LEE MERGER BILL POPULAR

Greater Omaha Measures Meets Approval of Leading Men in Both Cities.

WILL REDUCE COST OF GOVERNMENT

Property Prices Would Increase and These Practical Features Are Winning New Friends Daily for the Proposed Law.

"Greater Omaha is the most popular cause I ever espoused," asserted Representative Lee, who will introduce the bill in the coming legislature to unite Omaha and South Omaha. It is a popular measure, and many of them have pledged their unqualified support in the fight. These men, most of them, are of South Omaha. They have been studying in the last two years. They have learned that they are actually paying more taxes in South Omaha than they pay in Omaha, in any other city of the state.

"I find that some of the most bitter enemies of the Lee bill two years ago are now among the strongest friends. They measure and many of them have pledged their unqualified support in the fight. These men, most of them, are of South Omaha. They have been studying in the last two years. They have learned that they are actually paying more taxes in South Omaha than they pay in Omaha, in any other city of the state."

"But this is not the least of the good people of Omaha have discovered. They understand that in addition to their heavy taxes they are now called on to issue bonds for $600,000 to the amount of $200,000. That is nothing more or less than a tax on the people who are looking to building up a city for the larger good of the people, rather than to the selfish interests of a handful of politicians who want to feed upon the public crib, are determined on securing relief from these conditions, especially since that relief will work out to their advantage in so many other different ways."

"Another source of expense to the South Omaha is a city tax collector, in a Greater Omaha, the county assessor, who now looks out for this business for Omaha, would do the same work. Likewise the money now paid for the support of a city treasurer in South Omaha could be saved, for Greater Omaha's fiscal interests could be looked after by the county and city treasurer, who now looks after those of Omaha, along with the county. And my bill will contemplate making Greater Omaha the assessor for the county, and so to be delivered to a place which was this will do away, in the end, with another source of public expense. Every little helps, you know."

Business Men Want It

"Upon personal investigation I find the great industrial interests of South Omaha want the cities merged; the small business men want them merged, and everybody who is honestly working for the upbuilding of a great metropolis in Omaha wants the cities merged, that is if he really has studied out the situation and will allow himself to be guided by a view to the larger welfare of the public, rather than influenced by sordid ends for personal profit."

"A real estate man of many years experience in Omaha told me if we could, through the operation of a Greater Omaha, build up a city base of 50,000 population, it will increase all property within the city from 10 to 25 per cent in value and property surrounding 50 per cent. It looks like that sort of testimony ought to be worth something."

C. W. HULL EXPANDS BUSINESS

Buys Eighteen Lots Adjoining Other Tract for Big Coal and Material Yards.

"I positively refuse to say a word for publication," said C. W. Hull of the C. W. Hull company when asked what there was to the report circulating in real estate circles that the firm had bought eighteen lots along the Burlington right-of-way in Omaha for the largest coal and building material yards in the city or state. These eighteen lots make seventy which the company now owns from Twenty-fourth street west to the tracks and from Spring street south to the boulevard. Ten of these lots recently were bought from Mrs. Emily V. Preston of Seattle for $500, four from W. E. Sweetland of Kansas City for $150 and four from Hans Peterson of South Omaha for $150.

Slidings and spurs will be built and it is reported the entire improvements will entail an outlay of $100,000.

FORGER WORKS COAL DEALERS

Crook Passes Off Spurious Checks for Black Diamonds Sent to Vacant Lot.

Several coal dealers were victimized Friday by a clever forger, who has not been captured as yet, but his complete description was telephoned to all coal dealers by the detectives in order that he may be apprehended if he should again try his craft. The forger telephoned checks for $2, $5 and $10, in order to get a ton of coal, and at last agreed to leave the city within twenty-four hours and was dismissed from custody by Judge Crawford afterward found to be a vacant lot. The same woman to perfection in several instances, G. Fred Elmsner & Co., 168 Franklin street, being one of the first caught.

MAN MAKES SEVERE CHARGE

States in Petition for Divorce Woman Threatened to Cut His Throat.

Fred Atkins has filed in the office of the clerk of the district court an amended petition in an action against Alice Atkins for divorce. Mr. Atkins alleges his wife threatened to cut his throat with a butcher knife at Marshalltown, Ia., on August 15, 1905; during November of 1905 at the same town Atkins avers his wife hurled a shoe at him with such velocity as to cause physical and mental suffering. The petitioner also set forth that his wife tried to do an impeachment act with table knives, using the plaintiff for a target.

Mary Jones has filed a petition asking for divorce, alimony and furniture from Warren B. Jones, whom she says she married at Wichita, Kan., July 19, 1905.

DAY SUSPENDS BUSINESS

Grain Firm in Board of Trade Building Shuts Its Doors Saturday.

F. D. Day & Co., a grain option trading firm in the Board of Trade building and a member of the National Board of Trade, Kansas City, has apparently gone out of business. Saturday morning neither Mr. Day nor his lieutenant appeared at the office and a transfer company sent vans to haul away the furniture. Several clerks and operators stayed about the office all forenoon looking for Mr. Day. They said they had not received any salary for some time.

PORCH CLIMBERS ARRIVE

Advance Guard of Denver and Colorado Springs Contingent Reaches This City.

It seems possible the advance guard of the second-story thieves, who have been operating so successfully at Denver and Colorado Springs, has arrived in Omaha as the home of C. F. Sanderson, 234 Second street, was entered by one of these clever scamps Friday afternoon. The man gained entrance by climbing up the window shutter to a second story window and thoroughly ransacked the premises, but failed to connect with any property of value.

NO PASSES TO LAND AGENTS

Free Transportation Cut Off and West Will Suffer, Says Gerrit Fort.

GREAT FACTOR OF COLONIZATION GONE

Union Pacific Passenger Official Deprecates Influence of Commission's Action on Nebraska and Other New States.

The power of the Interstate Commerce commission to change conditions in an entire community by an enforcement of the new law was brought out forcibly Saturday, when the Union Pacific railroad decided, upon advice of the legal department, to recall all passes issued to land agents immediately. Representatives of the passenger departments of all western roads met with the commission a week ago Friday in Washington, and on a complaint of the Illinois Central to test the commission on that subject, the commission, while not making a ruling, conveyed the idea and expressed the sentiment formally that the granting of free transportation to land agents was unlawful.

Gerrit Fort, assistant general passenger agent of the Union Pacific, returned from the east Saturday, and in regard to the question of land agents said:

"The passenger department of the Union Pacific has consulted with the legal department and has decided immediately to annul the passes of land agents issued to agents immediately. Representatives of the passenger departments of all western roads met with the commission a week ago Friday in Washington, and on a complaint of the Illinois Central to test the commission on that subject, the commission, while not making a ruling, conveyed the idea and expressed the sentiment formally that the granting of free transportation to land agents was unlawful."

Other Roads Will Follow.

"Indications are the other western roads will have to follow the lead of the Union Pacific, and this means 30,000 men who have been engaged in the business of bringing men to the west from the east will have to change their system and work along other lines. Scarcely a town or township in the west but what has had a land agent who has made it a business to work through the east to induce settlers to come west. All the west has prospered beyond measure by the aid the railroad have given to the colonization movement, which has been a great system with the land agents in the east, working up settlers and buyers to come west, and the railroad, for their share, hauling these agents free and giving rates on every road and Tuesday whereby these could be moved west at greatly reduced rates. This free arrangement has been going on for years, the railroad doing a tremendous share in the great upbuilding of the west and now by one fell swoop of the law makers and under the orders of the Interstate Commerce commission, appointed to see that these laws are carried out, the whole system is to be changed and another system will have to be inaugurated to get settlers to come west and to advertise the resources of the west. Land agents cannot afford to pay $40 or $60 railroad fare to run over to Indiana or Illinois or Michigan to induce some wealthy farmer to move to the west. The chances of such a failure would be too great and he could not afford the expense, whereas before, with the railroad giving him free transportation, he could travel around the country in the hope of picking up a settler who would move his family to the west and thus increase its prosperity."

No Easy Task.

"It has been no easy task to tell the people of the east that this great state, which was once known as the Great American Desert, is now as fertile as any land on earth. The railroads and the land agents have all worked in unison in exploiting the resources of the western states, but the system is now broken and a new one will have to be devised."

"No part of the country will suffer from this ruling like the west, for no part of the country has been added to the extent the west by the railroads working in conjunction with the land agents. For years the west has faced the complaint of the eastern roads of robbing the east of the middle states for the settlement of the west."

In anticipation of the change which will be necessitated the Burlington railroad will call a meeting of a limited number of land agents from Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Wyoming, men representing all classes of land, the semi-arid, the arid, the irrigated and other land interests—for Friday, December 7, at 10 a. m. in the general offices of the company in Omaha. These men, who have for years been engaged in the settlement of the west, will then consult with the Burlington passenger officials on the question of transportation and the methods of selling lands to be followed in the future. The Burlington officials wish to obtain a little light on the subject and hope to find a way out of the difficulty and to see what kind of organization is necessary to conform with the law.

The Absent-Minded Man.

A record-breaker in absent-mindedness is certainly a Paris citizen, who appeared the other day before a magistrate to ask for a marriage license. He answered correctly and without hesitation all the questions as to his name, age and occupation, but when asked for the name of his fiancée he became embarrassed and finally replied dejectedly that he had entirely forgotten to ask her for it. This, remarks a Boulevard paper, recalls the distraction of the famous table poet, La Fontaine. Meeting one day in a salon a young man, he was so favorably impressed by his conversation that he expressed his admiration for him in the most flattering terms. "But he is your own son," exclaimed a guest, in astonishment. "Is it so?" replied the poet; "then I am the more delighted to make his acquaintance."—New York Tribune.

TRUSTS PUT WAGES HIGHER

Standard Oil, Copper and Steel Corporations Will Let Men Prosper.

One reason for the general tendency of trust managers to increase the wages of the workmen was brought out in New York by a trade agency, which reported that the present cost of living was the highest in twenty years. According to Dun's index number of commodity prices proportioned to consumption, issued yesterday, the average cost was $106.53 on November 11 last. Compared with a year ago on the same date the present cost, as shown by the index number, is 15% higher.

Another reason given by financiers is that the industrial corporations are all in a highly prosperous condition and the scores of plants are being worked to their full capacity and under high pressure. Under these conditions it is said to be the policy of the management of the larger corporations to have their workmen participate in the prosperity.

Men of prominence in the financial world saw in the concerted action of the great corporations a desire to checkmate the growing tide of antagonism to corporations such as was brought out in the recent election. The discontent among the laboring element, the higher cost of living, the lowered purchasing power of the dollar unit and the effect of the disclosure of corporate abuses, it is generally admitted here, forced the corporations to adopt a more liberal policy to the workmen and thereby conciliate the active antagonism which was reflected in the election.

It became known that the Standard Oil company had decided before the public election to increase wages. The first public announcement was made yesterday, when it was said that the Standard Oil company, a subsidiary concern manufacturing lubricating oils, had increased the wages of its men. Practically all the subsidiary companies will make similar announcements to 6,000 men within the next few weeks. The increase will affect more particularly the men who receive less than $125 a month.

The action of the Copper Trust in Montana in offering to increase the wages of its men 10 per cent will be no surprise to those familiar with the conditions of the labor market in the great Butte copper camp. There has been a scarcity of miners for several months, and the production of copper, despite the great demand, has not increased more than 5 to 10 per cent as compared with the production last year. The increase in consumption, it is estimated, has been at least 20 per cent. Many estimate the increase in consumption to be about 40 per cent.

In the case of the Pennsylvania, which increased the wages of its men by about $2,000,000, the action was also voluntary. With the exception of a single labor trouble in one of the Standard Oil company's eastern refineries, there has been no demand for increased wages from its 90,000 employees.

Timely Precaution

"Maria," said Mr. Quigley, entering his home in some excitement, "I want you to promise me not to look at the papers for the next three months!"

"What for?" wonderingly asked Mrs. Quigley.

"I have just been nominated for a public office," he faltered, "and I don't want you to find out what kind of man I really am."—Chicago Tribune.
