Gas Tank Ordinance Defeated, but Rescued AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA and Becommitted to Committee. SOUTH SIDE CITIZENS OUT IN FORCE

Several Councilmen State They Wil Vote for the Measure if it is Amended to Suit Their Views.

Wednesday evening in the council chamber, taking up an accumulation of matance, in anticipation of which a large applauded or hissed various speakers ac-vote on its passage.

The mention of the ordinance by the clerk was a token for interested persons the repeated efforts of T. J. O'Neil while to get the floor. Several south side citizens made urgent appeals for the ordinance, presenting the same arguments have been offered in the council which room on past occasions. Among the counclimen, Zimman, Bridges and Funkhouser espoused the measure with some vigor. Councilman Funkhouser brought in a minority committee report recommending passage, the other members of the committee declining to sign the report, Bridges, Elsasser, Zimman and Funkhouser were those voting for the adoption of the committee report; then, when the ordinance was offered for passage, those four were joined by Councilman Sheldon, making five for and six against passage. On recommitment of the ordinance all agreed.

Mr. Bedford the would not commit himself as to what he annexation in positive terms." had in mind. With those modifications made there are at present six in favor of the ordinance.

It was explained by Mr. Funkhouser that should the ordinance fail of passage the gas company could construct the proposed holder at Twentieth and Center streets or any other location that might be selected. President Johnson had to rap vigorously for order, so great was the feeling of the southsiders present, In connection with the gas tank matter the council passed a resolution instructing

Building Inspector Withnell not to issue the gas company a permit for the erection of any gas tanks until such time as the council directed him. Councilman McGovern introduced an ordinance prohibiting any obstructions to be > Prominent Democratic Politician a Convert to Annexation.

The office of a certain well known demo crat is one of the most important strategie points in the political fortreases of South Omaha. More plans for the management of the city government and more especially the democracy, have been discussed there The city legislative body labored hard than in any other office in the city. One reason for this is that the owner is public minded and open to argument and convicters which ran a wide gamut of public tion and every one likes to hear him exmatters. The most important thing on the press himself. This he does in a forcible program was the Bridges' gas tank ordi- way. He has always been a leader in all democratic campaigns and in this belief delegation of citizens from the vicinity of he has been staunch. Nevertheless he has Twentieth and Center streets occupied been fearless in denouncing what he beseats in the council chamber and loudly lieves to be wrong.

Yesterday evening several men were there ording to the sentiments expressed. After and the subject of city affairs and the onsiderable oratory had been released the principle of annexation was broached. He ordinance was voted down when it was at once took a hand. With him are all the satellites who assisted in that deal. It looks to me like they are not actuated by a feeling for the city's interest, but rather with a view to future deals."

"A few more unnecessary injunctions." said a listener. "will generate annexation feeling to such a degree that | the people will fall over themselves to get into Omaha."

"And how can they help it when we hear of such shady looking actions as are reported from this administration," was the reply.

A triffe over a block down the street is a well known real estate dealer's office. "Being a democrat and a good personal friend to the present city officials," said the octhe ordinance Councilman Bedford said he cupant, "I withhold my name from any interview; but I will say that if I were called on at a public meeting to express my views and sentiments I would favor Such expressions from old time demo which is surely bringing the two cities together.

What is a lobbyist anyway? Nothing more or less than a person who frequents the capitol and hotels during a session of the legislature and works among members with a view to securing or preventing certain legislation in which he, or those he represents, is interested. But to do that is the undoubted right of every citizen under the constitution. Not only is it a but within certain limits it is a right; duty the citizen owes to himself and the people of the state.
