Josh Billings once said, "I luv a rooster fer 2 things. One is the crow that iz in him and the other iz the spurs that air on him to back up the crow with

If you are ever tempted to think we crow unduly, just investigate and how we "back up" the crow.

We back up our crow by occupying the only college building in Omaha occupied wholly and solely by a business college for business college purposes. We back up our crow by showing an attendance greater than that of any other business college in this section of the country.

We back up our crow by the fact that we have become the most successful business college in all this section of the country, and yet have only been in the business college field for eight years, and in that time have passed competitors who have been located in this section for 25 years. We back up our crow with the fact that Omaha business men prefer Boyles graduates as bookkeepers, stenographers and telegraphers. We back up our crow with the largest and highest paid staff of instructors in all this section of the country.

We back up our crow with a practical method of instruction, a thorough pusiness equipment and a complete course that is long enough to guarantee the thorough, unfailing competence of each and every one of our graduates.

We want you to investigate "our spurs." And we know that when you have done so you will feel that this is the college that will help you to "win your spurs" out in the big, busy business world. Pay us a visit tomorrow. The winter term has just opened. Is but three days old. If you can't call, at least write for a catalogue.

This is an age of specialties in education. There is no greater demand in any line than for specially well educated and efficient stenographers.

A school that makes a specialty in this line can get results that can not be reached in a school in which stenography is a "side show." The Van Sant School of Shorthand and Typewriting makes a specialty of shorthand, typewriting and office practice, and gets results that make an urgent demand for every stenographer it gets ready for a position. One of the largest employers of stenographers in this section said: "I would give a Van Sant student ten dollars a month more as a beginner than I would give a beginner from any other school. Why? Simply because they are thoroughly and practically educated in the duties of a stenographer, and can do a good day's work the first day they are em-ployed. The name of attending the Van Sant School has been worth an ployed. The name of attending the value of the short has advancement is extra $129 the first year to many stenographers, and the advancement is always rapid to those who are extra good at the beginning. The instruction is thorough, and the students participate in actual work for which they receive pay. Many have more than earned tuition while attending the school. The students of this school are filling positions in Omaha and all over the country as stenographers, teachers and reporters. A trial week will be given free to any one who wishes to see the prac-tical working of the school before enrolling. Money promptly refunded for unexpired tuition to any one who for any reason may wish to leave the school. Payments may be made monthly in advance, if more con-

There is no risk of any kind in attending the Van Sant School. Its teachers are experience' practical stenographers and reporters of na-tional reputation. The demand for its students is not confined to Omaha. Its call for mature teachers of both sexes is far beyond the supply.
