COWELL TO HAVE THE PLACE

Sheldon Will Appoint Him Railway Commissioner if Necessary.

BELIEVES THAT HE CAN STILL QUALIFY

Supreme Court Decides a Number of Omaha Cases—Tells Cathers to Mind His Own Business—Gas Tank Can Be Built.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Jan. 5.—(Special.)—Robert Cowell of Omaha will have an opportunity to serve as a member of the state railway commission whether the fact that he failed to take the oath on January 3 with the other state officers disqualifies him or not. Governor Sheldon, who has the power under the constitution to disqualify any official who has been elected to the position to which he has been elected should there be any question of his right to serve under the present conditions. However, Governor Sheldon believes there is no doubt Mr. Cowell can take the oath of office before any official who has the right to administer an oath and begin his duties whenever the legislature gives the commission authority to do anything.

"While I am not a lawyer," said Governor Sheldon, "I fail to see how Mr. Cowell can be disqualified because he did not take the oath of office when the other officers were installed. Speaker Nettleton announced Mr. Cowell's election at the same time he announced the election of the other state officers, after the canvass of the vote in joint session. An official copy of these proceedings is the same as a certificate of election, and I believe Mr. Cowell can go before any person having power to administer an oath with these records and be sworn in. I know of no specified time fixed for the taking of the oath. However, if there is the least doubt about the matter I shall appoint Mr. Cowell to the position, as he has been elected by the people."

Attorney General Thompson said he had not looked into the matter and until he did he would not give out an opinion.

Cathers Told to Keep Out.

The supreme court today gave John T. Cathers a gentle nudge to attend to other business and let the city officials of Omaha conduct the affairs of that city. The case is one in which Cathers brought suit against the late Frank E. Moore, then mayor, to recover $15,000 money alleged to have been paid out for street cleaners. The court says:

Unofficial citizens cannot maintain an action on the behalf of and practically in the name of public corporations to recover for the conversion of embelishment or other torts or misdeeds of officials of municipalities and of persons having dealings with them.

Attorneys Lose Fee.

The supreme court has vacated its former judgment in the case of the estate of Joseph Creighton and St. James' Orphan Asylum against Charles G. McDonald, administrator, and has affirmed the judgment of the district court. The suit was instituted by C. J. Smyth and John C. Cowin to recover $1,000 attorneys' fees for defending the right of the orphan asylum under the Creighton will. The claim of the attorneys was dismissed in the district court and appeal was taken to the supreme court. In overruling its former opinion, the court says: "The estate of a deceased is not ordinarily liable to an attorney for services rendered by him for and at the request of a legatee under decedent's will."

In the case of Edith Englehart, who was expelled by the school board of district No. 8, Merriam county, for "gross immorality and persistent disobedience," the supreme court has reversed the suit for expulsion, holding that school boards are authorized to expel a pupil without notice to the pupil or his parents and without any trial, and that the board may adopt any mode of procedure in obtaining evidence which it deems proper, and that the testimony of the prosecuting witness alone is sufficient to support a conviction. Her testimony must be corroborated by other evidence.

Gas Company Can Build Tank.

The ordinance passed by the city council of Omaha providing the Omaha Gas company cannot construct a gas tank without the written consent of the property owners within a radius of 1,000 feet of said tank is void and the supreme court recommends that the writ of mandamus asked for by the gas company to compel Building Inspector Withnell to issue a building permit be granted. The case is remanded for further proceedings in line with the decision of the supreme court. The decision was written by Commissioner Ames.

The city of Omaha must pay to Thomas L. Wright damages alleged to have been incurred as a result of injuries sustained by his wife on a defective sidewalk. The district court found for the city and the supreme court reversed the decision and remands the case for retrial.

The supreme court has reversed and remanded the case of John C. Cowin and others, appellants, against the Paxton & Gallagher company, appellants. Cery and his associates were engaged in business in the village of Dodge. Cery won a $10,000 suit in the lower court from Paxton & Gallagher for fraud and deceit. He claimed that Paxton & Gallagher induced him to give a first mortgage on his stock and fixtures to secure a bill of $1,000 owing to them and then did not live up to the terms of an agreement entered into by them at the time.

The damage suit of James W. Johnston against the electric light company for injuries to his son will have to be retried in the Douglas county district court. Johnston's son with a crowd of other boys were playing on the street in the lower court, but the supreme court held that no negligence had been shown on the part of the electric light company.

Persinger of Central City, chief clerk; Miss Maud Hogg, stenographer; Dan's examiners; E. H. Beaumont of Perkins county, E. E. Emmett of Arapahoe, E. S. Mickey of Osceola and C. W. Erwin of Omaha.

ON TRIAL FOR KILLING FATHER

Clarence Williams Faces Jury at Aurora on Serious Charge.

AUBURN, Neb., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The trial opened this morning of Clarence Williams charged with the murder of his father Isaac Williams on September 13 last. Ninety-five talesmen were examined before a jury could be obtained. At noon the jury was secured as follows: C. W. Chandler, L. E. Hays, I. D. Bishop, R. P. Robinson, J. A. Asher, L. G. Chavey, Earl Snodgrass, Thomas Howard, E. Holtz, Charles Ernest, L. L. Jesse, Charles Klier, S. Hasterman, principal witness for the defense, was placed on the stand at eleven o'clock this morning and occupied the stand all the afternoon. Hasterman's evidence simply sustained the facts as previously published.

Charles Williams was quarreling with his father over the subject of money with which to attend school. This was denied him, and his father became angry saying "I'll money you," at the same time picking up a pitchfork, and he advanced threateningly toward Charles. Clarence seeing his father about to attack his brother Charles ran to an outhouse and securing a shot gun fired two shots into his father's back.

The case was adjourned at 4 o'clock until Monday morning at 10.

Contest in Thurston County.

PENDER, Neb., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The Chase-Whitcomb contest for county attorneyship will be heard next Monday. In his complaint Whitcomb claims Omaha precinct changed its voting place illegally and therefore wants these votes thrown out. Chase's majority over Whitcomb was seven in the county, Omaha precinct giving Chase eighteen majority over Whitcomb. It is said the election officers of Omaha precinct went to County Attorney Whitcomb for advice in changing the polling place and were by Whitcomb advised to change the voting place from the Pilcher school house to Malt Hill. Whether intentionally or through ignorance, the voting place was changed. Some sensational evidence may develop in this contest, as it is claimed whiskey was furnished Chase before election and it is now said some parties are trying to get Chase drunk before the hearing Monday.

FUNERAL OF JOHN C. FLOR

Pioneer Settler at Fremont Brought from Texas for Burial.

FREMONT, Neb., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The funeral of John C. Flor, one of the first settlers of this city, who died Wednesday at Horton, was held at this afternoon from the Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. W. H. Buss, conducting the services. He was born in Germany in 1833 and came to Racine, Wis., twenty years later. In the fall of 1866, about two months after the city was founded, he came here to work on a claim north of the townsite, most of which is now a part of the city. His wife came later and their daughter, Mrs. H. Glickerson of Wahoo, was the first white child born in the county. Mr. Flor engaged extensively in freighting between Omaha and other points of the Union Pacific, and in 1883 one of the longest wagon trains in which he had several heavy wagons was attacked by the Indians and most of the oxen stolen and killed. The freighters went to old Fort Sedgewick and with the aid of the soldiers recovered the oxen, which had not been converted into beef. During that year and the next he had a good many brushes with the Indians. He was in old Julesburg when that town was in its prime and the "toughest on the continent," and had a fund of reminiscences of the doings there. He was engaged in farming and various business enterprises here and at Wahoo until 1888, when he moved with his family to Houston, Tex. His wife died three years ago and was buried here.

Prosperous Western Nebraska.

SUTHERLAND, Neb., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—Never before in the history of western Nebraska has there been according to the truthful old citizens—a winter in which the condition of the ground gave greater promise for a bountiful harvest the following season. The unusual amount of moisture has penetrated the earth to a considerable depth and the precipitation of the last several weeks has materially enhanced the farmers' faith in 1907 as a good crop year. The winter wheat, of which there is a fair acreage, makes an excellent showing. It is expected that there will be a mammoth increase in the number of acres of all kinds of crops over the last several years. Naturally the excellent prospects are responsible for much speculation as to the immediate future of this part of the country. The last year has seen an unprecedented and scarcely to be realized increase in the value of farm lands and other real estate. Land is considered to offer a much better field for investment than ever for general conditions place it in greater demand as time goes on and the day of cheap land is about over. The towns have checked the forward trend and the prosperity so prominently manifested and the considerable growth made in the last three years will scarcely be compared with what will come with a continuation of good crops.

BROWNELL HALL

The school will resume work after the Christmas recess January 8, and, judging from the cheery notes that have reached Omaha from the members of the resident department, the "boarders" all expect to arrive January 7. Sayings are also current which indicate that each of the "day pupils" expects to present at the first recitation of her class.

So far 1906-1907 has been in every respect a very happy school year, due to the earnest spirit of helpfulness so generally felt in the social atmosphere of the school's every-day work.

This good school for girls is fast becoming a bulwark of strength in our midst. By degrees quarters, principal, faculty and patrons are approaching the ideal school community, where it is to be found intelligent good fellowship, generated by honest, earnest application to things which are truly worth while. Not yet are we fully in its presence, and yet we feel ourselves moving forward, with our minds set definitely upon this ideal, and in spite of the natural obstacles which must be surmounted here and there along the highway leading to it. Wholesome inspiration comes to us from the mere sight of our ideal there before us in full view and from the consciousness of feeling ourselves moving at a normal rate of speed in its direction.

It is this definite attitude of approach at a fair rate of speed which brings to us the deeper, enduring ever growing joy of life, for under its influence man may feel himself standing at the very threshold of the new year, with his mind set definitely upon this ideal, and in spite of the natural obstacles which must be surmounted here and there along the highway leading to it. Wholesome inspiration comes to us from the mere sight of our ideal there before us in full view and from the consciousness of feeling ourselves moving at a normal rate of speed in its direction.
