In the course of his remarks for this reform, Dodge objected to appropriating money to repair the walls of the east wing, but said it were better that the east wing fall, which, he said, it would net do for some time, and then construct in its place a modern wing to be the be ginning of a $1,000,000 capitol. Mr. Dodge prefaced his remarks by the following resolution, which was carried by rising vote of $1 to II, and referred to the committee on public lands and buildings.

Whereas, The repairs to the state house have apparently not been kept up for several years and its present condition as regards paint, paper, varnish and carpenter repairs is a disgrace to any civilized state; and

Be it further Resolved. That it is the sense of this body that it is more necessary to make the state house in its present condition presentable and clean than to reconstruct the east wing and to postpone such reconstruction until the same has fallen down and a new huilding will be necessary. Be it further Resolved. That $100 or so much thereof as may be necessary shall be appropriated to obtain the services of a Strikes a Popular Chord.

In his speech Mr. Dodge said to enter the state house in its present condition was to him humiliating. Its condition is a disgrace and an outrage to a state as wealthy as Nebruska. Shubert of Richardron moved to amend the resolution to include "the canals" which lead to the lighting. Hart of York wanted to include introduce it as a separate resolution. And then Mike Lee got the floor. And he poured out all the pent up eloquence of an artistic soul. He complimented the Doughas delegation that all the suggestions of repairs to the state house had come from Douglas county. Two years ago, he said, was Douglas county that had asked that the state house sewer system be repaired. He complimented Lancaster county for its modesty, though he predicted that this latter delegation was going to swoop down on the treasury for its state institutions. And then this eloquent gentleman from Douglas drew a word picture of the state house as should be after it is repaired. He law would have on the windows inspiring paintings "such as we sometimes see in churches." He would have on the walls historical scenes drawn by artists of recognized ability. "The Battle of York-"The Surrender of Cornwallia" "The Battle of New Orleans," "The Charge up San Juan Hill"-"pictures of inspiration, pictures "that will raise us above the lobby to thoughts of higher and better things."

Deafening applause almost drowned out Ned Brown's endorsement of the speech and Cone's suggestion that above the speaker's stand should be painted a large silver dollar beside a gold dollar sixteen times smaller.

President Roosevelt Writes Letter Arraigning Large Flockmasters-Cattlemen Tell of Violating Anti-Fencing Law.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11,-Government policy in regard to the control of grazing land in the public domain, the interests of large and small cattle men, the sheep men and the relations of stock men and homesteaders were considered today at a was given out at the White House today: public hearing before the senate commit-

The hearing was had on an amendment by Senator Burkett of Nebraska to the agricultural appropriation bill authorizing the secretary of agriculture to disknow whether it is feasible, but if it is trict the unreserved lands and charge and collect reasonable fees for grazing. The cattlemen were represented by members of the American National Live Stock association, who favored the measure, while the sheep men, represented by members of the National Wool Growers' association, opposed it. During the proceedings a letter from President Roosevelt addressed to Senator Warren was read. It endorsed general control by the government of grazing lands, but insisted upon the protection of the homesteader and arraigned the sheep men severely.

Rivals Attack Each Other. The cattle men and sheep men criticized each other and defended their own motives. The cattle men made no defence of the charges that they had been violators of the law and the sheep men asserted that it was necessary for fencers of public lands to make their peace with the government, for "they would be con victed if ever brought to trial."

A. E. Rerisquies of the American National Live Stock association outlined the position of the cattle men in favor of served notice upon the publishers of all government control, and then called upon M. Boardman of Helena, Mont., asserted that every cattle man had violated laws violations of the federal law against the in regard to fencing. "Why, if you want to get the list of violators, just take the nembership of the cattle men's association." he said. "Including yourself?" asked Chairman Proctor. "Yes, sir, but I have taken my fences down," replied Mr. Boardman. He added that he had fallen into political disfavor and could no longer get favors.

Small Cattlemen Need Protection. T. W. Gray of Gunnison, Colo., spoke on the leasing system in order to pro tect small raisers of cattle in Colorade against Utah sheep raisers bringing in large flocks that quickly reduce ranges a condition where cattle starve. have to fight these sheep men or get nothing," he said. "Which do you do? asked Senator Long. "Ask the criminal courts of Colorado, replied Mr. Gray. He described the high ranges in Colorado as ideal for the small cattle men! "With the sheep man barred?" suggested Senator

Dolliver. The witness replied smilingly that "the altitude is too high for sheep." He was asked about the "unwritten law" governing the amount of range land a bona fide settler might use. He said the only unwritten law in his section concerned the number of sheep that might be brought in from other sections.

"What is the limit?" asked Senator "Well." he replied. "10,000 head dropped in once. But the sheep men did not take that many away." Colonel Lockhart of Colorado Springs. Colo., and C. E. Ayer of Baggs, Wyo., spoke briefly in favor of the amendment.

"I want to plead guilty for myself and my neighbors," said C. W. Merchant of Carlsbad, N. M., who then admitted that cattle men in his section had fenced tructs 100 miles wide east and west and 300 miles have to admit that when it comes to north and south and that the fences had been up twenty-five years. He told of a visit a few years ago from a special agent of the government, who made them destroy their fences. He said that the cattle mer lost 49 per cent of their stock and sold the balance at reduced rates. The cattle men, he said, then went to Santa Fe and had a bill passed, permitting the fencing of public roads. "As we could locate a public road almost where we pleased, it was not long before we had the fences back," he said.

He favored government leasing of the lands in order to legalize the fencing and he declared that the cattle men would not object to homestead settlements within the leased tracts.

Dr. J. M. Wilson of Douglas, Wyo., vice president of the National Wool Growers' association, suggested that after the defense of homesteaders by the cattle men. "It might be well to look for wings on these men.

"A trail of blood, of assassinations, of stock maimed and destroyed, has been left across the country from California to Nebraska as the result of differences and difficulties of cattle men," said Robert Taylor of Abbott, Neb., in pleading for the five families. Burkett amendment.

"It is too great a test of one man's honesty," he said.

After a number of other cattle men were heard Dr. J. M. Wilson of Douglas, as the spokesman for the National Wool Growers' association, of which Senator Warren is president, opposed the amendment. Mr. Wilson said that to turn loose an army of special agents to enforce the proposed law rould be to invite corruption.

Letter from President. president's letter to Senator Warren

The president's letter to Senator Warren follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. II. 1907.—My Dear Senator Warren: In accordance with our recent conversation I am very glad to send you this statement of my position regarding government control of the range. I am fully in accord with your view that the local control of the range should be in the hands of western men familiar with stock raising and I believe in full local participation in the management of the range. Of course, you must not divide the responsibility to a point where you can hold no one responsible, but co-operation between the stockmen and the government's officers is absolutely essential.

The grazing fee should be small, especially so at first. I am anxious that the government should get a net revenue from grazing on the public range, but only enough to pay for administration and improvement and any surplus might well go to to the states and territories in which the fees are collected.

As soon as a bill for range control is passed it goes without saying that such control should not be taken hurriedly, but gradually, as grazing districts can be organized. There is one prime essential in this policy of range control—the homesteader must be protected in his rights to create a home for his family and he must have whatever range rights are necessary for that E. Those.

It is a weful at present to fence the public domain. All fences unlawfully main-ained will have to be taken down. Unless congress takes action to legalize reasonable and necessary fencing through government control of the range, there will be able and necessary fencing through government control of the range, there will be a very serious loas to stockmen throughout the west, whose business in very many cases cannot be conducted without fencing, and this loss will often fall hardest on the small man.

I cannot consent to a clause continuing for a year, or for any length of time, the present illegal fencing.

The utmost I will consent to, so far as my power extends in the matter of legislation, is to continue such fences as in my judgment it is right and proper for me to continue. My first care is for the homesteader and the small stock man. The opposition we have to our proposal new comes primarily from the big men who graze wandering flocks of sheep and who do not promote the real settlement of the country. These men are the men whose interests are diametrically hostile to those of the homemakers, who wish to eat out and destroy the country where he desires permanently to live, and who, when they have thus ruined the land of the homesteader and small stock man, move elsewhere to repeat the process of devastation. Many of the sheep men who are permanent dwellers sympathize with our movement. Others, unfortunately, sympathize with their nomadic brothers, the ultimate with their nomadic brothers, the ultimate ment. Others, unfortunately, sympathize with their nomadic brothers, the ultimate result of whose actions is to destroy the result of whose actions is to destroy the country.

It must be distinctly understood that the opposition to the proposed measure for government control is opposition aimed at the interests of the homemaker, of the homesteader, of the small stock man, of the large stock man who desires that the country shall become better and not worse, and that it is in the interests only of those who think that by continuing the present system they will be able to monopolize an improper portion of the public domain and who are quite indifferent as to whether in the long run they destroy it.

Sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

FIRE RECORD.

Northwestern Roundhouse. HURON, S. D., Feb. 11.-(Special.)-Word has been received here of the destruction by fire of the Northwestern railroad roundhouse at Gettysburg, together with engines Nos. 268 and 385. Both of these locomotives had recently undergone a thorough overhauling and their loss is a very serious matter, as the immense volume of freight now being handled on the Dakota Central division of the Northwestern system exeeds anything ever before known in its history. The origin of the fire is unknown. One of the engines had been placed in the
