AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

A. M. Gallagher Discusses Effect of Annexation on Realty Values.
COMMITTEE DISCUSSES CHARTER CHANGES
Mayor Hector and Member of Park Board Discuss the Secret Meeting to Consider the Effect of Land for Parks.
"I would be for annexation," said A. M. Gallagher Wednesday night, "if I could be assured on one point, that with the merging of the two cities there would be no decrease of real estate values. On this point I think the argument is largely theoretical. Actual trial would be the testing of the matter, but it is the uncertainty of the matter which has stuck in my mind. On many other grounds the speedy annexation of the city would be full of advantage. In the matter of railroad rates an example came under my notice. I was coming in from out in the state on a stock train. On my advice a man I happened to meet consigned to South Omaha. Eighteen cars of stock were picked up before we reached Lincoln. At Lincoln all but the car I had managed by personal effort to direct this way, were switched off and went to St. Joseph. It struck me as queer that with South Omaha so near that the shippers would prefer to go the greater distance to St. Joseph. When I arrived in Omaha I spoke to W. J. C. Kenyon about it. He said that the St. Joseph market had greater influence with the railroad. South Omaha with its live stock exchange as the only potent factor of influence, lacked by a rather weak municipality, compared with the heavy interests of St. Joseph, is unable to command the concessions which should be given by the Nebraska railroad. The exchange is adjacent to the heads of this market, but they cannot do it alone. The powerful interests of Omaha should be added to that of South Omaha and then they would be felt."
This from A. M. Gallagher, who has always been considered the prudent champion of the anti-annexation forces, is a statement of the fact that the terms of annexation are not real; and that the whole question is one of good-captured speculation and debate rather than of the vital interests at stake. It is conceded now that real estate in St. Joe and nearby city commands its price by the sea it is paid in. In times of fictitious prices and booms the case is different, but in periods of steady development real estate is not purchased purely as a speculation. When a man buys acreage property as the Bradford-Kennedy company are doing this week, it is for a practical use. Coal yards and lumber yards are to occupy the lots. The Lucerne Food products and the Gate City Malt works, and, in fact, the purchases for the last year in South Omaha have been made for use. The real estate can be used and it will be used more. For every lawyer who might move his offices up to Omaha after annexation a commission man would seek a residence in the Highland park district. People are not so near to Omaha's center as Walnut Hill. This fact should insure every property owner that there can be no great fluctuation of prices. They will rise rather than fall. The residence district about Highland park will in five years' time equal that splendid streets of the Hancock park district.

Charter Change Discussion.
The meeting of the general committee of the South Omaha improvement club was generally attended as was anticipated last night. About fifteen people were in attendance to receive the report of the executive committee of ten men who were to draft the amendments to the city charter. It was discovered that the amendments had been sent to Lincoln already. One was that the city be granted the power to grade two blocks of any street where the cost of grading would exceed the value of the abutting property. Of this grading the city should pay two-thirds and the property owners one-third. Another proposition was that the directors be required to show a tax receipt for personal taxes before being allowed to vote at municipal elections. There were a number of exceptions to this rule. A tax of $1, or poll tax, should be exacted. It was explained that the committee of ten had been made an executive committee with power to show a tax receipt for a manifest necessity for bonds in the matter, so that the needs of the city could be presented before the generally important bills occupy the legislature.
Some discussion was occasioned in the various articles on the present administration and its methods indulged in by John Mackintosh. He charged that the sewer propositions had been juggled from start to finish and declared that one whole tunnel section had been eliminated from the sewers after the proclamation had been made for the sewer bond election and that it was the intention that the $200,000 should be repaid to the city. The sewer tunnel section of the sewer system as defined by Andrew Rosewater. On this he based his argument that the contracts had been juggled to the tune of $6,000 at the least, and now the legislature was being asked for $200,000 more. Mr. Mackintosh grew heated in his remarks and as a final clincher he presented the original report of Andrew Rosewater to the city council on the cost of the sewer system. Before the conclusion it was conclusively shown that this tunnel section had been dropped before the mayor issued his proclamation last year.

As a side issue a resolution was passed endorsing the Cassidy park site as a favorable proposition.
Story of Secret Meeting
Mayor Hector gave the full history yesterday afternoon of the session of the city council and the park board last Wednesday night. He said all the members of the council and the park board were present and that the map of the city was spread out on the engineers' table for investigation and comparison. Since not all the property owners were present to present the merits of their propositions it was determined to close the doors and keep all parties out. The propositions were discussed at some length, but no action was taken on any of the propositions. One reason was that the money for the bonds had not been received and until that time it was not thought advisable to express any preference for any property until the actual time of the purchase. It is evident that there is likely to be a sharp difference of opinion here as to the sites are determined. Some sites are thought to be too high.
E. R. Leigh, the secretary of the park board, declared that the business of the secret session was confined to a mere discussion of the propositions in a general way. At the close of the meeting the bodies were required to show a tax receipt for personal taxes before being allowed to vote at the mayor. At this prospective meeting the sites will be considered more particularly.

TREAT FOR THE MUSIC LOVERS

Concert of Madam Schumann-Heink
Pleasant Large and Critical Audience.
Madam Schumann-Heink charmed one of the most fashionable and critical audiences that has assembled this season at a recital given last night at the Boyd. Her presence is charming; a thorough wholesomeness seems to permeate her songs that is fairly captivating. Her music has been written in truthful praise of this great artist that little or nothing can be said that would add a single ray to her justly earned international fame. She combines with her great and glorious voice the ability to interpret with rare intelligence the varied moods of the masters whose work she sings. Whether in German or French her enunciation is equally clear and distinct. Her great voice, that melts away into the most beautiful head tones, so flexible, such perfection of tone placing, such tremendous power, is something to be remembered for a long time.
The great contractor first gave a group of four songs; an aria from the opera "Mitras" by Rossini, "Du bist die Ruh" by Schubert, "Wohin" by Schubert and "Der Wanderer" by the same composer, of which the last named created perhaps the most impressive, the audience being so persistently insistent in its demand for an encore, which was most graciously given. The recitative and aria following, "But the Lord is Mindful of His Own." This was magnificent in its sincerity and depth of feeling.
The second series of songs included "The Song of the Sea" by Wagner, "Die Erd Zuger" by Liszt and "Widmung" by Schumann. A lightness of touch was displayed in the second number which was most alluring as was also the heartfelt manner in which the Schumann number was given.
Three Brahms' songs: Oh, such songs as Brahms has written! The music goes right into your heart, and beautifully was the "Rhapsodie Ode" given, followed by six Hungarian Gypsy songs. In this cycle is an immense range for the portrayal of the various emotions which was fully met by the vocal equipment and temperament of this artist. Her last number was the prison scene from "Der Prophet" by Meyerbeer. The recitative was most exacting in its intensity, followed by the aria, which was a perfect joy.
At the conclusion the entire audience deluged all Omaha conventions and stayed in their seats calling for more and still more, but the artist had already been more than generous with her encore and so the house

BANQUET FOR JAMES RUSSELL

Missouri Pacific Employees Honor Departing Superintendent of the Omaha Division.
An eight-course banquet was given last evening in honor of James Russell, superintendent of the Omaha division of the Missouri Pacific, who has accepted a better position on the Illinois division of the Pacific. This departure of Mr. Russell from the several departments over which Mr. Russell had charge, at the banquet, James O. Phillippi acted as toastmaster and a number of toasts were given, including the warm place Mr. Russell had in the hearts of his men. A handsome and beautiful engraved, with a chain and diamond-set charm, were presented to the retiring superintendent; also a traveling bag containing a silver-mounted toilet set. Mr. Russell left last night for Beardstown, Ill., which will be his new headquarters.
DOG REMEMBERS ANNIVERSARY
Proceeds to Celebrate in the Same Old Way, This Time Aided by Outsiders.
One year ago Thursday night the big watchdog in the saloon of C. Callahan, Seventh and Leavenworth streets, indulged in an uproarious canine celebration, knocking the telephone down on the floor and making the night hideous with continual baying in answer to the call, the telephone "netwerk" asked what was wanted, but was met with a series of staccato and bellowing noises which she construed into the pounding of a burglar trying to get into the safe. She therefore connected with the police station, where the officers listened to the racket and then sent an officer to the place to investigate. He found the dog still at it. On the first anniversary of his debut the same dog again raised hell and a few other things in the saloon Thursday night, running back and forth on top of the bar as though he had been opening a few cold ones all by himself and was getting hilarious. He knocked down the telephone as on the previous occasion, and again the

GRAIN EXCHANGE WILL MOVE

Decides to Take Room for Itself and Members in Brandeis Building.
Final decision to remove the headquarters of the Omaha Grain exchange to the new Brandeis building was made at a meeting of the exchange Thursday afternoon. The exchange offices were not alone included in the plans, but the majority of the members will move their offices to the same building. Some will be prevented by their leases from making the change.
The exchange and its members are to have the entire seventh floor and space on the eighth, should they need it. The trading room will be furnished rent free. At the Thursday meeting a plan for the allotment of offices was decided on. The private wire houses are to have their pick of the offices and will cost lots for choice among themselves. The others are to choose from the remaining rooms, the ones wanting the most space getting first chance. The move cannot be made until July and possibly until fall, depending on the time of completion of the building.
