Women Avoid Operations

MISS ROSE MOORE

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

erable will be accomplished. It has become the custom for the house to override a committee when it reports a bill back for indefinite postponement and place the measure on general file for discussion. As a result of this the general file has become unusually long and considerable hot air will be let loose when the measures come up for discussion. It is probable sifting committees will be appointed in both houses, though two years ago the house dispensed with this committee. The coming week promises to be a busy one and may see several night sessions, as the legislature is away behind in its work. The appropriation bill is liable to get to the house Tuesday and there might be a fight on some of the recommendations of the committee.

Investigating Fisher Claim.

Representatives Armstrong and Snyder returned this morning from Sioux county where they went to investigate the Captain Fisher claim for $11,500 and to summon witnesses to appear before the claims committee next Thursday. This claim is alleged to be the value placed on land escheated to the state and Captain Fisher is the attorney for the heirs. It has been before three legislatures and has grown from $8,000 to its present comfortable size, while the investigating committee has evidence to show the appraisement was for $1,50?. The representatives saw two of the original appraisers who made affidavits that the appraisement was the smaller amount and these men will be here Thursday to appear before the committee. They are W. J. Raum and John Serres, while Herman Kaup, the administrator, and M. J. O'Connell, county attorney of Sioux county, will also be here. The men saw the original appraisement as filed by the appraisers and it is for $11,500, but it bears evidence of having had the figure "1" inserted to make the larger amount. They brought back also a copy of the court records, showing Fisher filed the appraisement at $5,000, and this claim was filed on the same date upon which the appraisements were appointed. The committee will make an effort to get Fisher before the house for an explanation.

As has been stated the original appraisement papers were taken from the court house, but were later recovered with the change made, in a room at the hotel in Harrison. Hallock Rose appeared before the claims committee on behalf of Fisher recently, but when told the nature of the claim suggested it be investigated thoroughly.

BUILDING BOOM AT ALLIANCE

Several Expensive Structures in Sight for This Year.

ALLIANCE, Neb., Feb. 24.—(Special.)—That the era of building has struck Alliance is more than evidenced by the many new structures that have been completed within the last year, beginning with the Rumer block and including the Drake hotel, the postoffice, the Geddes block, and ending with the Bogue building, which will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks. All of these are modern and substantial buildings. This progress, however, has been greatly augmented by the developments of the last few days, when it developed two structures are to be built that will each cost in the neighborhood of $65,000, work on which will begin as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

The first of these is the building of the new Burlington depot to replace the one destroyed by fire last November. This will be a two-story brick and stone structure and will accommodate the general and division headquarters of the Wyoming district and meet the increased demands of the imense business the Burlington is now handling on this line. This is all the more important inasmuch as it is an official announcement and an improvement of a recent plan to build a frame depot.

The Adolph Coors Brewing company of Golden, Colo., is now disposing of old buildings on its property opposite the new depot, preparatory to the erection of a thoroughly modern hotel. This is the record of the higher priced buildings.

One block farther north, on Box Butte avenue, George M. Fox is beginning a two-story addition to his hotel and will furnish it new throughout, making it an up-to-date hostelry.

Mrs. Frank Gilleran has now under way an addition to her building on Box Butte avenue for the increased business of her tenants, Miller Brothers' Crockery and Notion company.

The Wilson building will be converted into a steam laundry. This will be equipped with the latest machinery, which has been purchased, and will be conducted under the firm name of Butler & Beeson.

New residences are keeping in pace with the business construction, all of which promises an activity for the coming year that is far beyond the most sanguine expectations of those who promised most for the future of Alliance.

STOCK SHOW AND FARM INSTITUTE

Some Prize-Winning Stock Exhibited at Cambridge.

CAMBRIDGE, Neb., Feb. 24.—(Special.)—The Cambridge farmers institute was held here on the 20th and 21st. These cattle are the same ones which won prizes at Lincoln, St. Joseph, Kansas City and Denver, in the state fairs and national live stock shows and are animals which are not excelled anywhere.

KILLED BY JUMPING FROM TRAIN

Pawnee City Man Attempts to Get Off When Train Does Not Stop.

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., Feb. 24.—(Special Telegram.)—Louis A. Lohmiller of this city was found in a dying condition at the intersection of Main street and the Rock Island railroad. It would appear that he was on a train from the west, No. 1094, which stops at stations only to take on stock, and as it was going through without stopping, when it reached the crossing, which is just east of the depot, it is evident that he must have jumped from the train and struck on his head, crushing in the skull. He died about 3 a. m. At the inquest it was learned that none of the train crew knew he was on the train. The corcner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death. The funeral was held today at the Methodist church, Rev. C. W. Shepherd officiating, and the body was interred in Pawnee City cemetery.

NO LEASES ON THE CHURCHES

French Clerical Organs Say Clergy Will Not Submit to Proposals.

PREMIER SAYS HE DID NOT EXPECT IT

Expresses Opinion that Churches Will Remain Open Whether Leases Are Signed or Not and Churches Kept in Repair.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—The clerical organs unite in declaring that Cardinal Richard, archbishop of Paris, will not submit to the new proposal of the government regarding church leases, and their Rome dispatches categorically insist that Pope Pius is resolved to maintain intact the original text offered by the French episcopate and to refuse even to discuss the government's exceptions relative to the liability of parish priests for the keeping up of churches and the exclusion of foreign priests or members of dissolved orders as parties to contracts. Whether these inspired statements are only part of the diplomatic game remains to be seen.

Premier Clemenceau now admits frankly that as far as he is concerned he never expected the church to accept the conditions as to leases, but he says that Minister of Education Briand did, and that the cabinet unanimously accorded him a chance to conclude the negotiations upon the terms stated.

"The future will show which is right; whether he is the victim of an illusion or I am mistaken," the premier added.

"If no agreement is reached, what will happen?" Premier Clemenceau was asked.

"Nothing very terrible," he replied. "I think we will return to the solution previously contemplated. The churches will remain open, that goes without saying, and, it is conceded, without lease to the clergy, and the State department, or commune, as the case may be, will bear the cost of keeping up repairs to a church out of the funds of the church itself. But rest assured the government will go no further in the matter of concessions. The republican majority in the Chamber of Deputies would not endorse it nor would any member of the cabinet, not even M. Briand, favor yielding more."

Statement by Vatican.

ROME, Feb. 24.—The Vatican communication issued Saturday, in which it was stated that negotiations for the lease of churches were considered to have been broken by the French government, also said that the French cabinet had taken recourse in an old stratagem by pretending that it wished peace, but putting forth conditions it already knew were unacceptable. The communication also remarks that Minister of Education Briand, when he presented the separation law of 1904, admitted that the foreign clergy could participate in cultural associations, because otherwise Dutch and English Protestant ministers and German rabbis would have been excluded, but now that it is only a question of Catholics he does not admit foreign priests as head of parishes.

which, of course, the officials of the pension bureau must be guided, and an applicant being thus thrown out of that court, so to speak, has recourse only through congress. Hence the great flood of so-called private pension bills.

Of the total number of pension bills of all classes and conditions introduced 4,280 originated in the senate, all except 159 being measures to benefit veterans of the civil war, the exceptions being for soldiers having had service in Mexican, Indian wars or the Spanish-American war.

In the house 13,440 pension bills were introduced where the claimants had served during the civil war and 3,180 special bills were introduced for soldiers either of the regular army or Mexican, Indian, Spanish-American or other services.

Mineral Land Scandal.

Another possible mineral land scandal is involved in the passage of a resolution of inquiry by the house of representatives last week. It called upon the secretary of the interior to inform the house what disposition, if any, had been made of the lands in two townships in New Mexico, comprising 46,000 acres of land, located in the old Atlantic & Pacific railroad grant, now controlled by the Santa Fe. Between the railroad company and a number of prospectors a controversy has been raging for some years over the territory described, and the latter assert that patents have been wrongfully issued to the corporation for the lands.

A petition presented by Delegate Andrews of New Mexico sets up that for many years these lands have been known to contain large deposits of copper ore, and that the terms of the act conveying the grant excluded all mineral lands, should any be found to exist, save those containing coal and iron. About fifteen years ago the railroad company sold a large tract of land in New Mexico and upon an examination a Mr. Spaulding, father-in-law of one of the Mitchell's, refused to advise his son-in-law to complete the purchase of these two townships for the reasons that they contained copper in such quantities that they could not be held under the grant. At that time no patent had been issued to the company, and about the year 1900 a number of mining claims were located upon the two townships and mining has been going on ever since. Despite this, it is alleged, patents were issued to the railroad company in 1902 for the odd number sections of the townships, and in the last year two agents of the Santa Fe have located forest lieu scrip upon a number of the even numbered sections. It is further alleged that the railroad agents deceived miners and prospectors as to their real mission, saying they were going to locate timber land in another section.

The secretary of the interior is required to state whether or not other minerals than coal and iron are found in the said two townships; whether any mining or prospecting had been done there or locations filed prior to 1902, and whether or not lieu forest reserve land scrip has been filed on said land by the Santa Fe company, its agents or assignees, and if so, when and by whom.

Delegate Andrews says the lands in question are situated about seventy-five miles west of Albuquerque and are commonly reported to be rich in copper. It has been reported to him that the railroad company officials have driven settlers and miners off the ground.

It is an evidence of the dramatic power of this play of the reconstruction period that at its second appearance before an Omaha audience it drew alternately applause and hisses, as very few other theatrical productions have done. It is rarely that the audience, or at least the portion of the audience that lead in the audible expression of their feelings, enter into the spirit of the play so thoroughly as it did last night. The applause and the hisses both expressed sympathy with the author and while the faction that expressed itself may have been small it cannot be denied that, like the governor of South Carolina, it was also loud.

"The Clansman" takes its plot from a time when dramatic incidents were crowding upon each other in the rapidly changing political and social conditions of South Carolina. Dixon has presented these conditions in an exceedingly strong way from the standpoint of the extreme southern fighter as he believes for the supremacy of civilization. The race problem was then in its beginning, and at the same time in its most strenuous period of development, and the concrete manner in which he handles it makes an effective appeal to the feelings of everyone who sees the play, no matter what his opinion as to the abstract problem may be. The interest is increased by the introduction of ghostly and mysterious scenes from the Ku Klux Klan. The usual love element is also a strong feature of the plot.

The cast has been changed somewhat since the appearance of the play in Omaha last year, but it has lost little by the change. Ben Cameron, the leader of the clansmen, is ably interpreted by Maurice Freeman, who has both the ability and the physical appearance required by the part. Austin Stoneman, the radical leader, and Silas Lynch, the negro lieutenant governor, are represented, respectively, by M. J. Jordan and James J. Ryan, in a very satisfactory way. The young women of the cast are charming and beautiful, and the negro principals, from Uncle Nelse and Aunt Eve and the faint-hearted sheriff down, are all as natural as life.

The play was witnessed by a good crowd of both races last night. It will run until after Wednesday night, with a matinee on Wednesday afternoon.

"Nell Gwynn" at the Burwood.

Miss Marie Pettes carried her audience by storm at the Burwood yesterday and leaped into instant popularity. The success of Nell Gwynn at Old Drury in London could not have been more pronounced than was that of her prototype in Omaha. Before the first act was over at the matinee the applause was sufficient to interrupt the play, and the success of the new leading woman was made certain. At the evening performance she scored point after point and was again given assurance that her effort was appreciated. Miss Pettes has every advantage of youth and good looks, with a natural vivacity that easily fit in with traditions of roguish, but warm hearted and impulsive, Nellie, who rose from an orange girl to be an actress through the favor of the king, and who held that favor through many years of court intrigue, meanwhile winning the London people by her gracious ways and unfailing good nature. In fine, Miss Pettes makes Nell Gwynn live again, just as she lived at the time the Pilgrim Fathers were searching out the rock to land on. She impresses with her sincerity and, barring a little uncertainty once or twice, she dominates the situation at all times. Her comedy opportunities are delightfully taken, and in the more stressful moments that come to her she doesn't lose her grip. In a word, she is an attractive and capable actress and ought to become very popular at the Burwood.

Mr. Morrison makes Charles II a king very much as he appears in history, a vacillating man of generally good impulses, but lacking the force and strength of character to carry them out. Mr. Hartford, as Lord Jeffreys, is good. Messrs. Davies and Schofield have a pair of low comedy parts which are well done. The other men of the company are well disposed in the cast.

Miss Orris Ober, who succeeds Miss Hill, made a good impression as the duchess of Portsmouth, while Miss Martin was her usual self in the ingenue role of Lady Olivia Vernon. Miss Maycliffe makes a fine lady of the court and Miss Hudson shows her versatility by appearing as a buxom maid rather than as an old woman. The play is staged with the care that has marked Mr. Hartford's productions, and is given very well indeed.

Vaudeville at the Orpheum.

Among the funmakers at the Orpheum this week Charley Case heads the list. He keeps his auditors in a continuous state of merriment with a running line of humorous incidents of the lives of himself, his father and his brother Hank. In his work Mr. Chase employs only a blackened face to heighten the effect of his natural mannerisms. Relating a little inside information yesterday, Mr. Case said his real name was "John Case," but when patrons of the theater began to refer to him as "Jack," he took the nom de plume of Charley Case. He said his folks did not like the combination of Jack and Cass.

Taken as a whole, the bill is quite satisfactory. Finlay and Burke in "Stageland Satire" are clever, Mr. Finlay being particularly entertaining. He is an old favorite of the vaudeville. The Otura Japanese troupe, two boys and a girl, present something out of the ordinary, even for Japs. Their work is faultless. The Rosaires offer a novel slack and tight wire act that is good of its kind. Mr. Rosaire does a thrilling hand stand on a swinging wire. Merri Osborne, Louise Ferguson and James Corley present a dramatic playlet, "Taming an Actress," by Miss Osborne. There is nothing out of the ordinary in this sketch, although Miss Osborne is dashing and evidently would appear to better advantage in a worthy sketch.

Charles Barry and Hulda Halvers are seen in a nonsensical but rather amusing knockabout sketch which serves to balance the program. Lavinia Dewitt plays a cornet in an able manner, her tones and range being unusual for a woman. Her vocal interpolations do not, however, seem to have been well advised in view of the excellence of her instrumental offerings. New kinodrome views are presented with this week's program.

"A Stranger in Town" at the Krug.

At the Krug yesterday Omaha folks were introduced to a new comedian in a new comedy. Mr. Frank Beamish proves his right to the title by showing his capacity for fun making. But he is not alone, for the company contains excellent material that is used to the best advantage. The play is a mixture of musical comedy, farce and vaudeville, and during its progress a number of enjoyable stunts are presented. It was witnessed by two large audiences yesterday, and will close its stay at the Krug this evening.
