Sale of Ladies' Waists THAT WERE SLIGHTLY SOILED IN MANUFACTURE

This is a waist sale of the rarest and most unusual kind. If we could make every woman in Omaha understand just how pretty and stylish these waists are and how far below real value we are selling them, the street cars could not begin to hold the crowds on Saturday.

In this lot are all strictly high grade waists for 1907 that were turned out by leading manufacturers. Some of them were slightly mused or soiled in the making and we bought these lots at half to one-third their value—although they are all new 1907 styles and scarcely soiled at all.

ALLADIN TALKS OF RUSSIA

Head of Peasant Party Reaches New York on Trip.

SECOND DUMA MAY NEVER ASSEMBLE

Reformer Under Ban Says Conditions Have Not Improved and Millions of People May Starve to Death.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Alexis Alladin, leader of the peasant party in Russia, arrived here today. He purposes to tour the country in the cause of freedom in Russia. He already has been invited to speak at Harvard and Yale. Mr. Alladin said upon his arrival today that he would not be surprised if the new Duma is never organized. "It is now too late to stop the progress of liberty in Russia," he said. "The liberal sentiment is so broad and general that it will come to the front in spite of all a government opposition."

Although born a peasant, Alladin studied at the University of Kazan, from which he was expelled for voicing liberal opinions. He then organized trades unions in the vicinity of Kazan, for which he was arrested and sentenced to four years' imprisonment, to be followed by eight years' exile in north Russia. He escaped to Germany, but returned when the czar's liberal manifesto was issued. He was elected a deputy to the Duma and founded the peasant and labor party. He is its present leader, although prevented by the government from being nominated for the second Duma.

have their own representatives in Russia to distribute the funds. "If the Russian government does not grant a constitutional form of government, the greatest strike in the history of the world will follow. It will be a greater strike than that of 1905. There has been a great change among the people since the present outbreak. Now they have a central point of organization, a point of concentration. If the government ignores the demands of the Duma the general strike will follow. It will be in March or April and will have the support of the navy. The concessions asked from the crown from the last Duma have not been granted. The people want personal liberty, freedom of the press and financial control. The government may grant some small concessions, but if there is a strike rebellion will follow. The people will then insist on a republic. The army will in time join the naval revolt, which will be followed by the strike of the railroad employes, the government telegraph employes and the working people in all the large mines and factories."

SENATE VOTES TODAY

the rules to do other than to consider the two questions together, as the conference committee decided to withdraw the measure, and amend it. "I will vote for an extension act tomorrow which will keep the Japanese out," he added. "I do not see why there should be a prejudice against them, yet I am willing to keep them out if it brings war."

Senator Lodge arose at this point, he said, in a low voice he was going to discuss that question, I think we ought to do so behind closed doors. "I am perfectly willing to go behind closed doors," Mr. Tillman responded. "Perhaps I can get a heart-to-heart talk with some people who will not stay here and listen, but who have got orders from the White House that this report has got to go through."

Stating his opposition to any system of contract labor to be as strong as that of anyone, Mr. Tillman said he would favor the proper encouragement of desirable white immigrants to the south and he believed the government would do well to spend $10,000,000 for that purpose. The south was to be discriminated against, he maintained, because the senator from Massachusetts had a large number of highly respectable constituents who were opposed to the southern states getting immigrant unless they got them from the slums of the northern cities. The south did not want this sort of "brown and yellow."

There is an amendment providing for the exclusion of Japanese laborers and coolies from the United States and their territories and insular possessions and the district of Columbia to be effective January 1, 1908. Mr. Lodge made the point that no debate was in order on the resolution. Mr. Culberson said he did not wish to take Senator Tillman from the floor by demanding immediate consideration. Mr. Tillman had asked for the debate relating to "new matter" in the conference report on the rate bill at the last session. He did this he said, that it might be apparent that senators changed their positions from session to session in "that they may do any old thing."

"I want to know why it is," continued Mr. Tillman, "that the president of the United States should be permitted, if this bill becomes a law, and I know it will, to dicker with labor unions, to make bargains with labor leaders? Why should the interests of labor on the Pacific coast make it possible for the president to issue an executive order to prohibit the landing of a certain class of immigrants? We ought to have a law to regulate such a thing. It should not be left to executive discretion. There ought not to be any bargaining here for political purposes."

Senator Carter took the position that the conferees had exceeded their authority. "A vote taken on this question," continued Mr. Carter, "will in my judgment result in the defeat of the conference report." He had reached this conclusion with many of his colleagues. While it might be extremely important to enact the desired clause regarding passports, he said he deemed it of vitally more importance that the procedure of the senate in enacting the laws of the country should be preserved. To do otherwise would be to establish a precedent which would be extremely dangerous in the future. If a vote for the conference report involved the approval of the principle involved, Mr. Carter concluded that he was perfectly free to say he should vote against it.

This statement brought Mr. Tillman to the conclusion of his speech abruptly with this statement: "After such a clear, forcible, unanswerable presentation of what I have been trying to say, I quit."

carries in round numbers $96,000,000. Mr. Burton of Ohio made an unsuccessful effort to strike out the provision for an additional battleship of the Dreadnought type. His amendment was voted down, 114 to 146. Speeches on the amendment were made by Messrs. Burton and Kitchin of North Carolina, Sladen of Texas, Crumpacker of Indiana, Yell of Iowa, Bowers of New York, Waldo of New York, Weeks of Massachusetts, Longworth of Ohio, Grosvenor of Ohio and Foss of Illinois.

Speaking in support of his motion, Mr. Burton called attention to the inevitable tendency of advancing civilization toward peace and the untiring endeavors of nations not involved in conflict to prevent war between other countries between which controversies arise. He spoke of the growth of arbitration as a means of settling disputes and the intolerable burden of maintaining armaments and navies. He said that to the United States in recent years the expenses of the military and naval establishments had grown to five times as great as in 1887, only twenty years ago.

Considerable interest was aroused by Mr. Longworth of Ohio, who said that while very generally he relied on the good judgment of his colleague (Mr. Burton), in this particular case he was obliged to disagree with him, and yield to the opinion of a higher authority, especially, he proceeded as the opinion of the "higher authority" agreed with his own.

Mr. Sladen of Texas spoke in favor of international arbitration and the reduction of armaments. The chairman of the appropriations committee, Mr. Tawney of Minnesota, supported the Burton amendment on the ground of economy. He did not share Mr. Burton's dream of world peace by international arbitration, but he thought the United States was already expending a sufficient sum on account of past wars and was to come.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE

Volume of Business Well Maintained Despite Numerous Interruptions.

WANTY RETAIL STOCKS PRACTICALLY SOLD

Jobbing Houses Report Liberal Spring Demand—Collections Are Prompt and Factories Are Busy.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say: Despite holiday and weather interruptions the volume of business was well maintained in most sections of the country. The movement of merchandise has resumed normal proportions, snow blockades being fewer, but tardy deliveries will cause some complaint, especially in regard to grain. Retail stocks of winter goods were most satisfactorily depleted during the period of low temperature, and the new season will open upon favorable auspices.

Wholesale and jobbing houses report a liberal spring demand, particularly in dry goods, where the lotting has been a vigorous movement of agricultural implements and other farm supplies. A gratifying feature of many reports is the continued promptness of mercantile collections. Mills and factories have so much forward business that new contracts are not taken except at full figure, and there is dissatisfaction among shippers are not more prompt. Wages have been advanced in several important concerns and there are no serious labor controversies. Iron and steel producers are receiving much new business. Inquiries for sheets and plates are scarcely a quiet in structural shapes. It is not possible to discern any evidence of reaction in any section of the industry, although there is a quiet in structural shapes. It is not possible to discern any evidence of reaction in any section of the industry, although there is a quiet in structural shapes.

On a viva voce vote, the Burton amendment was adopted, providing that on the vessel authorized in last year's naval bill, as well as in this year's, "not more than one battleship and one torpedo boat destroyer, or two torpedo boat destroyers, shall be built by one contracting party."

BETTER WEATHER AND IMPROVED ROADS INCREASE DISTRIBUTION.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Bradstreet's to-day will say: Better weather and improved roads have developed a stronger tone and greater activity in distributive trade. Increased delivery of grain by farmers and all-day relief from the congestion in transportation channels, the latter situation is still far from perfect. Cold weather and price concessions have helped to move remaining stocks of winter goods. With wholesalers and jobbers deliveries on orders are the main occupation, but there is apparently little let-up in the demand for cotton goods for anything but spring and summer orders. "Free" movement of grain has led to a rise in wheat, corn and oats. Recent advances in grain prices tend to retard export demand, but shipments of cotton are of record proportions. The latter feature, indeed, is the most favorable element in export trade at present, because high prices of breadstuffs, provisions, food animals and oils tend to check foreign takings of these products. Prices of hog products are strong and advancing. The car shortage trouble is better in the northwest, except in North Dakota, parts of which are still isolated. Farmers there
