

GOSS AFTER THE RAILROADS

United States Attorney Starts Fight to Enforce Twenty-Eight-Hour Law.

NO COMPROMISE ALLOWED THIS TIME

Government Will Insist on Maximum Penalty in Each Conviction for Violation of Live Stock Shipping Regulation.

United States District Attorney Goss has filed a petition in the United States district court against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway company setting up two violations of the twenty-eight-hour law in the shipment of live stock.

In the first case it is alleged the cattle were without feed, water or rest for nearly forty hours, but as there was a written request on the shipper they might be confined only about four hours more than allowed by law.

Violations Are Numerous. "The new law extending the time from twenty-eight to thirty-six hours upon the written request of the shipper or some person in custody of the cattle which was passed June 28, 1906, was expected by everybody to do away with any possible hardship upon the railroads by the provisions of the old law allowing cattle to be confined only twenty-eight hours," said Mr. Goss.

"Under the old law it was the custom upon the recommendation of the Department of Agriculture to enter into stipulations with the railroad companies to accept the minimum penalty of $100 in each case, but under the new law no compromise will be made with the offending carriers and the maximum penalty of $500 for each violation of the law will be insisted upon by the government."

MAHER IS READY FOR WAR

Believes United States Has Nothing to Fear from Jamaica and So is Prepared.

Colonel John G. Maher came up from Lincoln Friday morning. He is making a careful investigation of automobiles and typewriters.

"Sweetenham looks good to me," said the colonel. "I believe I can sniff a whiff of war."

And so this paradox-belligerent man of peace is preparing for war. Having come off more than conqueror in the field of battle in the Spanish-American war with his typewriter ribbon unfurled to the breezes of Chickamauga, having more recently achieved the honors of hero in several brisk skirmishes with an intractable automobile on the legislative highway of Lincoln, he is certain in his own mind of victory in any conflict and on any field where these deadly weapons may be employed.

"I see no way, now, of averting war with Jamaica," said the colonel, "and I am going to the front with my rifle. The first thing I shall do after buying my munitions of war will be to place my typewriter in my automobile and drive on down to see Sweetenham. I shall tell Sweetenham, in plain, unvarnished Lincoln language—the kind we use when the legislature is in session—just what my views are, so that he may not be able to say I took any undue advantage of him. Having thus made myself thoroughly understood I shall then proceed to business."

"I believe the United States has nothing to fear from Jamaica. I reach this conclusion from three different routes of reasoning, to wit: The United States is larger and more powerful nation and has won more wars than Jamaica; the Jamaicans are divided, some siding with the governor, some against him, and, thirdly, but not lastly, England, which really is the largest factor in the government of Jamaica, does not coincide with the views of Mr. Sweetenham."

ILLNESS CAUSE OF DIVORCE

Lack of Health Prevents Association and Legal Separation is Now Sought.

Philip Greenberg applied Friday for a divorce from Sophie Greenberg. They were married March 27, 1906, in London. On account of illness, the petition states, they were unable to live together. Then he secured a Jewish divorce which was accepted by his wife and she returned to live with her parents where he believes she still is living. He now wants a civil divorce.

George Taylor applied for a divorce from Addie Taylor whom he married May 22, 1901, in Olathe, Kan. He alleges cruelty, saying she has struck him and abused him in public. He says she is living in St. Joseph.

Maude Hitt applied for a divorce from Albert H. Hitts on the ground of cruelty and non-support. They were married in Council Bluffs June 15, 1904.

FIREMEN AVERT DISASTER

Prevent Fire from Spreading to Gas Pipes and Reservoir at the Works.

Fire broke out about 1:15 Friday afternoon in several boxes of rubbish stored in the basement under the engineer's office at the works of the Omaha Gas company. Eberth and James straggled, but were extinguished without loss. The cause of the fire could not be ascertained, although several workmen were in the basement when it started and were nearly overcome by smoke before they could escape.

Front action on the part of Chief Sailer and his men probably prevented a disastrous fire, as the basement contained many gas pipes leading to the two large gas reservoirs containing thousands of cubic feet of gas, which would have inevitably exploded if the fire had gained headway.
