PEACE FOR FORTY-SEVEN RAILWAYS

Engineers Complimented as Being Able Body of Men, Led by Strong Executive In Stone.

General Manager Mohler of the Union Paiffic, who has been attending a meeting of the executive committee of the managers of the western roads, returned to Omaha Thursday morning. Mr. Mohler was one of a committee of twelve who represented forty-seven western lines in the conference with the engineers in their demands for nore pay and better hours.

"The committee has been dismissed," said Mr. Mohler, 'and everything adjusted satisfactorily to both sides. The agreements are all signed and will be effective February I, for all the engineers employed on fortyseven roads, all situated west of Chicago The engineers withdrew their request to have the time reduced to eight hours and said their purpose in asking for eight hours was simply as a basis of value; that they knew trains could not be run between ter minuls on that time and that to insist on eight hours as a day's work would change every terminal on most of the roads and make men abandon their homes at the present terminals.

> Four Sample Steel Cars. The Union Pacific is building at its Omaha, shops four sample steel cars, two for freight, one for passenger service and one mail car. Steel car construction is attracting the attention of railroad managers all over the country because of their great superiority over the old wooden type, were built along the same lines as the old wooden cars, and this has made them too heavy, although they were considerably stronger. The problem is now to develop from the use of steel without piling on too much additional weight.

Demurrage Law Big Help. The railroads claim the new demurrage law is a great help to them in getting coal to the centers where it is needed. Under this new arrangement the doulers are required to unload the cars within a certain time or pay a heavy demurrage, while under the old ruling cars were held for weeks before they were unloaded. Take the instance of the Burlingtonealone, which is the heavy coal carrying line into Omaha because it brings coal here from all directions. Before the demurrage clause was enforced it was no uncommon occurrence the tracks in Omaha at one time. Thursday that road had 200 loaded cars and all these probably would be unloaded before they began to draw demurrage. Omaha is consuming more and more coal every year as the homes increase in number as well as the manufacturing institutions.

as standing wide-eyed and gasping, staring at her hand, the anguish of a soul torn by remorse written on her face, while her whole attitude and aspect depicted the terper cent during the past year. This has for and misery and sorrow of a kindly nature overborne by sin. It is just a little singular that Mme.

Medjeska should have chosen to make her farewell appearance in the sleep-walk-Land has made a thousand fortunes where ing scene from "Mucbeth," but she did, mines have made one. The most glowing and she depicts with terrible realism the bittesness of that speciacle, prophetic as it tame beside the actual profits reaped from was of her impending doom, when all the fabric of her wrong-doing, born of ambition and fostered in lust for power, should come crashing down upon her and bury her beneath its ruin. It matters not here to debate the question as to which was first the sinner, husband or wife, or to argue as to which was the greater. Lady Macbeth in Helena Modfeska's hands becomes the equal partner of her lord and sharer in his inmost thoughts. She furnighes him with that finer quality of courage which he lacks, but saps her own strength in giving the inspiration for his cloody deeds. All this is made clear by the star whose light will soon be lost in voluntary eclipse. It is a great character and has been deemed worthy the best efforts of the greatest of tragedlennes. In attitude Mms. Modjeska has ap proached it, and with careful, well considered steps she develops it from the first fledges itself into bloody resolve, to that ending wherein remorse and horror for the crime blots out all else. The climax Officer Lahey, who found John Howard, is reached by such degrees as lessen the shock, but do not disturb the impressiveness of the cumulative effect.

Herman a Fine Macbeth. Supporting Mme. Modjeska is a company f uncommon excellence. Mr. Herman gives such a presentation of Macbeth as might in the main be called a star performance itself. He shows a rare and discriminating intelligence in his reading of the lines, majestic in their poetry and impressive in their tenor, set down for the part, and illuminates their meaning perfectly. Once or twice during the evening he seemed to recode from the high plane on which he pitched his conception of the part, but only for an instant, and these brief relaxations were more than compensated for by the fire and vigor with which he renewed his effort to make the real Macbeth live. Aitogether Mr. Herman quite dominated the situation, sharing with the star the credit for the success of the evening.

Scene Call for Mr. Montague. Mr. Montague was the recipients of what ts an honor decidedly rare in Omaha, a scene call. At the close of the scene in which he voiced his grief at the massacre of his family and vowed his vow of ven-

Information Bureau of Postoffice Is Making the Postmaster's Hair White.

The old adage of "telling your troubles to a policeman" is not in it with the number and variety of inquiries received at the Omaha postoffice during the day for information. These run all the way from a maelstrom of daily life in this metropolis A letter was reveled Thursday morning asking "confidential" information as to the accuracy of the skill of certain advertised astrologers, fortune tellers in foretelling the future, offering liberal compensation for the information, as the writer (from Sibley, Ia..) had some important matter to confide to the fortune teller, whose advice was asked for. Only recently a jenious wife wanted the ostoffice department to keep track of the letters received by her husband and save out a few for her, but not let him know anything about it. Then, again, there occurs the daily kick
