Features of the Trading and Closing Prices on Board of Trade.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Lower prices for wheat at Liverpool and more favorable conditions here, together with a heavy crop, weakened the local wheat market today.

Despite continued small receipts in the northwest the wheat market was weak all day and offerings by local longs and commission houses were liberal.

The corn market held steady all day, but the volume of trading was small.

Provisions were strong on a good demand from shorts and local packers.

The leading futures ranged as follows:

Decline in Prices is Resumed After Desultory Period of Resistance.

BLAME PLACED ON OIL REPORT

Activity of Government in Attempting to Remedy Corporate Abuses.

The decline in price of securities was resumed today after a period of desultory resistance during the early hours of the week.

The different demand which became manifest at any rise in prices and the apprehension that additional liquidation here and there in the list to confirm them.

The substance of the report was not unknown to Wall street any more than was the similar report transmitted last week on the eastern coal carrying railroads.

The publication of the reports made an impression on financial circles.

The circulation of rumors of further recommendations to be expected from the president looking to an extension of the commission's inquiry into railroad properties.

The commission in its report has given large responsibility in the opinion of the financial world to the government in finding a market for new capital issues.

The extensive sale of temporary notes issued recently to the railroad companies.

The abandonment and the impression is growing that enterprises for industrial facilities will be carried as far as possible while such rates must be paid for money to carry them on.

The decline gathered force as it progressed and the closing was very weak and active.
