"The speakers of the churches of Omaha working as one unit with all the men in "team play," to use a football term, has been a gratifying sight and will be of permanent value to Omaha."

Dr. Herring said he believed the work done was of a particularly lasting nature because it had not been accompanied under stress of undue emotion, nor was it the result of any personal quality in Dr. Torrey. It was purely the result of what he preached.

SOME WEAK SPOTS IN THE LID

Police Arrest Proprietors of Three Saloons Charged With Violating Sunday Closing.

Just as though Chief of Police Donahue never uttered a word about the closing of saloons on Sunday; as though several arrests had not been made during the last month and law violators punished, and with the greatest disregard for the announcement of Police Judge Crawford that he will deal more severely with future law breakers who have had the benefit of fair warning three saloons were found to be open and doing business Sunday afternoon, according to the police and the proprietors arrested.

The first to fall a victim was Henry Burmeister, 706 South Thirteenth street, whose place of business was raided by Sergeant Cook and Patrolmen Waters and Troby. The next was George Zelle, 923 South Street, who was discovered and locked up by the same squad, and the third was George A. Walker, 144 North Twenty-fourth street, whom Waters and Troby trapped alone. The first was charged with selling liquor on Sunday and the others with keeping disorderly houses.

While the three arrests reveal the fact the lid failed to cover properly, they do not indicate the extent of its shortcomings. Saloons in the downtown district have apparently got into the habit of observing a weekly day of rest, but a number of outlying drink stands looked very suspicious a part of the day at least.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Charged with the theft of a quantity of furs last Saturday afternoon from the barn of Mrs. K. M. Boyden and Henry Allison, two junk dealers, were each fined $50 and costs in police court.

A union meeting of the Modern Woodmen of America chapter was held at the hall of Magnolia camp No. 183, corner Twenty-fourth street and Ames avenue, on Tuesday evening, December 18, at the hall of Magnolia camp No. 183, corner Twenty-fourth street and Ames avenue.

The groom is a wealthy cattleman of Denver and has attained the venerable age of 64 years, while his bride is just Denver. Some time ago he won the heart of Mrs. McCole of Gravity, Ia., and it was arranged they should meet at Omaha and be married, afterward going on an extended honeymoon, to include a tour of Cuba, and two came to the appointed place, but their plans threatened to miscarry when Mrs. McCole became sick. However, this was not allowed to interfere with the most important detail, and arrangements were made with the minister to say the words in the bride's room. Several friends of the bride were present from Iowa, and when Mrs. Robinson recovers her health the journey to Cuba will be taken up.

Announcements of the Theaters. At the Boyd this afternoon a special matinee performance of "The Squaw Man" will allow a number of people to see a splendid play finely presented by a magnificent acting organization. It would be difficult to exaggerate the merits of either play or company, and the house should be crowded this afternoon. The closing performance will be given this evening.

"The County Chairman," which is coming to the Boyd for an end-of-the-week extravaganza, beginning on Thursday evening, is well known here as one of George Ade's best productions. Mr. Theodore Babcock is still portraying Jim Hacker, the county political boss, and the company with him is a good one. A matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon.

At the Burwood theater Miss Elliott is delighting all by her splendid performance in the role of Camille in the great Dumas play. It is her closing bill, and her work is even better than anything she has yet done here. The regular professional matinee will be given this afternoon, and all visiting parties will be made welcome at the theater.

"Not Yet But Soon," Hap Ward's latest fun show, is booked at the Krug for two nights, starting tonight. Matinee Wednesday. The piece has "made good" since the opening night. It is full of color, life, music, humor and pretty girls. The scenes are two in number and Manager E. D. Blair has been most lavish in mounting them. Mr. Ward has one of those humorous characters for which he is famous, and the performance is said to be highly amusing from start to finish. Fifty people, including Lucy Daly, are used in the production.

MISINFORMED OR GREAT LIAR

Answer of Captain Storey to Chancellor Andrews' Condemnation of Salvation Army.

"Our books are open to the public and anyone who comes with an honest desire to see our work conducted honestly will be allowed every opportunity to make a thorough examination."

This was the statement made by Captain T. H. Storey, head of the Salvation Army work in Omaha, in answer to the statement made by Chancellor Andrews of the University of Nebraska that the Salvation Army was a plague and that its books were not open to the public.

"Chancellor Andrews has either been greatly misinformed or is a very great liar," said Captain Storey. "To state that our books are not open to the public is ridiculous. Every cent of money collected by our organization is accounted for in as strict a manner as the money of a bank. For every dollar which we receive, if we know the donor, we give a receipt. Every month the board of each corps sends in a report showing all receipts and disbursements and this report is checked up by an expert auditor."

"The field in Lincoln, from which the chancellor condemns, is a very hard one. It has always been regarded as a poor field. Little is done there beside the religious work. The last report of the captain there shows that he received an average of $4.96 a week, out of which he must pay the living expenses of himself for the first seven days of the month."

"Chancellor Andrews has either spoken maliciously or else he has spoken whereof he does not know."

ONCE GRAFT DOES NOT GO

Trunk and Gold Brick Game Falls to Work on Publication Office.

An effort is being made by the police to get the federal authorities interested in the case of J. Angerman and Lillian Hoff, who were arrested Saturday afternoon on the charge of defrauding Besse Wear of $28, which was a trunk filled with bricks and other rubbish as security. Besse Wear paid the money as charges at the United States Express company's office on a trunk for the Henry Hoffman, and the money was then sent to Angerman. It is thought possible that the prisoners can be held on the charge of using the mails with intent to defraud by having the spoils of the clever film-film game sent through the mails to Angerman.

Angerman went to the local headquarters of P. F. Collier, the firm he claimed to represent, and told Manager Rice that he was an old Collier employe and would like to get a job. He presented a letter purporting to be from the Davenport house of Collier and Mr. Rice mapped out a route for him.

"Oh, er, by the way," said Angerman as he was leaving the office, "I have a trunk at an express office and they may call up here about it. If they do I wish you would say charges on it and charge them to my account."

That didn't look very good to Mr. Rice and his skeptical nature began to get busy. It was only a little while till the call about the trunk came. There were three of them—trunks. Mr. Collier's and Mr. Angerman severed relations there and then.

FUGITIVE FATHER CAUGHT

Denver Man Who Deserts Wife and Children Runs Into the Law.

L. Schenke, reported from Denver to the local humane society as having deserted his wife and three sons, has been located by humane officers at 29 South Twelfth street.

When the husband became drunk he left his family and arrived at Omaha in July. Schenke was taken in custody by Humane Officer Clawson, but, with the understanding that he would get work at once and the weekly remittances to his family through the local humane society, he was released. The man said he will send for his family as soon as he has secured enough money.

DOVE OF PEACE SUPREME

Man and Woman Resume Matrimonial Relations After Hot Fight for Divorce.

After having secured a divorce in a spirited trial before Judge Kennedy, Charles G. Logan and Minnie S. Logan have had the decree set aside and have decided to patch up differences and go to living together again. They told the court if the decree was not set aside they would get married again so Judge Kennedy granted the request.

The divorce was secured by Mr. Logan. He charged his wife, among other things, with having an ungovernable temper, with constantly belittling the virtues of his first wife and lauding the character of her first husband, and for making life generally unbearable for him. Before the decree was granted Judge Kennedy sought to have them make up, but they declared they would never live together again. After the decree was granted they speedily changed their minds.

Peter C. Norgard wants a divorce from Sylvia E. Norgard. He charges her with using a butcher knife to chase him out of the house, taking his wages for three months and depositing them to her own account and selling a wagon, for which he paid $65, for $15 and converting the money to her own use.

In her answer and cross-petition Alice Adkins denies the allegations made against her by Fred Adkins in his petition for divorce and charges him with misconduct and nonsupport. She wants the court to grant her separate maintenance.

Emma H. Snodgrass asks for a divorce from Edward L. Snodgrass on the grounds of nonsupport. She asks the restoration of her former name, Emma H. Giesman.

JEWS CELEBRATE CHANUKKA

Appropriate Exercises Sunday in Commemoration of Maccabean Victory.

PROGRAM BY SABBATH SCHOOL CHILDREN

Re-establishment of Race in Palestine Predominant Subject at Meeting Under Auspices of Omaha Zion Council.

In commemoration of the victory of the Maccabees over the Syrian tyrant, Antiochus, in the Jewish religion, the Omaha Zion Council, which in Omaha celebrated the Festival of Chanukka, or the Feast of Lights, Sunday morning.

The festival began last Tuesday evening and will continue until Wednesday evening. The programs yesterday comprised the children's part in the festivities and were carried out entirely by the members of the Sabbath school.

The festival corresponds in a measure to the Christian celebration of Christmas, though it dates back 190 years before the Christian era. At the close of the program boxes of candy and oranges were distributed among the little ones of the congregations.

The part of the program distinctly symbolic of the event which it commemorates was the opening number, called "The Lighting of the Lights." It is a symbol of the reconsecration and rededication of the temple after it had been desecrated by the Maccabees. The symbols were eight candles on the altar, which were lighted one by one while eight small children recited verses with appropriate sentiments.

At Temple Israel the children who took part in this portion of the program and the sentiments of their verses were as follows: "Our God," Irving Kleis; "The Tablets," Mabel Harris; "The Patriarchs," Joe Miller; "The Mothers," Frances Kopold; "The Books," Willie Pollack; "The Work Days," Minnie Wolf; "The Sabbath," Norman Nathanson; "The Lights," Rosalind Kuhn; "The Feast of Lights," followed by the invocation by Sam Peller.

The greater part of the program consisted of recitations and music by the children and it closed by the singing of "America." The program in full was as follows: "The Lighting of the Lights," eight small children; Piano solo, Dora Bachman.
