bodley received a personal visit this summer from the bishop of Washington, and the final arrangements were made recently by cable.

Mr. Bodley leaves next week for Washington, and will remain a month. Harry Vaughan, with whom he will work on the designs, is a prominent Boston architect.

TY IS SCORED

Indignant at Structures Passed Upon American Home Rule Leader.

LONDON TIMES GIVES LETTER PUBLICITY

Echo of Recent Visit of O'Connor to the United States.

WORDS DECLARED TO BE MURDEROUS

Old Scores Dug Up by Writer Who Deems a Like Agitator.

IRISH HEIRS WANTED FOR LARGE ESTATE

American Notary Takes Evidence in Dublin to Find Relatives of John Sullivan, Pacific Coast Millionaire.

DUBLIN, Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Considerable indignation has been caused throughout Ireland by the publication in the London Times of the following from the pen of "The Editor of Grievances from Ireland": "At the American convention of the United Irish League, just held in Philadelphia, T. P. O'Connor conveyed to his hearers, on behalf of John E. Redmond, M. P., a very flattering opinion of John E. Finerty, who has just resigned the office of president of the American United Irish League. He said: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned orator, John E. Finerty Irish World, October 7, 1906, then Michael J. Ryan was the man to take his place. A part of Finerty's services to Ireland is recorded in the official government report of the Parnell commission, volume 1, page 25, in which a speech of this same gentleman is quoted, containing the following murderous opinions: 'I am going to tell you my private impressions. I was told by the leader of the Irish party that if the organization were to be deprived of the inestimable services of that splendid Irishman, that unparagoned