

RUINED HOMES IN IRELAND

Omaha Visitor Sketches a Scene of Domestic Legislation.

HEARTLESS GREED OF ALIEN LANDLORDS

Evictions Becoming Fewer as People Secure Title to Land-Dawn of Brighter Days for the Emerald Isle.

Far across the deep broad Atlantic there is a little land of sunshine and cloud, of everlasting green hills, romantic valleys and ivy-covered ruins.

But I saw a picture in Ireland lately that no artist has yet put down in colors. It was a pathetic picture of homeless sorrow—an old Irish mother wandering around the ruins of her evicted and deserted home.

Attachments of Home.

No place is so dear to every mother's heart as home. No one is so tender to the tenderest emotions of the child's heart as that one word, nor send the tear-drops more quickly to the eye than that one word—home.

With such thoughts let me present a picture of a frail white-haired old woman gazing upon the scenes of happier days.

Picture of Ruined Homes.

The ruins were situated in one of the wildest and most beautiful valleys in Ireland, surrounded by soft green fields and heather-covered hills.

The door, broken and battered, lay ajar, but from within no sound of human voice responded; only the moaning wind and the steady drip of damp moisture fell upon our ears.

The chimney, as if in mockery, held its mouth to the sky, but no rings of smoke ascended upwards, telling of warmth and comfort within.

One day each month will be set apart for the hearing of naturalization cases.

Under the new law the names of applicants must be posted three months and after that the hearings which partake of the nature of a regular court trial can be held.

the open gate and no warning bark broke the stillness of the place. Desolation reigned supreme in this deserted farm, where once the sounds of childish laughter and the little ones leaped their first prances.

Dawn of Better Days. But the dawn of brighter days has come for Ireland. Evictions are fewer and the people gradually becoming the owners of the land.

Though Ireland's sons and daughters may not return to reap the blessings of better times, nevertheless they look back with longing desire to the old land across the western ocean and say, in the words of a fellow-exile: "Many obstacles may be thrown in our way in foreign lands, and we may have forgotten many things in our struggle for existence, but some things we never forget, among them the land of our birth and the home of our ever-faithful Irish mother."

KIDNAPERS LOSE THE CHILD

Father and Two Others Take Baby from Mother, Who Recovers It.

EXCITEMENT REIGNS FOR A TIME

Attorney for Woman Who Attempts to Prevent Kidnaping is Cracked on the Mouth in the Shuffle.

Three men kidnaped Bessie Harvey, a 2-year-old child, from the Creche at Ninth-street and Harvey streets Saturday morning about 11 o'clock by passing the child out of the window, and as a result the little girl's mother is on the verge of nervous prostration and F. B. Palmer, Mrs. Harvey's attorney, who tried to interfere, is wearing a swollen lip, given him by one of the men.

The three men who accomplished the feat of taking the child from the very sight of its mother and her attorney are Taylor Harvey of Leavenworth, its father; Robert Davis, a street car man, uncle of Mrs. Harvey, and Chester Hazen, Davis' brother-in-law.

After the exciting incident Davis went to the court house with Superintendent Ellison of the Humane society and made a very frank statement of his part in it.

With Hazen they went to the Creche Saturday morning and Harvey went inside to talk with his wife. Davis says they had decided to get the child by force, if necessary, and as Mrs. Harvey would not give it up, Harvey grabbed it and handed it out to Davis through the window.

Palmer tried to stop them, but one of the men landed a heavy blow on his lip and they ran for the Farnam car. Palmer scurried to the court house and broke into a session of the juvenile court.

Superintendent Ellison of the Humane society was sent with him to investigate. Mrs. Harvey was hysterical, but the manager told them the men got on a Farnam car going west with the child. Mr. Ellison went to Davis' home on South Twenty-ninth street, but did not find the little one.

Davis was there, however, and he consented to accompany Mr. Ellison to the court house, where he told his story. He maintained Harvey went at once to the Burlington depot and took a train out of town.

Palmer said he would file a complaint with the county authorities, charging Davis with assault and some other things. Mrs. Harvey expects to sue for divorce as soon as she has established a residence in Omaha. She charges her husband with drunkenness. Harvey says he will start a suit for divorce as soon as he gets back to Leavenworth.

Court Puts Child in Orphanage. Judge Sutton listened to the story of the kidnaping and of the troubles of the parents Saturday afternoon and then committed the child to St. James orphanage until he can make a further investigation into the records of the parents.

Mother—I'm ashamed to think you can't do better in school. Why can't you lead your class?

Willie—Say, ma, you told me you didn't care for us and we were to be sent to a school when a boy leads the class he always gets conceeded.

Small Harry, during his first visit to the country, saw some ducks swimming in a pond.

"Grandma," he exclaimed, "look at the chickens skating on the water!"

"Tommy," said his mother, "if I give you a piece of pie will you try to be a good boy?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied Tommy, "an' I'll try to be gooder if you'll give me two pieces."

"My mother wears a No. 2 shoe," said the first little girl, proudly.

"Pooh!" rejoined the other little girl, in a tone redolent with contempt. "That's nothing. My mother wears a No. 4."

Neighbor—How many men board at your house now, Nettie?

Little Nettie—Two.

Neighbor—Who are they?

Little Nettie—Oh, one is a gentleman and the other is papa.

Phenomenal Growth of the Business of Storz Brewing Co. "Merit is bound to win" This has always been the motto of Storz Brewing company and it explains the steady and enormous increase in their business from year to year.

It is interesting to note the sales of Storz Blue Ribbon Beer in bottles during the past four years, as follows:

1903 2,837,776 bottles
1904 4,254,854 bottles
1905 5,212,227 bottles
1906 11,933,648 bottles

These figures speak volumes; they are the strongest argument that could be used to back up the merit and quality of the goods.

During the past few years the Storz Company have been forced to enlarge their comparatively small plant several times to keep pace with the demand for their product.

Two years ago, they built one of the most complete modern bottling works in the United States, but it, too, has to be doubled in size and trebled in capacity, which work is in progress at the present time.

In an interview Mr. G. Storz, President of the Company, said yesterday: "It has always been the aim and the object of the Storz Brewing Co. to give to the public the best beer that skill, brains and money could produce—a beer equal in quality and flavor to any brewed in the world. There is no reason why we should not be able to do so; the western barley malt we use is the equal of any grown—we import direct each season the pickings of Hops from Saaz, Bohemia—our water is the purest, clearest and most beautiful that can be obtained, being drawn from our own deep artesian well and our Brewery is equipped with all the latest and most modern appliances known to the brewing industry. Then too we know how to brew and lager good beer, we have been forty years at the business and have constantly studied and improved our art. The methods used throughout Storz Brewing Co.'s plant are along the lines of the most advanced ideas known."

The Swedish National Danes of Skansen St. Paul are to appear at the Lyceum theater Friday evening, January 11. They are said to be the only company of the kind traveling and are pronounced a great novelty.

CHANGE IN SMOKE ORDINANCE Amendment to Include Brick Kilns Will Be Introduced by Councilman Sheldon.

Assistant City Attorney Rine has made a slight modification in the present smoke ordinance to the extent of including brick kilns and stipulating that to allow a continuous volume of offensive smoke to issue will constitute an offense punishable by fine or imprisonment.

PRATTLE OF THE YOUNGSTERS. Little Fred—Uncle John, did you ever hear the story about the good little boy who had a nice uncle?

Uncle John—No. Tell it to me.

Little Fred—Well, the nice uncle gave the good little boy a quarter. That's all.

"Mamma," queried little Willie, "what is 'hush'?"

"Why do you ask, dear?" said his mother. "Because," explained the obedienturchin, "when I asked sister what made her hair all mussed after her beau was here this afternoon she said 'Hush, dear.'"

"Willie, do you still believe in Santa Claus?"

"No, I prayed for a little sister and got a watch that broke the first time I tried to wind it."

Mother—I'm ashamed to think you can't do better in school. Why can't you lead your class?

Willie—Say, ma, you told me you didn't care for us and we were to be sent to a school when a boy leads the class he always gets conceeded.

AVOID APPROACHING WEAKNESS STEPPING STONES TO SUCCESS Vicious manhood is the stepping stone to success in life.
