Talkin alkin PATIOMKIN WAS A HUMMER Russian with Untold Wealth Distanced Rockefeller as a Mighty Reveller.

It is generally agreed that Jonn D. Rockefeller is the richest man in the world today, but that he is the richest mangin history is far from certain. Hundreds and thousands of years ago there lived men whose wealth, judging by its purchasing power in their time, probably greatly exceeded his. Crossus, king of Lydia, to whom Mr. Rockefeller is often compared, owned a whole empire-and incidentally died dead broke. There were plutocrats in of splendid imagination and for many ancient Egypt and Rome whose riches were so vast that they had to employ armies of men to collect their revenues. some of these antique billionaires were high livers and one of them once gave a finner which cost more than $1,000,000. arriving in Washington he called at the ing his way homeward at the close of this Raleigh hotel to see a friend. While presenting his card he was startled by the platel shots which killed ex-Senator Brown of Utah. The western man caught a train he expected to stay, a bride of two days killed her husband by jubbing a nail file into his eye. Again the westerner fied. Arriving in New York City he was attracted by a man running madly down the street with a pistbl in his hand. On reaching the elevated road the man raised the pistol to his head and ended his life. The trayeler hastily returned to Washington and there accepted an invitation from a friend who lives in Virginia to spend a few days in the country. He reached the town of Culpepper just in time to behold two brothers surrendering themselves to the law after firing thirty-two shots into a brother-in-law who had married their sister an hour before. That settled it. The westernes has returned to his wild and woolly home to calm his nerves and get ome sleep.-Kansas City Journal.
