State Journal company to recover forfeits for the failure of the company to deliver back to the assessor printed bills three days after receiving the copy was rescinded.

In his resolution today Senator Epperson says the senate has other remedies to protect the state so far as the present session is concerned. The receipts showing when copy was delivered and when the bills were returned at former sessions, which would be material evidence for the state, have been destroyed, according to the resolution, and it would be difficult to maintain a suit in court.

Just the method will be taken, if any, to not indicate in the resolution. It has been suggested the amount due could be withheld from the payments made to the Journal company for printing done during the session. As the state could not be sued, the action of the legislature would be final.

No Stamp Grant. The senate, by action taken today, has declared, while it is willing the house of representatives should indulge in the so-called stamp "craft," it is not willing to accept any of the tainted stamps itself.

Senator Aldrich's bill providing for a commission to propose amendments to the state constitution is to have another chance for its life. When the judiciary committee reported it for indefinite postponement today Aldrich moved it be re-committed for further consideration and this was done by unanimous vote.

Jones of Cass county had an experience during the civil war which illustrates the sterling character of the late John M. Tayer. Jones was an abolitionist, Tayer was a member of the same regiment and having received word while at Leavenworth that three men were to be hanged at Lexington for stealing negroes, Tayer, who was in command, called for volunteers to go to their rescue.

free postage stamps to the senators voted down. The only serious opposition to any bill was to the one introduced by Burns making county, district and supreme judges ineligible to any except judicial offices.

At the beginning of the session Burns of Lancaster introduced a resolution requesting the Nebraska delegation in congress to oppose the ship subsidy bill on the ground it favors certain interests and is not in the interests of the people. The resolution went over a day.

Epperson of Clay offered a memorial from 106 of his constituents favoring his bill to place telephone companies under the control of the Railroad commission. The attempt of the judiciary committee to have it indefinitely postponed by P. 18, by Aldrich, providing for a commission to propose amendments to the constitution, failed at least for the present, and the senate at the request of Aldrich re-committed the bill for further action.
