INTERSTATE COMMERCE NOT INVOLVED

Federal Law Does Not Prevent State from Protecting Its Own Citizens from Acts of Other Citisens of the State.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Jan. 22.—(Special.)-Referee A. M. Post of the supreme court has ruled in favor of the state of Nebraska on an objection raised by the lumber dealers that the courts of the United States are given exclusive jurisdiction of prosecutions such as the suit of the State of Nebraska against the Nebraska Lumber Dealers' as- given prominence on the program and sociation under the anti-trust laws of Ne- handled by those who know of legislation branks. The lumber dealers raised the ob- that is needed. The legislature is in sesjection that the transactions of this nature involve interstate commerce within the meaning of the Sherman anti-trust law. The objection, in the opinion of the referee. involves the validity of the Nebraska anticombinations in restraint of trade insofar terstate commerce.

The attorneys for the state had planned transactions in connection with the alleged follow this. Under this ruling of Referes Post the state will be able to make the de- FIRST WORD OF TWO RUNAWAYS sired investigation.

Referee Post says:

To congress has been committed, by the constitution of the United States, the exclusive power to regulate interstate commerce, including transactions of the nature of those mentioned in the offer of this case. It is, however, firmly settled that the states have not surrendered their power to subserve by appropriate legislation the welfare of their people, although such legislation may operate, incidentally on interstate commerce. The federal courts, although assuming the exclusive power to determine all questions of their own jurisdiction, have been ever mindful of the rights of the states in the exercise of their constitution of the constitution of the meatings are in charge of evangelist Enslow of Chicago, and Eva E. True Test of Validity.

The true test of validity is said to be in every such case whether the particular statute is in fact an exercise of the reserve power of the state for the protection and welfare of its people, or the protection of interstate commerce under the guise of a mere police measure. The Nebraska antitrust law, tested by this rule, appears to be a legitimate exercise of the police power of the state and in no just sense a regulation of interstate commerce. It imposes no burden or restriction whatever upon interstate commerce and does not accordingly conflict with any constitutional provision or any act of congress govering that subject. This does not differ essentially from the ordinary prosecution for conspiracy, the gravamen of the action being the alleged unlawful combination which may be evidenced by any overt act pertinent to the charge, and its competency is not afleged uniawful combination which may be evidenced by any overt act pertinent to the charge, and its competency is not affected, by the fact that such act may have been committed in a foreign jurisdiction. Defendants argue further that the question here involved is foreclosed by the decision of this state in re state versus elevator charges on the interstate shipments therein mentioned is in connection with the merits of the cause and not in reference to the jurisdiction of the court over the subject of the action. The application of the Sherman act to the facts involved may, it is true, become a legitimate subject for consideration in connection with the merits of the cause, but it is not involved in the present contention. the following description given:

YORK, Neb., Jan. 22.-(Special.)-Because to law could be found making it even a misdemeanor to give whisky to a minor, Louis Kasdorf, who was arrested on a charge of disposing of liquor, was discharged in county court today. Kasdorf, barn employe, it was shown by the evidence, had given whisky to minors, but as he is not a licensed whisky seller it was found the law does not fit his case. The apparent anomaly was developed during the hearing of the case that while the Nebrasks statutes forbid the giving of tobacco to a minor, there is no provision against the giving of whisky to a minor except by a licensed dealer.
