In the Commoner's opinion argument is on the side of the direct primary, which plan is a great improvement over the conventions should be allowed for the framing of platforms and for the performing of any work which cannot be done by primary yote; but the more fully the control of the party can be kept in the hands of the rank and file, the better. Authority comes from the people, and the more directly and completely the people control, the less danger there is of the thwarting of the wishes of the voters.

Hard Sledding for Interurban Bill.

Judging from the reception it received today in the senate S. F. No. 25, providing that street railway companies may guarantee, buy and own stock and bonds of interurban companies, has a rocky road to travel before it is placed on the statute books. After a long discussion today, in which Joe Burns of Lancaster and Aldrich of Butler threw all kinds of doubtful coments at each other, the bill was sent back to the standing committee for further consideration and amendment.

The peculiar feature of the discussion was that no one made any direct charge against the bill, but several of the senators seemed to fear there was a negro adroitly concealed somewhere in the woodpile. Senator Ashton of Hall started the onslaught by offering some amendments which permit the street railway companies to guarantee, but not to own bonds, and interurban roads. He declared he believed the effect of the bill would be to permit a street railway company to act as a holding company for numerous interurban companies. He thought this would be bad policy and might result seriously in the

Aldrich also had a far-reaching amend ment which would require a searching investigation by the railroad commission before any of the interurban roads could float

Thomas, who introduced the bill, explained it was merely to permit the Omaha Council Bluffs company to build and operate interurban roads to the suburbs of Omaha and was intended to go no further. But the opponents of the bill saw in it a plan to permit the formation of an interurban railway "trust" or pool. Aidrich also opposed it, declaring it would lead to "high finance" methods by the companies. To prevent this he offered his amendment requiring an investigation by the rallway commission before stocks or bonds could

Burns and King Pavor It.

Joe Burns of Lancaster got into the diacussion at once with the deciaration the tendency was to regulate too much. He said the poor bond and stockholders were able to take care of themselves and declared the steam railways were fighting the interurbans and had carried the fight even into the senate.

King of Polk favored the bill declaring it was necessary to permit the street railways to back interurbans in order that the interurbans might be built as the development of the state required. He said Aldrich's amendment should be attached to another statute and that he was working on a bill which covered the same nd. He declared the amendment if

Pelice Commission Bill. (From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Jan. 31 .- (Special.) -Senator

Gibson's bill reducing the number of members of the Fire and Police board in South Omaha from five to three, passed the committee of the whole in the senate this morning.

Among other important measures which went through are Root's bill, requiring a public hearing before the commutation of sentence of convicts, and King's measure, to prevent discriminating prices between different localities,

A petition from the Commercial club of Omaha protesting against Leeder's bill, providing for a double shift for firemen in Omaha, and asking for a public hearing before the members of the two houses, was read and on motion of Saunders a committee of three, consisting of Saunders, Patrick and Wiltse of Cedar was appointed to act with a like committee of the house to arrange a joint meeting with the Omahans. The following bills were placed on general file on recommendation of standing committees.

By the committee on revenue:

DEBATE OVER SALARY INCREASE

Favorably Reported in House, but No Certainty of Passage.

LINCOLN, Jan. 31 .- The house spent a great deal of time this morning over Mike anteed. Lee's proposed amendment to the constitution, increasing the pay of legislators to $10 a day. The majority of the committee reported the bill for the general file, while the minority, Whitham, Line and Richardson, voted to have it indefinitely postponed. The majority report carried, but it is impossible to say whether the bill will carry because many who talked in favor of the majority report did so because they wanted to hear the bill discussed in the committee of the whole. The vote to put the bill on general file was 51 to 36.

Dodge of Douglas came out flatfooted not only for sustaining the majority of the committee, but for the bill as well. He slieved with better salaries Nebraska would get better officers. He said the Douglas county members spent more than their salaries in getting elected and that Nebraska was one of the most prosperous states in the union and its debt was a mere bagatelle, which brought forth applause from those members who are legging for institution appropriations. Jennison of Clay didn't say whether he was for the bill, but he was in favor of it getting a fair shake in the committee of the Springer of Scott's Bluff opposed the bill and he said so. "I am opposed to debt," he said, "and I am opposed to salary grabs. The state is in debt and every taxpayers is assessed on every piece of his debt and we are going in debt more every year to run our government. I am opposed to raising salaries until the state is on a cash basis. I don't want to put my nose to the grindstone and neither do I want to be laid away in mix feet of earth plastered over with mortgages. McMullen didn't look on the matter as a salary grab, but he voted to indefinitely ostpone the bill, he said, to hasten the time when a constitutional convention would be called and the evils complained of remedied. Milligan of Dixon said every member knew what the salary was when he was elected and he was not in favor of raising salaries. Speaker Nettleton voted against the majority report and said he did because he had never seen the time when these was a scarcity of good men who were candidates at every election.
